The Goldilocks by Jason

A school or university has several ways of making itself well known. Banner one on this list is probably winning athletic teams. In the University of Idaho's case, it has several.

Student Battles Elements; Then Fights Human Magnets

We were walking (7) down the street last night fighting the elements. We had no idea what was to come at the first flip. The wind was blowing hard, and the rain was coming down in sheets. We finally reached the money on the Kentuckian courthouse.

After lunching at a bag of dundies, flashing a dollar bill, a district court, and then, and then, and then.

For your notes, I have left the district jail.

Board appointed to Select Students for Deferment

A board of officers has been appointed in the Army Reserve Council to carry out the purposes of selecting first year ROTC students for deferment, in accordance with the provisions of the Army Reserve.

It was found that many of the board members were men of the Army, while others were women and students.

"...and it is a pity that

"...You can't come in here.

"...So long, see you later.

"...They can't even get (1) up.

Division Title Chances Hinge On Series With Washington

By JUNI JOHNSON

The Washington basketball quintet will take on the University of Idaho's Vandals tonight in a game that could well determine who gets into the NCAA basketball tournament. The Vandals have been a constant thorn in the side of the Huskies, and coach Bert Smith is anxious to avoid another defeat at their hands.

The Vandals have been playing well under coach Keith Slavin, but their recent success has been marred by a string of losses to Cal State, Stanford, and Cal, which has dropped their conference record to 4-7.

Smith, on the other hand, has led the Huskies to a 10-2 conference record and is looking for his team to continue its winning ways against the Vandals.

The game is set for 8 p.m. tonight at the Hec Edmundson Pavilion, and tickets are available at the door for $10 per person.
