The game will be played at 3 p.m. and will feature State College's Bob Haggerty, a former Idaho player who now coaches the Idaho team.

Church, who played baseball at Union College, said he will have his players wear the same uniforms and equipment as the Idaho team, and the game will be played on the same field. He also said he will have his players wear the same uniforms and equipment as the Idaho team, and the game will be played on the same field.

Proud Of Idaho

After reading about the story at WSU, one makes it a point to be a student at the University of Idaho. We can't help wondering why the WSU students can accomplish so much with the help of the administration. They are succeeding. After reading the story, we found that someday we could be doing the same thing, maybe even better.

Women's hours have become a political issue. The attitude seems to be that the students are going "right". The university administration is continuing to do what they want. In contrast, the University of Idaho, through its administration, has accomplished many changes during the last few years.

WSU students are crying for a 12 noon hour on a work night. It is 11 p.m. on a work night for all women, with a 23 grade point average. All female students are allowed three 2 p.m. appointments with an administration official. All students will be granted key privileges.

"Borderline" is a private newspaper, and there are no issues.

The Malpractice Shows Bad Standards

Malpractice is becoming a serious problem in the medical field. A recent study by the Malpractice Insurance Review shows that the number of malpractice cases has increased significantly in the past year. This trend is troubling, as it indicates that the quality of care provided by doctors and hospitals is not always up to standard.
