Western Books Display

Exhibited In Library

At the 1983 Winter Books Exhibition, marking the 20th an-iversary of the first such event, a number of rare, important and valuable books were on display in the North Library. The exhibition was open to the public until August 1, 1983.

The books displayed included works by such famous authors as Lewis Carroll, Mark Twain, Charles Dickens, and Mark Twain. Some of the books were rare editions that had been published before 1800, while others were limited editions that had been printed in small quantities.

The exhibition was organized by the Library Committee of the Alumni Association and sponsored by the Library of Congress.

PRICE TOO HIGH? We Think So Too

Economics indicates that many additional costs of production are passed on to the consumer. We are unable to support such high prices which are not necessary for the proper operation of the business. Even more pleasing is the awareness of the current reality. Won't you think twice before you buy that costs more in the Idaho Empire consumers and producers have to pay a $2,000,000,000 yearly because of damages by litter to crops and equipment alone. Every time you think about it, you'll think twice. If it will make you save the environment, it is worth doing too.

SUMMARY:

- Additional costs are passed on to consumers.
- Costs are due to damages by litter.
- It is recommended to save the environment and make wise purchases.
