Grades Lower? Faculty Says Not Much

Cringes Caused by Misunderstanding

By NEIL MORE

At the onset of each fall semester, faculty members feel that some students are not correctly understanding the grading system. These grades, as they are usually termed, are based on a 4.0 scale. The student must have a minimum of 2.0 to pass the course. Under this system, an average of 3.0 is considered to be an "A," 2.0 an "A-," 1.0 a "B," 0.0 a "C-," etc.

"I think the problem is that the students are not understanding the grading system," said Prof. Dr. R. T. Saville, head of the English Department. "They don't know what a 'C' means when they get their report cards.

"Some of them think that a 'C' is a good grade, and they're only going to get a 'C-.' They're not realizing that they have to work harder to get a 'B.'"

"I think there's also a lot of confusion about the 'A' grade. Some students think that an 'A' is the minimum requirement for a good grade, and they're only going to get a 'B.' They're not realizing that they have to work harder to get a 'B.'"

Football — Sunrise or Sunset

The Board of Regents will meet in Moscow this week and, even though the agenda is crowded with routine matters which most of the University's attention will be focused on one topic: What can be done about the losing football team? which has three straight defeats.

Football, especially, has become an international sport, and in the past few years of the golden hallo in so far as college students, particularly those of the medical profession, are concerned in their efforts to win games for the University. Idaho has had no such winning team in recent years.

This year has been different, however. Idaho's football program has been under scrutiny for the last several years. And now, during the summer months, the Idaho student-athletes are being questioned every day on the sports pages of their newspapers. Idaho did not create this situation, but it must exist in the future.

Idaho's football program has been under scrutiny for the last several years. And now, during the summer months, the Idaho student-athletes are being questioned every day on the sports pages of their newspapers. Idaho did not create this situation, but it must exist in the future.

And taking the lead of the whole thing is head football coach, Bill "Shorty" Shackle.

Before the Board of Regents met into conference on the problem, the only thing which is certain about the football program is that the situation of games has not been set for the next five years. The Idaho athletic director, Frank E. Dandridge, has made it clear that he cannot predict with any certainty what will happen in the future.

During the student-effort hours and periodical meetings of the football program, the Idaho football fans have not been at a loss. The Idaho Daily Game with University of Idaho fans and numerous others interested in the football program, almost everyone agrees for the most part to be interested in the football season. The Idaho Daily Game will meet in the near future.

The Board of Regents staff, however, that the problem has not been solved. But the successful football team has not been able to get along with Shorty.

"They have some problems which we have had to face," said Shorty. "I've been trying to figure out what the fans are thinking, and I think they're saying we need a change."

The Idaho student body and the state have been aware of their situation with the athletic program. The Board of Regents must act.
