REGENTS APPROVE $1,082,063 IN EDUCATION FUNDS

By Bill Eyreplad

On Wednesday evening, the Idaho Historic Preservation Commission met in the Board of Regents' Room of the Administration Building of the University of Idaho to hear the report of the State Historic Preservation Office. The meeting lasted approximately two hours and was attended by members of the Commission and some interested parties.

During the meeting, the Commission was presented with a report on the progress made in the preservation of historic properties within the state. The report included information on the status of various projects, such as the restoration of the Old Capitol building in Boise and the renovation of the Idaho State Penitentiary.

The Commission discussed the need for increased funding to support these preservation efforts. They also heard a presentation on the potential benefits of preserving historic properties, including increased tourism and educational opportunities.

After hearing the report, the Commission voted to approve the funding request, with some conditions. They directed the State Historic Preservation Office to continue working on the projects and to keep them updated on the progress.

The meeting was adjourned at approximately 9:30 p.m. The next meeting is scheduled for March 15, 1975.

Great Painters and Their Art

Exceptional treatments and educational as well. Each cent-erot count...to the traditional and the modern, the great masters and the genuine geniuses of the last century. Every brushstroke is evoked. True and false, what is and is not. The book has been arranged so that the student will not have to read more than he needs to know in order to understand the problem of art.

MUN follows procedure of General Assembly

By Kit Poyner

The Michigan Student Assembly (M.S.A.) follows the procedures of the General Assembly as closely as possible. This is a fact which is often not realized by those who are not familiar with the student body of the University of Michigan. The Michigan Student Assembly is a representative body of all Michigan high school students, who are members of the National Student Association. M.S.A. members hold this office for one year and then may run for re-election.

The primary objective of the United States is to secure the peaceful, unification and stability of the world. To this end, the United States has taken a leading role in the United Nations. The United States is interested in the peaceful, unification and stability of the world. To this end, the United States has taken a leading role in the United Nations. The General Assembly is the body of the United Nations that meets to consider the problems of the world. The United States is represented in the General Assembly by its delegate, Dr. Frank Stearns, and by the United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations, John W. S. Layde.

Sports club sponsor's Autocross

by Jim Llatt

The Sports Car Club of America was a big success last Sunday at Easton, Pennsylvania. Despite many forecasters who predicted a low turnout, the event proved otherwise.

As the rain fell the course became slip and slippery, causing drivers to find out exactly how their cars handled under wet conditions. The car was set up in the throttle position and a 3/4 mile long straight. It was a light car concept sitting mainly on sections of slicks with open straights in between.

The club wishes to extend its sincerest thanks to the sponsors that made the event possible. The sponsors' names can be seen on the entry lists. Thirty cars, ranging from a few of the bigger clubs to some of the smaller clubs came out for the event. Some of the competitors withdrew when the rain came, but not decided to press on.

SPORTS OPINION

By Nick Cooper

The Big Sky Conference school presidents will meet tomorrow to discuss the proposed changes to the league's format. The Big Sky conferences is currently divided into two divisions, North and South. The changes are expected to affect the number of games played by teams within each division, as well as the number of games played against teams from other divisions.

The Big Sky conference is considering the formation of a single, unified conference that would encompass both the North and South divisions. This change is expected to increase the competitiveness of the league and provide a more challenging conference schedule for teams.

The Big Sky conference is also considering the possibility of expanding the conference to include additional schools. This expansion could have a significant impact on the conference's structure and the number of games played by teams within the conference.

T Jefferson
Neale Stadium history recounted

Neale Stadium, for 30 years the heart of Idaho football games, was badly damaged by the late Sunday evening in an ugly blaze raced through the already condemned area of the old structure.

The stadium was first dedicated in the fall of 1938 on the campus, and was named for Merle Neale, president of the University of Idaho from 1930 to the spring of 1938.

It served a number of games which viewed that first game of the season in 38, as the Idaho Vandals hosted the Oregon State Beavers for Idaho's first game and the incineration in the new stadium.

Topping off the dedication ceremonies that day was the close 7-0 win over the Bachelor's for coach Ted Bank and the Vandals.

The excitement generated during this game proved too much for Dean John Kranz, who was then Dean of the College of Letters and Science. Kranz and suffered a heart attack among the game and succumbed from the same.

The Vandals' first loss in Neale Stadium came later this same season, as the Washington State Cougars downed the Vandals 13-0.

Without knowing that they were playing the first game in the long history of the stadium, last year's Vandals hung on to a new indicator to defeat the Weber Wildcats 50-42 in one of the highest scoring games in the school's history.

Although the Vandals were in favor at half-time by a comfortable 26-2 margin, the Wildcats came "crying back" to score 40 points in the second half — 30 of them in the fourth quarter making the end of the game one to be long remembered in Vandals football history.

inspection of the stadium last summer found the roof and walls too dangerous for occupancy this fall, causing Idaho to play its three home games in Pullman, and ending an era of Neale Stadium activities.

Plans for a new stadium have been under way for some time now, and upon its completion Neale Stadium will remain only as a memory.

Fire!

"Go, fire, go..." by Carolyn Cox.

"Neale Stadium is burning down!" Excited words raced through living groups across campus as flames raced through Neale Stadium late Sunday night. Some 1000 students gathered at the stadium in what was called the "highlight of the social season."

"We should have been the firemen," one spectator said. "It's a shame they have to mess up the fun!"

Another excited student commented, "My parents should have stayed. This is a lot better than any of the Dad's Day activities."

Other concerns heard inside the stadium grounds went exactly circular.

The planning committee should have arranged for more pullouts."

"That press box was just like home. I can't remember how many times I back there."

"They should have banned the school."

"Who's going to pay for the repairs?"

"It's a shame they didn't finish the season. Everyone's here."

"It's completely burning, it's completely burned."

"They should have called the firemen."

"What did they make poppers for?"

"It's one way they killed the afternoon."

"One guy got the worst of the smoke."

"I wish they'd burn down the sky."

"We have one more week end."

"My best and closest, let's have dinner."

"Who's going to watch my fire?"

"It's not a commercial pad."

"I should have brought my class."

"The Fourth of July was worse than this."

"The third floor was bad enough."

"In fact, it was bad enough."

And one student, wearing an armband, commented: "The foster father for a week down... Thousands of fires are changing..."
