Meeting Lively
Board Studies Major Projects
The University's Executive Board took a lively look at the school's Idaho students and itself Thursday, in an annual meeting that was attended by 30 students, two faculty members and seven staff members.

The meeting was held in the Executive Board room, and would be headed by a stakeholder director of the Board of Trustees.

The Board members were asked to complete the survey for each school's board in order to obtain the results of the finalized faculty member.

A discussion involved questions about the relationship of students, the faculty and the Board of Trustees, and was followed by a vote on the proposal until the Tuesday morning.

Faculty Reorganization
The University's administration has been asked to consider a plan for the creation of a new, more effective Board of Trustees, which would be made up of elected representatives from the student body, faculty and administration.

The Board of Trustees would be responsible for the overall administration of the university, and would be elected by the faculty and staff at each school. The Board would have the power to appoint the president and other officers of the university, and to approve the budget and other important matters.

The Board would also be responsible for setting policies and procedures, and for overseeing the academic and administrative affairs of the university.

At the meeting, the Board discussed the need for a stronger Board of Trustees, and agreed to conduct a search for a new president to lead the university.

Cheating's Overemphasized

The next time you take a test, look around and see how many of your fellow students seem to be cheating. Examine the back of the term papers handed in on assignment in the last few years and see if they are any different than what was handed in a few years ago. The reasons are rather than being written by the person whose name is on them.

Accepting this recent article, the Ottawa Free Press, by John S. Martin, who claims in his course at the University of Ottawa that approximately 90% of the students cheat. In fact, he states that this is the great majority.

The recent explosion of the University situation is not isolated. New York state students are not the only students who cheat. Elsewhere in the country, cheating is being reported throughout the country.

As an illustration of this, why people in Iowa express the opinion that if the students who cheat should be suspended, and in some cases actually expelled, for cheating.

It would be important that the University administration should act to stop cheating, and that they should do this immediately. It is important that the students themselves should act to stop cheating. Only they can do it.

Plagiarism is a serious matter, and it is important that students should not be permitted to cheat. It is important that students should be taught to respect the work of others.

We should all be aware of the importance of education, and we should all be aware of the importance of our work. We should all be aware of the importance of the work of others. We should all be aware of the importance of respect for the work of others.

The University administration should act to stop cheating, and they should do this immediately. The students themselves should act to stop cheating. Only they can do it.
