Big Weekend Planned For Parents, Idaho Alumni

By Julie Anderson, Associated Student Government

"The Vandal Big Top" comes alive at 6:30 p.m. tonight as University humanities students will present "The Play of the Phoenix," an English patos play and street dance.

Mixed with the evening's offerings, "Under the Vandal Big Top: Joe Vandal Tunes the Tiger," will be carried out in events scheduled for Idaho alumni this weekend.

"The Vandal Big Top" is sponsored by the Idaho Alumni Association and features plays presented by the Associated Student Government, Associated Student Government, and the Idaho Alumni Association. The event is free and open to all Idaho alumni and their families.

The evening will begin with "The Play of the Phoenix," a play written and directed by Idaho alumni. The play will feature music and dance by students and faculty members.

Following the play, the Associated Student Government will present "Under the Vandal Big Top: Joe Vandal Tunes the Tiger," a variety of musical performances featuring local musicians and alumni.

The event is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. today at the Idaho Alumni Association's headquarters, located at 300 E. University Ave. in Moscow. For more information, contact the Idaho Alumni Association at (208) 885-6000.

BIZZLES AND SWIZZLES

BIZZLES and Swizzles are not stitches and some stitches are not stitches. But, are these points too fine for me? They may not be stitches. This is "New Math," as taught in the Idaho Public School System. If you go to school in the University of Idaho, you are learning the Bizzles at the University. This week, you will find many students who, by the end of the week among the odd landmarks and the new landmarks, that is, the old and familiar ones. Or you may find that in relation to the growth you might have expected here, the University of Idaho is better doing as you might have thought.

University Changing

But it is not only architecture that is changing on the campus, but educational programs, the faculty and the students, and for every change there is a multitude... This year, the face of the institution was changed from a 6,000 to a 3,000 student body. The causes have been traced from the increased growth of the state's junior colleges, to increased non-resident tuition, to the advance publicity the university is making more year round than the average college... The University of Idaho is better doing as you might have thought.

Budget Settled

Another thing which causes the change in the educational programs, is the budget, which was settled in the spring. The budget, which resulted from a loss of student fees of approximately $5,000, led to a shift of the budget allocations to various student organizations and activities. For doing this excellent and unpopular work, the budget is an excellent budget. The budget allocates funds that the students have needed, the budget has increased in the last three years, and will still be equal to the most prudent allocations.... The budget was settled...--Margaret.

Government Structure

Other steps in improved student organization are being taken. The annual election will be held. The student assembly election is a reflection of the political make-up of the campus, and is a reflection of the political make-up of the campus. The student assembly election is a reflection of the political make-up of the campus, and is a reflection of the political make-up of the campus.

Apportionment Structure

Elective representatives are apportioned according to the number of students voting in the election. The number of students voting for each representative is based on the total number of votes cast. The number of students voting for each representative is based on the total number of votes cast. The number of students voting for each representative is based on the total number of votes cast.

Social Life Comes To Halt; Coeds Hit By Phone Crisis

Social life on the University of Idaho campus has come to a grinding, screaming, thundering halt. The phone service is not in operation and students are being inconvenienced and disturbed. Oh, sure, maybe.

This seems to say something for the phone service on the University at large. The girls of the University's future might be too great a tax on the phone. This leaves the girls shuffling blindly and not so silently.

However, the phone crisis seems to have brought out an unexpectedistik Greek spirit in some young men. One recently observed a boy come out of the dorms and actually pick up a phone and actually talk to her on a color phone. He then actually got dressed and actually talked. There are many in the situation after all.

And then there's the Homecoming situation. Many girls don't have dates for the affair because the Idaho men can't or don't have the energy to get to know them.

But here's where the independents have all the fun. They are all the University's singles and those numbers just come through the switchboard and not the main Moscow phone office. However, too bad about the Greeks who try to add is number of independents or vice versa. They might get the next seat to each other and could get a good thing going. If they do in the next seat, they can actually hook a ring in the switchboard and not be heard.

And, of course, there is the spectacle of people standing in line on the main switchboard to hear on the phone. With a half a brain (in their hands) they want to make a long-distance phone call on a color phone.

Here's the idea: if you really want to make a phone call, you don't call on the main phone. You get the number of the other phone and call on that phone. Then you call it. If this lasts long enough, many more and more people will get marriaged and graduate marriage will go down in the history of the University.

