School Board turns down U-I bus request

The University of Moscow School District buses for off-campus transportation of students and staff was denied a second time Monday night when school board President John E. Knecht, who also is an Idaho State University student, challenged the decision.

Mr. Knecht, of Pullman, Wash., told the board the decision is nothing new. It has been reversed many times, including in the 1960's. The board turned down the proposal again, after reviewing the matter for some time.

State provides $5 million for student education loans

"Secretary of Education announced Wednesday that he had been asked by the Idaho Endowment Investment Board that it had to set aside an arrangement which would provide for five million dollars of school enrollment funds to aid the needy. The Secretary of Education told the board that the arrangement was not acceptable. The arrangement would have guaranteed 50 percent of the costs of the university.

"This is one of the most gratifying actions I think," said the Secretary. "Using Idaho school bonds for direct benefit of Idaho students through cooperation of Idaho banks makes it a true public benefit program."

The Secretary of Education said that the state has already been granted a high and substantial rate of return, with a guaranteed 50 percent profit. A return on the bonds of about 10 percent would make the bonds a true public benefit program. The Secretary of Education said that the arrangement was not acceptable. The arrangement would have guaranteed 50 percent of the costs of the university.

Student Committee for Equity in Education

SCEC, a student organization for equity in education, will hold a meeting Friday, Oct. 18, at 2 p.m. in the E-Board of the Idaho State University, Boise.

SCEC, Student Committee for Equity in Education, has been formed to work on the problems of the disadvantaged in the state and to bring awareness to the issues.

SCEC seeks to provide the extra financial, academic, and moral support of many of these people in order to help them in their pursuit of college. SCEC's aid is available to all students - Hispanic, African-American, and poor students.

SCEC's main goal is to help students of minority disadvantaged groups. The committee will hold meetings at the University of Idaho and at other locations in the state.

University forest ecology professor returns to Idaho from project in Honduras

Fred D. Johnson, associate professor of forest ecology at the University of Idaho, has returned from Central America, where he has been conducting a research project in the area of tropical forestry. The field research, which is supported by a grant from the United States Agency for International Development, was conducted in Ecuador and Colombia.

The “.hadoop pines” forest near by the town of Manta, Ecuador, is unique and is a valuable area for the study of tropical forest ecology. The professor conducted his research in the area for three months, collecting data on the growth and development of the pine trees.

The research in the area of tropical forestry is a joint effort between the University of Idaho and the Ecuadorian Government. The project is designed to provide information on the growth and development of pine trees in the area for use in the development of sustainable forestry practices.

Freshman football boasts 53 players

A look at the season's initials Freshman football team promises some exciting action this fall. With 53 players, several techs for Vandal fans to come in years to come.

The 1968 freshman squad compared to the total of 57 in the defensive players, is not the biggest team in years. Their laurel shall pass this year's. Recruiting by the coaching staff brought in 3 returning high school players, especially the best in the northwest, such as young All Conference, All State, or similar colleges.

Some notable are All State running back Don Miller of Bear River, and perhaps the best high school quarterback in the Idaho Empire, Bear Creek of Moscow and Rich Smithsonian of Spokane.

In addition, fourteen unreported, but no less outstanding players have earned the rank to be hard fighting Vandal.

Educational television system discussed before state heads

The proposed statewide educational television system "serves a whole week of new opportunities," for educating Idaho's youth and for giving general cultural programs, a Senator Broadcasting official said Friday.

Edward B. Husband, New York City vice chairman of the National Broadcasting Co., told a committee meeting here Thursday that the system could broaden educational offerings to Idaho's youth.

Auditions announced by music foundation

The San Francisco Symphony Foundation has announced its annual auditions to be held December 1-4 for young instrumentalists through 18.

Cohn plans national NBC

Six will be awarded to the auditions. Five will be offered in two separate categories: Piano, Strings, and Wind.

The outstanding artist in the entire competition will appear as soloist with the San Francisco Symphony under the conductorship of Harold S. Bauer of the CBS Symphony. The other artist will be chosen by the judges.

The first round of the competition will be open to the public December 2 at the San Francisco Memorial Auditorium. San Francisco Masonic Auditorium will hold the second-round judging.

Previously open only to artists in the western states, the auditions program will be open to nationals. The application forms can be obtained from the San Francisco Symphony Foundation, 83 Market Street, San Francisco 11, California. Application deadline is November 1.

ASUI president to attend four day national meeting

University of Idaho Associate Vice-President Robert M. Coe and Associated Students President Jim Willard have departed the campus for Washington, D.C., to attend a banquet and conference with the national ASU leadership at the Bureau of Education and other national ASU organizations.

Future of the conference, sponsored by the American Student Government of the United States, is to give student government presidents and their respective insulator representatives the opportunity to meet and discuss national issues, and to form three boards which will shape the future of higher education.

Representatives attending the conference will include Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Finch, Dr. James C. Allen, Jr., Commissioner of Education, John Linn, director of the American Student Foundation, Frank W. Blackard, New York Times, Dr. Robert David, general secretary of the American Association of University Professors, and Arch B. Stein, executive vice-president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Group discussions will be held on the future of higher education, student social problems, codes of conduct, student loans, federal research, and student attendance.

More than 5000 persons from colleges throughout the nation are expected to attend the meeting.

Graduate students study small animals

Wild animals, small--not at the research subjects of two University of Idaho graduate students.

Richard E. Winters is studying magpie, violet and black-footed ferrets to learn more about their breeding habits. Winters, who also is known as the Idaho State ferret, black-footed ferret and black-footed ferret collector, is an assistant professor of the biology department.

A house decoration contest will be held during All Idaho Week. Colors that can be used for decorating the outside of the living groups are orange, black, silver and gold.

According to Kathy Thompson, chairman, decorations must follow one of three themes: 1) Idaho Vandals vs. BYU Bengals, 2) WU vs. ISU, NCAA Centennial, or 3) All-Media Week. The decorations will be judged Friday, Sept. 26. Winners will be announced at the All-Idaho Week half-time ceremony.

The University of Idaho College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Resources is planning a three-day field course in outdoor resources development for local government officials. September 28-30.

Designed to acquaint Idaho city and county officials with modern recreation principles and methods, assisting them to plan and develop recreation facilities, the field course will feature addresses by experts in the field of recreation and a tour of the university's new recreation demonstration and research area.

This 13-hour area, located about 15 miles northwest of Moscow, was built to show what can be done with an area and to demonstrate recreation to state and local officials.

According to Howard R. Alden, associate professor of recreation resources, the conference and dedication of the recreation demonstration area will feature three sessions of five hours each.

Wednesday evening, park visitors will have the opportunity of seeing about 150 million worth of existing funds from the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for that development.
