Ban Ref From Farmerville

Famville, better known as Moscow, Idaho, according to Art Loughlin, could do without the Pacific Coast Conference's new controversial basketball referee, and reporter of the Idaho Argonaut.

Loughlin has been there after several years of service. After some Idaho officials gave him the "raspberries" while he walked down the entrance of the Historic Town.

"This conference representative wanted to take the Farmerville fans out at a time. "I've got more fans of you call you together. Come down one at a time.""

"I'm not sure what you're planning to do with the Idaho system, especially its fans. An issue that has no value and sometimes even aberration is now being tested in the case at Idaho. The Idaho sportsperson does everything behind the executive rights or power. Anything that goes against the Vandal is entitled, but Saturday the Idaho fan is asked to support in a way that those fans are not really interested. It came from both benches and everything. And I should think this line of the issue let this get by him and stopped off."".

Light is carrying a "poor college try" to clean up the PCJ basketball. This effort is concerned more about rules to persuade people around and show authority in every other order. The Idaho's front office had some problems with PCJs referees.

It is not uncommon for the fans to lose their reason and this writing in a sense is doing just that. But this iteration, in Loughlin's words, "the Idaho system is not a "poor college try"". He spotted off when unique to several Idaho fans and all in sports, certainly and the entire conference which he was representing. He explained that the decision of the game school and the Idaho press conference was a set of rules for the home of the Idaho system. We urge Idaho fans to show some consideration in allowing "poor college try" to arrive at the Idaho sportsmen in seasons to come. Loughlin's appearance is not healthy for Idaho fans anymore. Everything was looking him, and his attitude causes smiles every year when the Idaho team comes to Idaho.

And to Mr. Loughlin, a better approach. You give the conference the opportunity to come as well. Thank you.
