First Term ‘Hilites’ Pass In Review
And Idaho Picked A Sweetheart
The ‘Battle Of The Palouse’

When O’Callaghan And Steelie Got Theirs

The class of 1929 was the one for whom the term was “famous.” The football game against the University of Idaho was to be a homecoming game and the Idaho won with a score of 13-12. The game was played at 3:00 in the afternoon.

When the final whistle sounded, the referee ended the game for the Idaho-WSC football players but not for some thousand student fans both schools who strained and surged into the field to cheer on their teams. The Idaho band played around the grounds in the hour or two that followed. Fans, few, clothes were ripped and braid ripped in general. The Congaree, Idaho’s rival team, was routed by the Idaho state flag, valued at over $100. As a result, the Idaho student at Pullman sported a giant “I” in the lapel.

Gymnasium Admission Numbers To Be Issued In Arkansas
Second semester registration, the week preceding two days noted for its improbable problems, begins Monday, Feb. 5. D. D. Black, registrar, and his assistants will be much the same as last year, officials reported.

Students will be admitted to the gymnasiums for room numbers after a schedule released today. Admissions will be set by the day, but students need not be present; they must be in the third of the rooms assigned, officials said. If a student misses his room, it will be necessary to get a new number and be admitted, officials promised.

Dear Jason!

It is understandable how you could exhibit such a high degree of correspondence with Dr. Hitchcock's research. On your request, I will attempt to answer your question, "Why do people use a lowaccent to achieve the same result?"

This theory was first published by Dr. Hitchcock in his work "Low Accent and Its Influence on Meaning" in 1921. According to Dr. Hitchcock, people use low accent to achieve a sense of intimacy and to emphasize certain words or phrases. It is a way of expressing emotion or sentiment without using words.

Dr. Hitchcock's research on the use of low accent has been influential in the field of linguistics. His work has been cited in numerous studies and has been the basis for many theories in the field.
