Air Force Drill Team
Wins, Northwestern Honors

A sign of pride prevails over the Air Force Drill Team, now the top member of the drill team regiment in the nation. The team recently entertained in the Pacific North.

Battling for first place in a possible final, the team, under the direction of Capt. Malcolm McNamee and Capt. D. R. Hunsinger, captured first place in the final round of the Midwest Drill Team League, which was held in conjunction with the Midwestern College Foundation's 50th anniversary celebration. The team received scores ranging from 80.2 to 82.0.

After the competition, the team was honored at a reception in the President's Hall, where they were presented with the Midwestern College Foundation's 50th anniversary medallion. The team members, led by Capt. McNamee, were recognized for their contributions to the school and the community.

Ag Show Goes On Second Day

Competition in rainy and wet business, teething trouble with the Little International Show rolling into its second day in the Idaho National Guard Armory. Show will close Thursday night.

The wet business has made the first day of the show more like a mud bath than a showcase for the best of the state's agricultural products. However, the weather is expected to improve later in the week, providing better conditions for farmers to display their best wares.

The show, which features a wide range of agricultural exhibits, runs from May 4 to 10. The theme this year is "Agriculture for the Future." The show is open to the public and admission is free.

Building For The Future

An architect's dream shows how the new women's dormitory will look when completed. The $38,000 project, which is being built on the east edge of the Idaho Falls campus, will be completed in time for the fall semester.

The building will house 120 female students and will include a new dining hall, a multipurpose room, and a computer lab.

New Women's Dormitory Approved

Plans for the construction of a new $38,000 women's dormitory at the University of Idaho were approved by the President J. J. B. Rushing. The building will be financed in part by income from room rentals.

Rushing met with the board of regents Monday and said the new dormitory will be ready for occupancy by the fall semester.
