Drama presents Hedda Gabler Thursday evening

Checking costumes for Hedda Gabler are Janie Cooke, Nays and Rebecca Barnes, right. The performance, which is free to students with valid IDs, will take place 8 p.m. in the school's auditorium. The off-Broadway production is leased from New Seals.

"That's the last we know that the Hedda has seen of some form, but it has been completely designed by Thompson himself," director Doreen合同 said.

The smoke suddenly started, and then the stage was completely black, the lights were turned off, and the actors began to move in the darkness, creating a sense of mystery and suspense. The theme of the play centers around the characters of Hedda Gabler, her problems, actions, and resulting tragedies.
Bag Class Officers

Vote today to abolish class officers. This might seem to be a destructive move, but it's not. It's a step toward more efficient student government. By eliminating the time and energy wasted on non-essential tasks, the student government will have more time to focus on those duties that truly contribute to the student body. It's a move to save the student body from the burden of class officers.

If it's a lucky candidate who receives the endorsement of more than one political party, ultimately, however, the bid is won with the students. So, in the final analysis, the submitted endorsement of a political party to the class officer will be secondary.

A spiritual event in the Student Union Building basement. The display will be featured until Oct. 30. Second, we will have exhibits displayed all over the county, and was recently awarded the first prize price from the City of Portland Art Center.

Team member William R. Sumner, a student of the University of Idaho, was awarded high varsity galleries in the season, according to the Lewis County, science graduate student in agricultural science. The team has maintained high marks in the combined beef and dairy judging and grading and has earned in both divisions.

Other team members are David L. Seawell, a member of the Idaho State University, and James A. Teel, a member of the University of Idaho. The team has been invited to the National Judging and Grading competition at the University of Idaho. The team has been invited to the National Judging and Grading competition at the University of Idaho.

Presently, an attempt is being made to abolish class offices at the University of Idaho. Admittedly, there are problems present in the class officer structure, but these are problems which exist in all of student government, and we the undersigned do not feel the solution to these problems is abolishment of the entire system.

We feel, rather, that a better solution is to give offices a meaningful role. By shifting the responsibility of class officers from that of an activity planning body to one with an active role in the policy making realm of student government, we feel this can be done. We the undersigned support this positive course of improvement rather than a negative plan of abolishment.

Therefore, do not throw away the most representative body which is now given you in student government.
