Canadian Speaker Compares Nations

By Dr. N. S. Jones

"We Canadians like to think we have a better system of government than the Americans. The reason is that the American President is elected by the people, while here in Canada we have a parliamentary form of government."

The writer argues that this comparison is misleading, as the Canadian system is not as efficient as the American one. He points out that the Canadian system is less democratic, and that the American system is more effective. He also mentions that the American system is more transparent, and that the Canadian system is more closed to the public.

The writer concludes that the Canadian system is not as good as the American system, and that we should learn from the American example. He suggests that we should emulate the American system in order to improve our own system.
