Non-returnables would be banned in proposed law

A preliminary proposal proposing an affirmative licensing law banning use of non-returnables was introduced Tuesday by Secretary of State Don Betts.

The petition was set by the Edmo.

The proposal, a long awaited request from the University of Idaho, would permit students to use non-returnables.

The initiative proposal contains a list of non-returnables for beer and soft drinks as returnable and refund payment of five cents.

Judge Griffith, chairman of the University Senate, favoring the proposal, said the legislation would be brought to the University Senate and the other college legislative bodies, most of them associated with the proposal.

Judge Griffith said the signatures must be collected by Nov. 2 to qualify the referendum. This proposal was to appear on the November ballot.

Judge Griffith (and another proposal will also be submitted to the University Senate for consideration to those that may show potential for the nation.

The petitions are presented by Griffith, chairman of the State Senate, and Griffith, chairman of the University Senate.

Communications is the key to solving problems in the United States and in the world, says the University of Idaho's Adjunct Facultyeditor, Bill Forgacs.

"In the current political climate, the educated community is trying to study the situation in the world and the university community is trying to study the situation in the world and the university community is trying to study the world situation," Forgacs said.

"It is important to have a clear understanding of the world we are going to live in," Forgacs said.

The university is sending a letter to the state legislature asking for the establishment of a separate Adjunct Faculty Board to deal with the world situation.

Frankly Speaking

"Junk" the drug survey

After several months of planning and hunting, the ASU sponsored drug survey was sent out last week to a random sample of 12,000 students. The four-page survey asked respondents to check yes or no to every single name listed in a student directory, according to survey director Gary Kriete.

Unfortunately, it is too late to do anything now about the survey. The student funds and the go-ahead were gained in the waning months of office by the outgoing student senate. The "survey" of which many now read, including the newspaper staff, is designed.

It was finished at last Tuesday evening's senate meeting, where several members learned about anything going on. (This is understandable since the survey was delayd by the outgoing senate and the administration of organizing.)

To the best of our knowledge, the survey will be sent out on Wednesday, the first of the meeting of the senate where the survey was sent, and it will be eminently "un-" agricultural and "unhistorical," as no check will be made with the survey, but now, however, the question becomes a pressing one as we have not seen the survey, the one that was received in the senate.

Here's the student who received the survey: do not respond to the survey, since it will be changed before the survey is used. As such, its usefulness is nil, including the entire student-union being nullified, the entire survey.

Privilege implies responsibility

Joe Allen...

Government of Iowa

Governing has been a call to the people, not just nation, but world. It is our responsibility to uphold and maintain the public welfare and ethical standards, the purpose of which is to prevent the destruction of personal freedoms. That is why we believe that the government is responsible for the welfare of the nation and the people of the state.

In our government, the people have given us the right to elect their government officials. We owe it to those we serve to uphold and promote the principles of democracy and free government.

In doing any individual's part, we are not only playing our responsibility, we also play our country's role in the world.

Justice for all

Finally, we believe that it is possible to use the expression "Justice and Liberty" in the form of a call to duty. It is our responsibility to uphold and maintain the public welfare and ethical standards, the purpose of which is to prevent the destruction of personal freedoms. That is why we believe that the government is responsible for the welfare of the nation and the people of the state.

Willing to walk, not talk

Walk stresses hunger problem

A Walk for Development will be sponsored by the Washington State University chapter of the American Friends Service Committee, set for Thursday, May 5, beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing through the day in Pullman.

The main emphasis of the Walk is to show the people of the community that there is a problem of hunger in the world and that there are people who are willing to work to help solve the problems instead of just talking about them," said a member of the Pullman chapter.

The Walk for Development is sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee of the late President John F. Kennedy.

The program has provided an opportunity for thousands of Americans to become involved in the war to hunger. The Walk involves participants of all ages. Each walker gets sponsorships to pledge an amount of money for every mile that they walk.

The Walker is not obligated to walk the entire distance but is encouraged to walk at his own speed. The Pullman Walk will be at 16 miles and goes to various places around the city.

The Pullman Walk will begin with registration at 7:30 a.m. Saturday in the Kennedy Theater. The Walk will begin at 8 a.m. and ends at noon. The Walkers are provided with a seed dinner and a boxed lunch.

The American Friends Service Committee is the national committee to support, voluntarily, the worldwide Friends Service Concern branch of the international Quaker Fellowship, which is an extension of the Quaker (or Friends) faith.

The Walk is to be supported by local and corporate soft drink projects which have been approved by the local planning committee and then approved by the National headquarters.

Sundberg advises joint meeting

Sundberg advises joint meeting new ways to see community needed.

"We need to develop new ways of serving our communities," Dr. Norman D. Sundberg, dean, School of Community Affairs, University of Idaho, Idaho Falls, Idaho, said.

"As concerned people, we must stay thinking of serving communities of the future to the communities of the present," he said.

"We must be concerned about the service and the character of the communities we design.

"The meeting continues through workshops with small group discussion groups and a business meeting of the new organization.

The original German film version of the story "Cantata and the Darpressor," by the contemporary German writer, Eich Kausser, will be shown Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., in the Beckh Theater.

Students design workable projects

Students of Chemistry and Physics at Lewiston State College have designed a workable project for the Idaho Department of Tourism and the Province of Quebec, Canada. The project involves the design and construction of a water treatment plant for the Province of Quebec. The students have designed a plant that can treat 100,000 gallons of water per day, and the project is estimated to cost $5 million. The project is expected to be completed within two years.

Goat tying—one of the women's events in rodeo

Goat tying, one of the three of the women's events in rodeo. It's a challenging event that requires skill and speed. The objective is to tie a goat's legs and secure it using a rope. The woman participant must complete the task as quickly as possible without hurting the goat. It's an event that tests the agility and finesse of the competitors. The competition usually takes place in rodeos across the United States and involves various age groups. The event is not just about winning; it's also about demonstrating respect for animals. The goat tying event is a testament to the tradition and culture of rodeo.
