Dads and students will be able to enjoy a special trip to an oriental garden or to the University of Idaho, as the Dairy Department presents its annual "Washburn Week."

On Sunday, the play "The Man Who Would Be King" has been taken from a short story written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. The drama is directed by a young actor who wears the role of the famous detective and who turns his attention to the adventure of a lifetime. The actors in the production have acquired their own costumes and have detailed the characteristics of the characters in an effort to make the play authentic.

At a banquet and dinner on Monday night, the University of Idaho College of Agriculture and Natural Resources will present the 1963 University of Idaho Animal Science Fair. The event will be held in the evening and will include various exhibits and presentations related to agriculture and animal science.

Once Again — No Issues

This year's class elections have a new twist — the candidates are running for political parties. The first official party and all the others which have since formed for the school's political parties differ from the non-party candidates in that they have a platform. The Big Five campaigns are: the Republican, the Democratic, the Socialists, the Independents, and the Socialist Workers. Our candidates, however, have already done much to gain the suffrage of the student body.

At the top of the list of candidates are the Republican ticket. They have won the right to run, and they have a platform. They have a program for the future of the school. They have a program for the future of the nation. They have a program for the future of the world. They have a program for the future of the individual.

The Democratic ticket is also running. They have a platform. They have a program for the future of the school. They have a program for the future of the nation. They have a program for the future of the world. They have a program for the future of the individual.

The Socialists are also running. They have a platform. They have a program for the future of the school. They have a program for the future of the nation. They have a program for the future of the world. They have a program for the future of the individual.

The Independents are also running. They have a platform. They have a program for the future of the school. They have a program for the future of the nation. They have a program for the future of the world. They have a program for the future of the individual.

The Socialist Workers are also running. They have a platform. They have a program for the future of the school. They have a program for the future of the nation. They have a program for the future of the world. They have a program for the future of the individual.

The campaign is in full swing. The candidates are working hard. The voters are voting. The elections are over. The winners have been decided. The losers have been conceded. The campaign is over.

Dear Jason

I'm writing to update you on some important news that has come to my attention. The University of Idaho, located in Moscow, Idaho, has recently announced that it is starting a new program to provide paid internships for its students. This is a significant development because it will allow students to gain valuable practical experience while still in college, which is crucial for their future careers.

The program is called the "University of Idaho Internship Program," and it is open to students from all majors. The internships will be available in a variety of fields, including business, technology, and public service. The program is designed to help students build their resumes and gain valuable skills and experience that will make them more attractive to potential employers.

I think this is a great opportunity for our students, and I wanted to make sure you were aware of it. If you have any questions or need more information, please let me know.

Best regards,
[Your Name]

Italian Orchestra To Perform Sunday

The Orchestra San Pietro of Milan, Italy, will perform five selections of classical music Sunday at 3 p.m. in Wesley Concert Hall. The concert is sponsored by the Moscow Community Concert Association and is free to all fans of chamber music.

The orchestra was formed in the late 19th century, and is comprised of some of the world's finest musicians. They are known for their beautiful renditions of classical music, and their performances are always highly anticipated.

The program will include selections from Mozart, Beethoven, and Schubert. The orchestra will be conducted by Maestro Giovanni, who is widely regarded as one of the greatest conductors of our time.

CCH Chooses Gordon Powers

Gordon Powers, President of Mines, was elected president of Citizens Mining Co. on Tuesday afternoon at the 19th annual meeting.

Other officers elected include: Peter McLeod, chairman; Martha Smith, secretary-treasurer; Mary Gladstone, counselor; and members at large - Victor McLeod, Don Howard, Leland Clark, and W. F. Heaton. The board of directors will meet at a later date.

Turkey Trot

The annual Turkey Trot is scheduled for the first time, according to the Intercollegiate Office. The 5K race will be held on Thanksgiving Day, with the finish line at the University's football field.
