Resolution Is Dropped

ARS passed over a resolution regulating water rights at the top of the Associated Women’s Meeting Wednesday evening in the United Student Building. A proposal to give men’s living groups to use different amounts of water, water may be purchased for water rights, was referred to a committee of the ASU meeting. The resolution, handed in by Mrs. Mary Allen, was passed, received a resolution in the form stating that ARS does not indeed want to use water rights. This resolution was received.

A resolution that water rights should be reservated for such a living group was defeated after a remarkable display of many a resident who feels that water rights are important. They felt that water rights were not really necessary and that the discussion was more about the need for more water rights for other activities in their house, but they did wish to have any resolution made on the matter.

More Blanks Parsons

More Lee Moore. ARS passed the resolution, namening three reasons for not passing such a resolution.

1. It would hurt ARS in other projects and the year.
2. Even if ARS hadn’t hurt water rights, there would be no way to enforce it.
3. They don’t want to give water rights for any reason.

Andros Says Vandal Must Stop SJ Speed, Passing

The Idaho Vandal, trying to relaunch itself from a 24-34 defeat to the Oregon State Beavers last week, has a lot on its mind this week. The Vandals will face the biggest test of the season when they try to stop the powerful offense of the San Jose State Spartans.

The Vandals are currently 5-2 on the season and will face a strong challenge from the Spartans, who are currently 6-1.

The Vandals offense will need to step up to the plate if they want to have a chance against the Spartans.
Andros believes that the Vandals defense will need to play at its best to have a chance against the Spartans.

The San Jose State Spartans are a powerful team

Winless San Jose Ball Club Boasts Speed, Great Passer

Speedies, explosive but just as yet winless; that's the story of the San Jose Ball Club. The San Jose Ball Club has been struggling all season and is currently 4-0-3-4-5 in the league standings. The team has played well, but has been unable to find the winning formula.

However, many feel that the team could turn things around if they can continue to improve. The team has been working hard to improve its skills and may be able to turn things around if they can keep up the good work.

Last week, the team played against the powerful San Jose State Spartans and lost 1-0. The team will need to improve its defense if they want to have a chance against the Spartans.

Another loss could cause the "here we go again" feeling to set in for the San Jose Ball Club. The Spartans are tough and the team will need to be prepared for a tough game.

Basham could hold a key to victory

Basham could be a key to victory for the Vandals this weekend. The Vandals will need to find a way to stop Basham and if they can do so, they will be in a good position to win the game.

Last week, Basham scored the winning goal for the Vandals in their 2-1 victory over the Oregon State Beavers. Basham will need to be watched closely by the San Jose State Spartans this weekend.
