

A Crisis For National Consciousness - Lewis

by JEAN MONROE

Student members of the dead Alpha Phi Omega chapter, the group that is the nucleus of the campus, have been dismissed by the Board of Regents. The official reason given for the dismissal is that the chapter did not comply with the university's regulations. However, the real reason is that the chapter's activities are not approved by the administration.

The chapter was founded in 1955 and has been active on campus ever since. It has been a leader in student affairs and has been involved in many activities, including political campaigns, social events, and community service.

The chapter was dissolved on Monday, and the members were notified by letter. The letter stated that the chapter had been dissolved because it had failed to comply with the university's regulations. The letter also stated that the chapter would be dissolved if it did not comply with the regulations in the future.

The chapter's members were shocked and saddened by the announcement. They had been active on campus for many years and had made many contributions to the university community. They were also disappointed that the university had chosen to dissolve the chapter rather than work with it to resolve the problems that had caused the dissolution.

The chapter's members are now looking for a way to continue their activities on campus. They are also considering legal action to challenge the university's decision.

The university's decision to dissolve the chapter raises questions about the role of student organizations on campus. It also raises questions about the university's commitment to freedom of speech and expression.

The chapter's dissolution is a significant event for the university community, and it is likely to have a significant impact on the university's future.

Traffic accidents are the leading cause of student deaths at the University of Idaho. We urge you not to drink and drive. Please drive sensibly while driving home this week, and while you are away from Idaho.

My Column

By Morris Brown

Two reports of the recent terrorism of events have yet to reoccur in the Messiah campaign this year.

Second is the fact that the violent death of the young President is the most important question of the Messiah's career.

Rings N' Things

THE LARGEANNIVERSARY

The campus came to a standstill yesterday when the popular band of the year, the Toilet Hill Band, performed on the steps of the Administration Building. The crowd was massive, with hundreds of students and faculty members gathered to enjoy the music. The band played a variety of songs, including popular hits and some of their own compositions. The performance concluded with a curtain call and a hearty round of applause from the audience.

ECOLOGY

The Environment Committee held a meeting yesterday evening to discuss the recent incident involving the destruction of a campus tree. The committee members expressed their concern over the incident and vowed to take action to prevent similar incidents in the future. They also discussed the need for greater awareness among students and faculty about the importance of protecting the environment.

VISIONARY

A new publication, entitled "The Student Voice," was launched yesterday. The publication, which will be published bi-weekly, aims to provide a platform for students to express their views on various issues. The first issue includes articles on campus life, society and culture, and politics. The publication has already received positive feedback from students and faculty members.

Regulations

Following the recent incidents on campus, the Student Council has implemented new regulations to ensure the safety and well-being of the students. The regulations include stricter enforcement of the campus curfew, increased security patrols, and a ban on the use of loudspeakers during late hours. The Student Council has also issued a statement expressing its commitment to creating a safe and inclusive environment for all students.

FALL DEBATE

The annual Fall Debate, "The Future of Education," was held yesterday. The debate featured two prominent educators who discussed the future of education in the context of technological advancements and changing societal expectations. The audience was engaged in the discussion, with many students expressing their own views on the topic.

Bible Reading In Schools

"Bible Reading in the Public Schools" will be discussed at the next meeting of the Faculty Club. The panel will include experts in education and religion to share their perspectives on the issue.

U-Brass Band

The University Brass Band will be performing at the "Music in the Park" event this Saturday. The band will be playing a variety of classical and contemporary compositions.

Sets Colorful For Niccolio

Colorful costumes and set design showcase the Indianapolis Children's Theater production of "The Little Prince," which will be presented Dec. 1-7 by the Children's Theatre Guild. The show features a cast of talented young actors and is directed by the theater's artistic director, who is also the creator of the production.

Idaho's MUN Studies For West Coast

The MUN team will be preparing for a trip to the West Coast, where they will participate in a model United Nations conference. The team members will be representing various countries and will work together to advance their country's interests. They aim to strengthen their negotiating skills and leadership abilities through this experience.

Winkler To Speak To Young Democrats

The Young Democrats will be hosting a meeting with speaker Bob Winkler, who will discuss current political issues and the role of young people in shaping the future. The event is open to all students, and tickets are available for purchase.

Injury Hinders Doss' Playing Next Year A Different Story

Jim Faucher's behind the scoreboard

You CAN'T EXCEPT A HURT!

The football season was ended early this week, a very painful tribute to a great American who was no longer a member of our team.

By this time the paper reaches you, many things will have happened since the last game.

Injury to the leg of John Doss, running back for the Vandals, has ended his career for the season.

Doss, a senior, was injured during the game against the team from Idaho State.

Although he is now active, he will not be able to play in the next game.

The Vandals will have to rely on their other backs, who will be called upon to fill the void.

AYAP Will Hear Dr. Peck Speak
