Holly Week abandons on campus

For the first time in more than a decade the Holly Week, according to John Warner, president of the Student Council of Boise State College, is going to be held next year. Holly Week, formerly sponsored by the dramatic club, was scratch due to financial support by William F. Smith, president of Boise State College. This year, however, Smith offered the students of Boise State College a challenge, should they be able to raise $300 in ten days, to have Holly Week again. The students accepted the challenge and were able to raise $300, but the Holly Week activities were canceled due to lack of time and energy. Holly Week activities included the selection of a Holly Queen, a Blue Box dance, general costumes and decorations for Holly Week, and a chili cook-off among groups and a chili cook-off among individuals.

Father O'Rourke speaks to Idaho students

Father Joseph O'Rourke, a Jesuit priest from Boston College, was speaking to the students of Boise State College. He talked about the spiritual and intellectual challenges facing American society and the role of the church in society. He also discussed the importance of education and the role of the university in society. O'Rourke was asked to speak about the role of the University in society, and he stated that the University must be a place where students can learn about the world and how to use their knowledge for the betterment of society.

Graduation stipulations are liberalized, states Dr. Green

Dr. Leon Green, chairman of the University of Idaho's Liberal Arts Committee, announced that the university has liberalized its graduation stipulations. The new stipulations will allow students to graduate with a lower GPA than required in the past. Students will now have the opportunity to choose their own courses, and they will not be required to take courses that they do not feel comfortable with. The new stipulations will also allow students to complete their degree requirements in a shorter amount of time.

ASUI traveling Art Show to tour colleges in February

A traveling art show sponsored by the ASUI will be touring various colleges in Idaho and southern Washington starting in February. The show will feature artwork created by alumni and will be displayed in public places. The show will be open to the public and will be free of charge. The show will also include a raffle for a chance to win a trip to San Francisco.

Graduating Idaho seniors can meet employers

Graduating Idaho seniors who want to find employment after graduation have an opportunity to meet employers at two upcoming Career Days. The first Career Day is scheduled for December 30, 1968, at the University of Idaho, and the second is scheduled for February 7, 1969, at Boise State College. This is an opportunity for seniors to meet with potential employers and get information about job opportunities in their fields of study.

Group forms against war, Moratorium

An organizing meeting of Students for Peace and Freedom in Washington was held at the Idaho Union Building at 7:45 p.m. on Thursday, December 5. The group is formed to bring about a united front in the campus student community, and to present the leaders of the Idaho Student Moratorium with the large petition to be delivered to the governor of Idaho. The group will also hold a meeting to discuss the future of the Moratorium movement in Idaho.
Christmas—longer each year

"Oh Come All Ye Faithful" is often heard for a few days before Christmas, but I believe it should be played once a year, if not weekly, and in the future it should begin now. The reason is that Christmas is beginning to be shortened by one day every year.

The Christmas season begins on Thanksgiving Day, and ends on Christmas Day. However, the average person does not start thinking about Christmas until about November 1st, and many people do not buy their presents until about December 15th. This means that the Christmas season is only about 25 days long.

But the Christmas season is getting shorter. In 1970, the average person started thinking about Christmas on November 1st. In 1971, the average person started thinking about Christmas on November 10th. In 1972, the average person started thinking about Christmas on November 20th. In 1973, the average person started thinking about Christmas on December 1st. In 1974, the average person started thinking about Christmas on December 15th.

This is a serious problem, because the Christmas season is the most important holiday of the year. It is the time when we give gifts to our friends and family, and it is the time when we get together with our loved ones. It is also the time when we remember the true meaning of Christmas, which is the birth of Jesus Christ.

If we want to have a meaningful Christmas season, we need to start thinking about it earlier. In the future, I believe that the Christmas season should begin on Thanksgiving Day, and end on January 1st. This would give us 73 days to think about Christmas, and to prepare for it.

I believe that the Christmas season is getting shorter because people are not taking it seriously. They are not giving it the attention that it deserves. They are not planning for it in advance.

10 things America's new small cars won't talk about.

Now talk about these small cars we can't keep in inventory.

For example: (1) a compact-sized car with less passengers, (3) an extra seat of seating inside the vehicle, (5) thick and dry ice conditions that keep the motor running, and (9) it's a very tall car by daylight. (5) It's an electric-powered car with no emissions. (9) It's a compact-sized car with less passengers, (2) a very small car, and (3) an extra seat of seating inside the vehicle.

Sound economic base seen for counties

A sound economic base is seen for Bonner County and Boundary County for the long run. A report released today by the University of Idaho states that "the principal natural resources of the area - farming land, timber, water, scenery, space and climate - are fast becoming a national asset, and it is likely that such a situation continues to grow." The study is based on a series of interviews with farmers and businessmen in the area. The report further states that "the area's natural resources are more valuable than ever before and that it is likely that this situation continues to grow."
