Three Buildings Approved

Senate Okays Budget

The building fund for the University has passed both houses of the legislature, and an appropriation was approved by the Senate Wednesday night.

House action is expected within the next few days, and the Senate appropriation will provide the necessary funds for the previous legislative session.

In either case the Senate-passed bill will have to be kept in committee Monday night if the Senate intends to keep it alive. The Senate has a bill number and it is the Senate bill number.

The Senate Appropriation Committee will be responsible for keeping the bill in committee Monday night if it intends to keep it alive. The Senate Appropriation Committee will return the bill to the Senate on Monday night if it intends to keep it alive.

Who's Really To Blame?

A member of the State Legislature surprisingly criticized the Board of Regents for "its hypocrisy," which legislation he sponsored had truly done and was soon to take effect.

The city came from Edward V. Williams, representing New Seattle, County. His criticism was based on several points, such as, the Board should be the one to make the decisions and not the Legislature.

The Board had stated Tuesday that the legislators, in speaking to William's petition, must consider the Board's recommendations. The Board feels that their decisions are the best for the welfare of the University.

"The city will be entirely destroyed in the next few years." The Board's statement also expressed the Board's unwillingness to allow the Board to be dominated by legislation.

Keep Up The Good Work

A great deal of building is currently underway on campus. The administration is putting in a great deal of effort to ensure that the building process goes smoothly.

The Idaho State and House of Representatives have approved a bill authorizing the building of a new dormitory for students. The cost of the building is estimated to be around $8.5 million for University structures.

Dr. O. R. Mullins, Director of the Idaho State and House of Representatives, said, "We are satisfied with the progress being made, and we are happy with the results."

The building is expected to be completed within the next few months, and the administration is working hard to ensure that the building is completed on time.

Jim Metcalf's Campus Perspective

All the buildings we have been on are very clean and well-maintained. The Board has made an appropriate effort to improve the quality of the buildings. The Board will take the necessary steps to ensure that the buildings are up to par.

Students have also been critical of the Board's decisions. There are some of the批评 says. The Board administration has to face the problems of the buildings and make sure they are up to par. If we don't, we will have to face the consequences.

There have been three types of complaints, according to the Board. First, there have been complaints about the financial difficulties of the University. Second, there have been complaints about the Board's decisions. Third, there have been complaints about the Board's lack of communication.

KUID Begins New Series "After Probe"

The radio department of the University of Idaho has announced the beginning of a new series, "After Probe," on the station.

This series will focus on the aftermath of an investigation or probe that has taken place. It will provide an in-depth look at the events that led to the probe and the impact it had on the individuals involved.

Firstly, however, I think it is important to note the characteristics of the probe itself. In order to be considered an effective means of investigation, a probe must be thorough and fair. The series aims to address these aspects of the probe.

Finally, we will see the results of the probe and its impact on the individuals involved. We will explore the outcomes of the probe and its effects on the individuals' lives.

But it's important to note that the probe itself is only part of the story. The probe is just one tool in a larger system designed to ensure justice and fairness.

In conclusion, "After Probe" promises to be a compelling and informative series for listeners. It will provide insight into the aftermath of investigations and help us understand the complexities of these events.

Logan States Tennis
Squad Faces Rebuilding

A rebuilding task, at least in the early going, faces the Idaho tennis team, according to coach Dick Snyder.

Logan said the Vandals have an experienced team, but it lacks depth and has not had the opportunity to compete against the top teams in the nation. The Vandals are scheduled to participate in the NCAA tournament this year.

The Vandals were scheduled to compete against the top teams in the nation this year, but were forced to cancel their participation due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Snyder said the team will focus on improving its performance in the upcoming season.

Snyder Optimistic Toward Golvers' Changes; Five Back To Lead Team

Idaho's golf team is optimistic about the changes to their program, according to coach Dick Snyder.

Snyder said the changes will benefit the program in the long run. He noted that the team has been working hard to improve its performance and is looking forward to the upcoming season.

The team will be led by five returning players, including two All-American selected last year. Snyder said this group of players is more experienced and has shown improvement in their skills.

Death Causes Scotch Debate Cancellation

The International Scoring Competition (ISC) was scheduled to take place on May 5th in Vancouver, Canada. However, due to the deaths of two players, the event was cancelled.

The two players who died were members of the Scottish team, and their deaths have had a significant impact on the event. The ISC is a major international tournament that brings together the best players from around the world to compete against each other.

Of Proposals

President D. E. Thompson of the University of Idaho was one of several university presidents who met with the NCAA last week to discuss potential changes to the NCAA's governance structure.

Thompson said the University of Idaho has been working closely with the NCAA to ensure that changes to the governance structure are fair and equitable for all universities.

Snyder Observations

Boise State

Snyder said the Boise State program is well-positioned for success in the future. He noted that the Broncos have a strong coaching staff and a solid recruiting base.
