Christmas Wreaths Delivered On Campus
As Holly Week Begins

Holly Week officially began Saturday when holly wreaths were delivered to all living groups. The group was chosen in a draw which included five finalists: Alfa Phi, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Phi, Gamma Phi, and Sigma Alpha Kappa. The winning group was Alpha Phi, who had 150 holly wreaths delivered to local living groups throughout the campus.

Holly wreaths are a traditional symbol of Christmas and are often associated with the winter season. They are typically made of holly leaves and berries, which are象征 of the holiday spirit.

The wreaths were delivered to various locations on campus, including dorms, Residence Halls, and Greek houses. The wreaths were decorated with ribbons and bows, adding a festive touch to the already beautiful Christmas decorations.

As Holly Week continues, there will be a variety of events and activities taking place on campus. These include a Christmas Caroling event, a Holiday Lights display, and a Winter Wonderland fair.

Holly Week is a popular event on campus, drawing students from all walks of life to celebrate the holidays with friends and family. The event is a time of giving and receiving, as students come together to share in the joy of the season.

The wreaths delivered on Saturday were just the beginning of the season's festivities. As Holly Week progresses, there will be more opportunities for students to get involved and celebrate the holiday spirit. Whether it's through music, dance, or simply spending time with loved ones, Holly Week is a time for all to come together and enjoy the season.

Federal Extension Head Speaks To University Staff

Lloyd Davis, administrator of the federal extension service, visited the University of Idaho campus today. Davis is the assistant to the director of the national extension service. He spoke about the importance of extension work in providing educational opportunities to rural and urban areas.

"Our goal is to extend the educational opportunities of people," Davis said. "We must continue to provide educational opportunities to rural and urban areas." He added that the extension service is committed to providing educational opportunities to all segments of society.

During his visit, Davis met with faculty members and discussed the current state of the extension service. He emphasized the importance of collaboration between the extension service and the university.

"The extension service and the university must work together to provide educational opportunities to all segments of society," Davis said. "This is the only way to ensure that all people have access to educational opportunities."
Vandals Drop Two In Southwest

The Idaho Vandals hoop squad played the fourth game of their South-Central District schedule Saturday at San Jose, Calif., to conclude a three-game road trip.

Mike went into the game last night with a 1-3 record. This was the second, and final, game of the Vandals' season against Central California State University. The game was a close contest, with the Vandals winning by a mere 3 points, 76-73.
