Boise Train Is Derailed

The "Train to Boise" has been canceled, the Associated Students Council voted to do this at the last meeting Tuesday afternoon to avoid the costs associated with running the train.

The cancellations were voted on by the student body, who could not come to the last meeting due to the cost of running the train. The train was a popular event among students and was expected to be a big success this year.

Real Issue

Dean Predicts GOP Struggle

Dr. Robert Martin, dean of the college of arts and sciences, is predicting a struggle for the Republican party in the upcoming election.

"The real issue of the election," he said, "will be the sit of control. The Republicans are in control, but they are in a minority. They will have to work very hard to keep the control of the government.

The Democratic party, on the other hand, is in a majority. They will have an easier time winning the election."

Dr. Martin believes that the Democrats will win the majority of seats in Congress and the House of Representatives. He predicts that the Republicans will lose their majority in the Senate.

The unemployment rate is another important issue in the election. Martin believes that the Democrats will appeal to voters by promising to create more jobs and improve the economy.

Martin predicts that the Republicans will struggle to win over voters with their promises of tax cuts and reduced government spending. He believes that voters will be more concerned with the economy than with tax cuts.

Boise Idaho Band Goes to Boise Contest

The Boise Idaho Band has been invited to participate in the Boise Contest. The band is one of the few bands in the country that has been invited to participate in the contest.

The band will be performing several songs, including their hit song "Boise Idaho," which has been a favorite with fans for many years. The band is excited to be performing in front of a live audience.

Iota Delta Pi Initiates 15

Fifteen new members of Iota Delta Pi, Student Union honors society, were initiated at a ceremony held in the Student Union on Tuesday afternoon.

The ceremony was attended by the president of the Student Union, the faculty advisor, and the new initiates. The new members were sworn in and presented with their pins.

"We are proud to have you as members of Iota Delta Pi," the faculty advisor said. "You have shown yourselves to be leaders and role models for other students."

Some days are like that.

Thursday certainly was. It was a bed day for the Argonaut.

Preparing for Tuesday night's election issue went about right when we got up at all the front page Monday. We were still all right Tuesday afternoon when I caught some stories "that had to go" in. But Tuesday night, it didn't go well at all.

The election stories were supposed to be ready for us as usual around 8 p.m. They weren't. We had arranged for the势力 who are likely to be to get us on the press by 8:30. They were, but we were still editing for election results.

At 1 a.m. we got to us. The phones started ringing. From the vote, it's hard to believe that so many people were interested in the election results.

What A Rush, But Rush!

In the rush, Dick Rush, executive editor-president, who was on the CUP side of the state, got listed on the C.A.P. side. Then the N.C.C.—we thought because victory to CUPS five. From this came our only the in the election story. "C.A.P. Outrages C.C.P." was a good story that the senator bunch could use that much. It was only after the papers had winked off the press that something pointed to our mistake.

Next was that we didn't get off the hook. In the art, the editor identifying the 12 writers, a typographical error identifying Carter Brothers, junior secretary-transcriber, as a C.C.P. candidate, went unnoticed by our production. To the reader, unfortunately, it looked right. C.C.P. people were in. Our mistake was compounded.

But that wasn't the end of our troubles. The machine with which we usually get our Florida headlines broke down.

By the time the presses began to roll it was shorty after midnight. The papers were mostly delivered by 1 a.m.

A friend in the newspaper business says that there is one good thing about mistakes. From the phone calls and newspaper comments, you know that people appreciate what you have done. But 2:30 a.m. is a little early in the morning to be conducting a newspaper story.

For All Of Us

Thursday morning the newly elected and re-elected State legislators will enter the halls of the Idaho Capital building. Some groups will have been waiting for this moment since their election. Others, only today will be able to answer their quizzing. This is the time when the public is at its most impression of the Univer-

When you think about it, it is surprising that there are so few such opportunities. In the hustle and bustle of everyday life, it is easy to forget how important these moments are. They are the ones that we remember later, the things that make us smile and laugh. So, take a moment to appreciate these moments—don't let them slip away.

"U" Central Placement Service Is Center Of Many Requests At 'U'

During the 1964 school year, the activities of the Central Placement Service at the University of Idaho continued as those of a department of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. The service had been initiated the fall of 1962, and is handled by personnel of the Department of Extension Education. This service, in cooperation with the Placement Service at the State College of Washington, provides employment information to students in UI's College of Agriculture, and allows students and employers to communicate with each other. The service is a valuable asset to students and to the College, and it is important that the service continue in the future.

Directions for Employers: If you are an employer who wishes to place your firm with the Placement Service, you should contact the Placement Service at the University of Idaho. The Placement Service will provide you with information on how to place your firm with the service.

Directions for Students: If you are a student who wishes to place yourself with the Placement Service, you should contact the Placement Service at the University of Idaho. The Placement Service will provide you with information on how to place yourself with the service.

Walker Speaks At Meet On Peace Corps Team

A new program, the Peace Corps, was announced recently at the University of Idaho campus by President Stanford Ceremony. The President was former President Wilson, who is a graduate of the University of Idaho. The Peace Corps is a new organization which will be responsible for providing trained volunteers to work on international development projects. The volunteers will be sent to countries around the world to help with development efforts.

The Peace Corps is a collaborative effort between the United States government and various organizations, including universities and private sector companies. The program aims to promote peace and stability around the world by providing trained volunteers to support development projects in countries that are in need of assistance.

The Peace Corps provides opportunities for students and professionals to gain valuable experience and make a positive impact on the world. Volunteers have the chance to work on a wide range of projects, from education and health to agriculture and environmental conservation.

The Peace Corps is open to all citizens of the United States who meet certain eligibility requirements. Applications are accepted throughout the year, and volunteers are typically deployed to their assignments after completing a rigorous training program.

The Peace Corps is a rewarding opportunity for those who are interested in making a difference in the world. By volunteering with the Peace Corps, individuals can gain valuable experience, make meaningful contributions, and develop skills that will be beneficial throughout their careers.

The Peace Corps is a great way to give back and make a positive impact on the world. It provides a unique opportunity for individuals to work on important development projects and make a meaningful contribution to the lives of people around the world.

The Peace Corps is a valuable experience that can help individuals develop skills and gain valuable knowledge. It is a rewarding opportunity for those who are interested in making a difference in the world.
