Ed. Meet Set At Idaho For Students

Almost 300 high school and college students will attend the Idaho Education Day in Boise on Thursday, March 1st. The large gathering will be held at the new Idaho Education Center, a new state-of-the-art facility located on the campus of Boise State University.

During the day, students will have the opportunity to meet with legislators, representatives from state agencies, and other education professionals. The event aims to provide a forum for students to learn about the legislative process and to advocate for their interests in education.

The day will begin with a keynote address by a prominent educator or legislative leader, followed by a series of workshops and breakout sessions. Students will have the chance to participate in interactive discussions and to network with peers from across the state.

The event is free and open to all high school and college students. Registration is required and can be completed online at the Idaho Education Day website. For more information, please visit the website or contact the event coordinators at education.day@idaho.gov.
