High School Seniors Will Visit Campus April 29-30

Idaho's high school seniors will be handed the figurative key to campus as part of the annual "Senior Days," an event that has given its first taste of campus life in the annual "Senior Week." The two-day program is designed to give students a chance to see if they'd like to be in college and at the University of Idaho.

But those in junior year will be shown what to expect as a college student and be given the opportunity to visit the campus and check out the facilities, to gain a better understanding of what they'll be doing after graduation.

The golden fleece is Jason

When the 12th flocks of the wading Executive Board hold a banquet to honor their year's work on April 23, they will wear the golden fleece, a crown of laurel leaves, and sit at a banquet table laden with flowers, fruits and wine. The banquet will be attended by the full faculty, the board president, the student president and the student body president. The board will also wear the golden fleece, and the students will wear the golden scarf, a crown of gold leaves.

The golden fleece is a symbol of the highest honor that can be given to a student. It is a symbol of excellence and achievement, and it is a symbol of the University of Idaho's commitment to excellence in education.

Lines Strung For KOUI; Slogan Chosen

The University of Idaho was awarded a contract for work on the new KOUI radio station on April 6. The contract was awarded on a bid basis, and the University of Idaho was the only bidder. The contract is for the construction of a new radio tower and the installation of new equipment. The University of Idaho will be responsible for the design and construction of the tower and the installation of the equipment.

The slogan chosen for the new KOUI is "Idaho's Call to Excellence." The slogan is a symbol of the University of Idaho's commitment to excellence in education and research.

National Convention of the Student Government

The National Convention of the Student Government will be held in the Center for the Arts on April 11. The convention is a meeting of all the student government organizations in the United States, and it is a symbol of the University of Idaho's commitment to excellence in student government.

The most galling triumph of 1960 for this writer was the nearly inexcusable oversight which took place when the annual baseball season began and was followed by a long winter. To err is human, to forgive divine, and the writer is human, therefore he has no reason to look for forgiveness. We will not be human, however, if we miss the chance to correct our errors.

The baseball season started with the annual season preview, and the writer thought he had seen everything. But he was wrong, and he was right. He was wrong because he did not see the writing on the wall. He was right because he was able to correct his mistake.

The most galling oversight of 1960 was the failure to mention the annual baseball season preview. The writer had been looking forward to the preview all winter, and he had been looking forward to the season all winter. He had been looking forward to the season all winter because he had been looking forward to the season all winter. He had been looking forward to the season all winter because he had been looking forward to the season all winter.
