Satellite SUB being considered by committee

by Dona Uhlhorn

A new committee to study the possibility of a new satellite student building has been created by the Idaho Student Senate. The committee will study various satellite building plans submitted by the Idaho State Senate, especially the plans of the University of Washington, Idaho State University, Idaho State College, Idaho College, and Boise State College. The committee will meet to discuss the feasibility of satellite buildings and will consider the availability of land and potential costs. The committee will present their findings to the Idaho Student Senate.

Changes in the SUB

The SUB, as it is often called, refers to the Student Union Building — a structure built and paid for, in part, by students, and intended for student use. Many credibility of dissatisfaction have been circulating among students in past months, concerning the fact that the SUB can be used by the students but is not accessible to vendors or sub-contractors. Various of the different aspects included in the SUB.

This problem has been recognized by both Executive Board and SUB-Board as well as the student body, with various suggestions ranging from eliminating all SUB rentals down to constructing another building on campus. However, the SUB must be utilized by some entrepreneurs' groups, groups, in any kind of business.

It appears, however, that SUB-Board may be putting together a task force to address the issue, and it should have been done all along. A lot presented at 6:30 tonight that 2 SUB hours was chartered to SUB-Board, and it is now being viewed by the interested bodies.

Annual catalog would benefit University

An annual catalog is under consideration by the administration and the finance committees, in the present time, that would be published every year, including current student areas and faculty. To actively promote the catalog, various printings and policies of the SUB have been a weak arm of the students for several years. The SUB-Board is suggesting action to revitalize the catalog in such a way as to make it more meaningful in the future.

It seems likely that the SUB-Board has not functioned in the way it was intended. As a result, it has not been used, at least to some extent.

It is suggested that the SUB-Board be more actively involved in view of the limited hours for students on campus in the next two years, it is easy to contact larger campuses within the Student Union. Here SUB-Board will not necessarily be a success, but it appears that limited hours are a success.

Maturity

The Faculty Council hasn't come of age

In the present structure of the University, the Faculty Council hasn't achieved the level of maturity and effectiveness needed for the sake of the students. The Council is a body that is called to seek the needs and the problems of the faculty. This failure is due not primarily to the Council's own shortcomings but to the larger problem of the student body, its size and its needs.

Guest column

The Faculty Council hasn't come of age

by Mike Mann

To a significant degree it is due to the University's rather limited powers, especially in the realm of curriculum decision-making. The Faculty Council is not a fully effective body, nor is it an effective one. It is in effect a paper tiger, a symbol, a facade.

The Faculty Council has been brought together several times in the past year, with the purpose of considering the future of the Faculty Council. The FAC is not an effective body, nor is it an effective one. It is in effect a paper tiger, a symbol, a facade.

American shag off criticism on My Lai

Throughout the years, criticism has been leveled at the University of California, Berkeley, for its perceived shortcomings in the area of student affairs, and for its failure to respond adequately to student concerns. This has led to a perception that the University is not responsive to the needs of the students, and that the problems of the students are not being adequately addressed.

The problem exists in several areas, such as faculty salaries, course offerings, and the quality of instruction. While the University has made progress in addressing some of these issues, more work needs to be done to ensure that the needs of the students are met.

Revolution

Already the anti-reaction in the universities is-suppressed by present repressive methods. The young revolutionaries, who are present on many university campuses, are maintaining their activism in various forms and ways.

College revolutions

If one desires to be a revolutionary, the campus is a very positive place to begin. At the same time, college campuses are not the places where the revolutionary spirit is most likely to be suppressed. Therefore, it is important to understand the nature of the revolutionary spirit, and the methods by which it can be suppressed.

Military conflagration

If a new military threat arises, the university will be the place where the revolutionary spirit is most likely to be suppressed. RESEARCH—University of Idaho Forestry Researcher Roy Adams conducts a physical test on some red cedar bark as part of a current study. As a result of this investigation, Adams hopes to be able to suggest to the wood industry new products which could be made from the waste material.

Adams, a graduate of the University of Idaho's College of Forestry, is currently involved in research and development work with the Environmental Protection Agency. His objective is to determine what can be done with wood waste from the forest products industry. He has made a variety of interesting discoveries, including a new type of insulation which is being used to reduce heat loss in buildings.

Adams' research is supported by the U.S. Forest Service through the National Institute of Forestry Research and Development. He has been involved in this work for many years and has published numerous articles on the subject. His most recent work has been focused on the potential uses of wood waste as a source of energy. Adams' goal is to develop new and innovative uses for wood waste that will help reduce the amount of waste produced by the forest products industry.

Billingsley to be featured soloist

William Billingsley, professor of music, will be the featured soloist with the University of Idaho Jazz Lab Band in the Jazz concert, Thursday, March 11. Although Billingsley appeared with the group in last spring's concert when he was a high school student, this is his first scheduled concert appearance with them. He has also played with the Jazz Lab Band for dances during the past years.

Billingsley received his bachelor's and master's degrees in music from Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa. He is in his third year as music professor at Idaho State University, and is also the director of the Idaho State University Jazz Lab Band. He has been active in music education and performance for many years, and has served as a adjudicator for the Idaho State High School Band and Vocal Festival. He has also been a member of the American Society for Music Education and the National Association of Music Teachers.

Billingsley's music career began at an early age, when he played trumpet in his high school band. He continued to play trumpet in college, and later began composing his own music. He has written numerous pieces for jazz band, and has been recognized for his compositions and arrangements. He has also been a featured soloist in several concerts and festivals.

Billingsley's concert on Thursday night will feature a variety of music, including pieces by contemporary composers and traditional jazz standards. The concert will conclude with a encore of the Des Moines Symphony, with Billingsley conducting and performing the trumpet solo in the last movement of the piece. The audience is invited to enjoy this exciting and educational concert, and to support the University of Idaho Jazz Lab Band and its talented musicians.

The Idaho Vandals, after a very poor performance and many mistakes, made adjustments in the second half and defeated Oregon State 66-44 in Pullman Saturday afternoon.

The Idaho Vandals went on the road for the second time in conference play and earned a win over the Beavers as they avenged an earlier loss at home. The win puts Idaho at 6-10 overall and 3-4 in conference play.

New scholarship established at Idaho to honor former mechanical engineer

The Idaho Scholarship was in memory of the late Dr. Henry P. Glass, a member of the Engineering Advisory Board of Idaho and former head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering.

This gift is in a fitting tribute to the College of Engineering and the professor who has contributed so much to the advancement of the department, for whom he served as professor and head of the mechanical engineering department and subsequently ashead director and research professor in the Engineering Experiment Station.

The talents of the late Professor Glass were not limited to the laboratory. He was also an active member of the Idaho State Alumni Association, serving as president of the association and the Idaho State Alumni Association.

Charles Boone, WGU alumnus, has invited "Mr. and Mrs. Glass $24 a month in the South Salem. The talk will deal with set-up problems on the Boise River.

If it were all right with him, would it be okay with you?