Perhaps this is the answer to the population explosion—no phones?

There are no classes in the university.

One random thought on the whole situation. We wonder if that lack of social life will be reflected in the next week's grades. Who knows. I.M.B.

Students Chose Poor Way To Give Support

We lost the Idaho Vandals yesterday. It was not a game of the season, and there was no reason why we should have been interested. Someone else was interested and made a mistake.

"We lost" were the words said by many Idaho students. However, there was no need for anyone to worry. We are with the Vandals in every way. Support will be given to the Vandals.

The Vandals ream every one of us in the stands. This week they will play their lives. Right now is when we have to show our colors. The Vandals are in their first game of the season and are behind 100 percent. We have confidence in them in every game they have against the Vandals. They are the Vandals.

Come win this weekend.

The coaching staff win want it. Why not show the Vandals that you are behind them. The Vandals are coaches and are trying their best—are we the students doing our share?

Unfortunately there is no one who wants to be a winner and a loser. Naturally everyone wants to win.

Editorial

We're in the middle of the season and the open road beckons. We still have our songs and our games. However, we still have our songs and our games. We still have our songs and our games.

The open road will have its day, and we will hope that it will have its day. The open road will have its day, and we will hope that it will have its day. The open road will have its day, and we will hope that it will have its day.

Walk Planned by Math Prof. To Promote Cystinosis Fund

With a large battle balloon around his neck and an engrossed audience in suspense, the professor of mathematics at the University of Washington, Professor X, spoke about the importance of mathematics in the field of cystinosis.

A small crowd gathered around as Professor X explained that mathematics is not only a tool for solving complex problems but also a means to promote social causes.

Professor X then introduced the concept of the Cystinosis Fund, an initiative aimed at raising awareness and funds to support research into cystinosis, a rare genetic disorder that affects the kidneys and other organs.

Professor X emphasized the importance of early detection and treatment, stating that "the Cystinosis Fund aims to bridge the gap between research and real-world impact." He further highlighted the success of previous fundraising efforts, noting that the Cystinosis Fund had already raised significant funds, enabling important research and treatment advances.

He concluded by thanking the audience for their support and expressing his confidence in the future of the Cystinosis Fund, stating that "together, we can make a difference in the lives of those affected by cystinosis."
Veterans Attendance Cards Due In Boise Tomorrow

Veterans Administration officials in Boise have instructed veterans administration centers in Boise tomorrow in order to receive benefits. Veterans administration centers do not have to be closed by request for veterans cutting major programs. Larry Lees, head of the Boise office, will receive complaints from veterans administration centers in Boise this fall to prevent some veteran benefits. The veterans are busy and the labor of veterans has been noted for this period of time. Veterans are directed to the Veterans Administration in Boise directly to the students. A copy of the document showing discharge or separation for service in the Armed Forces and the length of service required. The benefits will be received at some time between Oct. 15 and 20 if the cards are not lost in transit. Veterans must submit the veterans administration centers in Boise this fall to prevent some veteran benefits. The veterans are busy and the labor of veterans has been noted for this period of time. Veterans who have served 30 to 60 days in service or more will be eligible for one month of benefits for each month of service. Pacific Will Give Vandals Big Test

Frosh Football Prospects Good

By Tim Hertel

University of the Pacific, under new coach Doug Hollenbeck, who presides over the new frosh football squad, today got its first glimpse of the 1966 squad in action against a visiting squad from the University of Idaho.

Tigers To Display Power And Talent

The Tigers will be in the Division I-AA, but they have a good team in their backfield, with halfback Steve Gottlieb, quarterback Kenwood Stange and fullback Bud Page. The Tigers have a good defense, and their backs are very fast. They will be a tough team to beat.

Just How Great Is Thunder Ray?

With a Big Day tomorrow against the University of Idaho, Idaho's bracing and taking over second place in the Idaho Falls league, Ray McDonnell, Idaho's top running back, has had a chance to observe the Vandals and their football team.

The Vandals have a good secondary, but their defense is not as strong as theirs in the conference, which is probably why they are not as successful.

The Vandals will be at home next week, and the Idaho game is their biggest test of the season. They have a good chance to win, but they must prove they can beat the Vandals to have a chance of making the championship game.
