Communications Fouled

That old saying, “If you miss a guy a ‘yip’ twist the cup and do the lip” can be applied to communications...erratically. Recently, several individuals mentioned mistakes or errors in printing, but now it seems that “AS IS” is a long held tradition. It seems that trying a notice or story as the Argonauts? edition is the only way to get that notice, or story into the publication at the day of publication.

Last issue, two notices, incorrectly and accidentally published in the Classifieds of each edition. Concerned they were at the Argonauts? as the Classifieds are placed in typeset and published in the weekly publication. They were last missed after the report. The error was corrected at the day of publication.

The result was only that about half the numbers and the results...nothing.

Liberalism Versus Conservatism Was Subject of Student-Faculty Roundtable

By GLADYS SWAN

Roundtable discussion held yesterday morning in the Student-Faculty Roundtable at the University Center.

The discussion was instigated by the recent political developments in the United States and the world. The participants included: Professor Michael Smith, political science, the faculty advisor; and students from the political science, history, and economics classes.

Throughout the discussion, the participants engaged in a lively exchange of ideas, exploring the different perspectives of liberalism and conservatism. The conversation centered around topics such as economic policies, social justice, and foreign affairs.

Professor Smith opened the discussion by asking the participants to define liberalism and conservatism in their own words. The students then shared their views, offering insights on how these ideologies have evolved over time and how they are applied in contemporary issues.

The discussion was moderated by Mr. Johnson, who facilitated a respectful and engaging environment for all participants.

At the end of the session, Professor Smith summed up the key points discussed and encouraged the students to continue exploring these important issues in their future studies and discussions.

In conclusion, the roundtable discussion provided a valuable opportunity for students to engage with faculty and peers in a dynamic and thought-provoking exchange on the complex topics of liberalism and conservatism.
Fight Against VD Far From Won

The designs of venereal diseases continue to be as complex and elusive as ever. The search for a cure remains a constant battle, and the war against VD is far from won. In fact, recent figures from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention indicate that the number of cases of venereal disease is on the rise. The importance of continued education and awareness cannot be overstated.

Modern Treatment for VD

Various experimental treatments are being explored, including antibiotics, vaccines, and antiviral drugs. However, the most promising approach appears to be the use of a combination of treatments, tailored to the specific needs of each patient.

Research continues to be a vital component of the fight against VD. Scientists are working tirelessly to develop new treatments and vaccines that will help control the spread of this disease.

Bench Jockeys Get A Cougar; Little Nickie Puts On Big Show
Little Nickle August, the Cougar second baseman, got up on the shelf last Saturday night when the Cougars faced the Idaho Foos. Nickle used a high price for the entertainment, though, mostly because they were a little early on the field." It started in the third inning. Nickle was in the on-deck circle and he grounded out. The Idaho Foos' Felix Gloe had August's at the plate. August let in the knock, and hit for Nickle.

"Did your Daddy buy you that hat, Nickle?" floated across the diamond. The answer to the query was no, so baseball fans will, next standing up the Cougards second baseman.

"Let your Daddy buy you another hat, Nickle."

The third baseman responded by hitting a single to right.

The final peak of excitement did not come until the last of the eight inning. August came up to bat with men on fire and second. The faces were still on August, August hit a ground ball to Bill Johnson for a put-out. Johnson tossed to second for the out and Mooney couldn't get the ball to first in time for the double play.

Meanwhile, the Cougar runner at third had broken for home with the play. Terry Bowels, the third baseman, seeing that he had missed August, sent the ball to August's backhand. The third at home plate was safe, but August's error let the Idaho Foos' lead increase to 5-0. The lead was increased to 6-0 when Idaho Foos' Bill tweaked the ball into the Idaho dugout.
