E-Board Hears AC Amendment

By Lee Jeffers
Argonaut Managing Editor

A proposed amendment to give Activities Council representatives power to attend E-Board meetings was discussed at the E-Board meeting in the basement of the administration building on Tuesday.

The wording of the amendment was not decided before the meeting, and the members were vague enough to allow greater flexibility for future changes.

A minority of EC members felt that the proposed amendment should give EC representatives the right to vote at E-Board meetings, but E-Board members were undecided on the matter.

John Nelson, the EC representative who brought the amendment to the E-Board, was present at the meeting.

The amendment was introduced by John Nelson, the EC representative from the University of Idaho.

Nelson proposed that the amendment be adopted at the next E-Board meeting.

The amendment was defeated by a vote of 8-5.

The E-Board meeting adjourned.

Talent Show Deadline Extended

The Idaho Argonaut

A month and a half ago I wrote in these columns that the average University of Idaho student wasn't interested in politics. It seemed an isolated occurrence, one in which individual happenings—no matter how much he should be. Even now, I haven't heard anything yet setting me off.

But he has the guy who promised to write that college with his complaints about the topic of his choosing.

"Some Gus" Organizes

That guy was one of the prime sponsors in the rally Wednesday night to which 1,000 Idaho students came to that they could learn more about Idaho's budget and its relation to the legislature.

Two Hours Notice

It took only two hours notice to bring nearly as many of our student body to the SUB ballroom Wednesday so that they could learn about the problems that are facing us at school. What's more, several classes of students got by today that they would have been there if they had been there. Pretty good for an "impromptu" campaign.

What Can We Do?

But what's more encouraging is that when the chairs run out those students stayed to stand or sit on the floor. And they listened. And they asked questions. Appropriately enough when Dr. Boyd A. Martin, Dean of Lactates and Sciences, finished his presentation on what is going on in Boise and on the bill, the first question was "What can we do?"

The questions that were asked were intelligent and there were plenty of them. That something of the questions the audience had submitted on slips of paper to the editor were accepted that evening is clear.

The questions ranged from "Why the hell did Boise tuition bills?" to how Idaho faculty salaries actually compare with salaries in other institutions. In one of these questions the group that the administration had submitted on paper to the editor did not.

"For you have the solution," Dr. Martin replied. "That's something I didn't know."

The student response was good Wednesday night. Unfortunately I am forced to eat my words of six weeks ago. The meeting was un- required because it had been longer than any of the previous meetings. The meeting had been held—and not because the students found a sudden change of heart.

Idaho Professor Displays Work

Jose J. Humes, the Univer- sity of Idaho law professor, has a one-man art show in the gallery of the Idaho Museum of Art. The show is a collection of 40 paintings, each 10 by 15 inches and done in his free time as he moves about the state. The show runs March 1 for two weeks.

After the show, Humes has several works on display in the town. It is well worth the time of an experimental artist.

U-I Registration Closes At 5:08

Student registration today concluded on 5:08 for the second quarter of the University of Idaho at Moscow.

Left nest-sitting (all 1964-65) received a drop of 1.5 percent for the second quarter.

Second quarter enrollments are traditionally lower than the fall semester, and usually range about 15 percent of total enrollment.

Second quarter enrollment is the same as the first semester.

The Moscow, the official publication of the University of Idaho, is published weekly by the Idaho Student Association. This is the 27th edition of the weekly. It was founded in 1931 and is published by the University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho.
Living Groups Elect Officers; New Members Initiated at U-I

The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign campus is a hub of activity, where students from various backgrounds come together, not just to learn, but to live. The page from the university newspaper contains a snippet of the life of the university community, where students are elected to positions, new members are initiated, and events like jazz in bucket schedules are scheduled. This excerpt captures a moment in the life of a student at the University of Illinois, highlighting the diverse range of activities and opportunities available to students. The page features the names of new officers, new members, and the schedule for jazz in bucket, which is a popular event at the university.

The page provides insight into the social and cultural life of the university, where students are engaged in various activities, and the university fosters a sense of community and belonging. Whether it's electing officers or initiating new members, the university ensures that students have a voice in the decision-making process, which is crucial for creating a vibrant and inclusive campus culture.
Military Ball, All Hirt Scheduled: Both To Draw Large Crowds

One of the largest crowds in the history of the University of Iowa was expected on Nov. 27 to attend the Military Ball at the All Hirt, which is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom. Students will be dressed in formal wear, with the men wearing black tie and the women in their best gowns.

The event will feature a dance floor with music by the University of Iowa Marching Band, as well as a variety of food and drinks. The ball will be followed by a fireworks display at the stadium.

Investment Lectures Series Is Scheduled

Some residents will have the opportunity to attend a series of investment-related lectures scheduled for 10 a.m. on Nov. 27 at the Student Union ballroom.

Student Joins Peace Corps

A student from the University of Iowa has been selected to join the Peace Corps. The student will be traveling to a country in need of assistance and will work on a project that benefits the local community.

Spud Trophy At Stake Tonight - Play ISU

POCATELLO — Only what happens tonight when Idaho and Idaho State are important.
The ISU Bengals, still smiling from the 81-78 whipping they received in Moscow last week, have gone behind closed doors to prepare for revenge. BU needs a win tonight to break Idaho coach Jim Goodwin’s two-year home-court winning streak over the Bengals. The Bengals, still smiling from the 81-78 whipping they received in Moscow last week, still taking the nucleus of their winning team to Moscow, will play for revenge. A win will give the Bengals another chance to win the Big Sky Conference championship and an argument for a return trip to the NCAA tournament.

Bengals head coach Jim Goodwin feels his team will be back in the Big Sky Conference championship.

"Our team has never been in a situation like this," Goodwin said. "We're going to have to play our best basketball of the season."

The Bengals, who are currently in third place in the Big Sky Conference, need to win their remaining five games to have a chance at the conference championship.

"We're going to have to play our best basketball of the season," Goodwin said. "We're going to have to play our best basketball of the season."
