For Freedom's Sake

Amnesty is the mist in National Newspaper Week. When a newspaper is not free, its editors, reporters and publishers are taking time out to reflect upon the press Freedom that allows them to express the news as they see it. The freedom of the press is one of the guarantees that we all enjoy. After all, the freedom of the press is one of the guarantees that we all enjoy.

Proper and wisely, the state of our newspaper week is reflected in our newspapers. In some instances it is an indication of the general health of our local community, in others of the general economic and national condition. Every minute of the day press stories are being published in newspapers across the country. It is a well known fact that newspapers publish 200,000 stories each day, and that 65 per cent of these are either news or features.

Fifty years are important when we talk about the importance of the progress that has been achieved during them. In the forewar, there have been tremendous progress ranging from the increased utilization of coal and oil in the re- placement programs for the forewar, to the technological progress that provided the need. Building a major role in the forewar's development program has been the Argonaut at the university of Idaho. In showing the galvanic assistance, the argonaut can take pride in the assistance of teaching, research, and service, and the results they have achieved.

Forestry, Law Schools Blow Out 50th Anniversary Candles

Forestry Alums Expected At U.

About 200 guests and alumni, including some national identities, will help celebrate the golden anniversary of the College of Forestry this fall.

The College of Forestry will celebrate a major milestone this fall when it marks the 50th anniversary of the College's establishment.

The celebration will take place during the annual Alumni Weekend, which is scheduled for October 2-3. Students, faculty, staff, and alumni from across the country are expected to attend the events, which will feature a variety of activities, including a reception, banquet, and tours of the campus.

The College of Forestry was established in 1970, and since then it has grown to become one of the largest and most respected forestry programs in the country. The college offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in forestry, as well as a range of research programs.

The celebration will include a special banquet on Friday evening, followed by a series of events on Saturday. The programs will feature keynote speeches, panel discussions, and a variety of other activities.

In addition to the events on campus, there will also be a special display of forestry-related exhibits in the Student Union Building.

For more information about the celebration, please visit the College of Forestry website or contact the alumni office at 555-1234.

The Worm Turns As Male Chickadees

A member of one of our favorite bird families was working himself into much excitement this week while following his mate to a neighboring yard. The excitement of the male began to die down on the day before he left his mate. He noticed that the female was not following him. He waited and then saw his mate blackening among those of the flock.

Gary Randall’s SIDELINES

What does a guy write after he’s predicted a score of 20-10, the roof caved in, and he’s even 20 points wrong? May as well just confess, I have no idea what’s going on in the world, so I’ll just guess. Whatever the case, I’ll try to keep my fingers crossed and hope for the best.

Hudson’s "Fighting Bantams" made it a close game against the Idaho State Bengals, but the Vandals emerged victorious with a score of 34-13 in the championship match.
