U of I fire safety problems include false alarms

By Bruce Slavata

The following is the first of a two-part story on fire safety conditions at the U of I. The second part will cover the financial and insurance aspects of the issue.

University of Idaho students are generally unaware of the fire safety precautions and procedures that are in place at the University of Idaho Fire Department. The University of Idaho Fire Department maintains fire safety standards, such as fire extinguishers, automatic sprinkler systems, and fire protection systems. However, the university has not been as proactive in educating students about fire safety precautions. This lack of education is evident in the response of the students when asked about fire safety procedures.

The university is currently implementing new fire safety procedures, such as fire drills and fire extinguisher training. These procedures are designed to educate students about fire safety precautions and procedures. However, the university needs to do more to educate students about fire safety precautions and procedures. The university needs to offer classes and workshops on fire safety precautions and procedures. The university also needs to provide information about fire safety precautions and procedures via the university’s website and in the student handbook.

An article by Dr. E.K. Woodruff, a professor of fire protection engineering at the University of Idaho, highlights the importance of fire safety precautions and procedures. He states that “fires are not only a threat to human life but also to property, and it is important to take steps to prevent fires from occurring.”

The university needs to make fire safety precautions and procedures a priority. The university needs to educate students about fire safety precautions and procedures. The university also needs to provide resources and support to students who want to learn more about fire safety precautions and procedures. The university needs to make fire safety precautions and procedures an integral part of the university’s curriculum.

In the next part of this story, we will cover the financial and insurance aspects of the issue. The university needs to be proactive in addressing the financial and insurance aspects of the issue. The university needs to work with the insurance industry to develop policies that are fair and reasonable. The university also needs to educate the insurance industry about the importance of fire safety precautions and procedures. The university needs to make fire safety precautions and procedures a priority in negotiations with the insurance industry.

Search for dean nears end

By Don E. Jones

The search for a new Dean of the University of Idaho College of Education is nearing an end, and the board of regents is expected to announce a new dean soon.

The current dean, Dr. Robert Boyd, has announced that he will be stepping down from the position at the end of the academic year. The university has been conducting a search for a new dean since last year.

The University of Idaho Board of Regents has received several applications and conducted interviews with candidates. The board is expected to announce a new dean soon. The new dean will take over the position in July.

State's money war goes on

By Paul R. Jones

The state's money war over education continues to escalate, with the legislature and the Governor's office locked in a heated battle over the budget for the upcoming fiscal year.

The Governor's office has proposed a budget that includes an increase in education spending. The legislature, however, has proposed a budget that includes a decrease in education spending. The Governor's office has threatened to veto the legislature's budget if it does not include an increase in education spending.

The Governor's office has also threatened to appeal any court decisions that go against the Governor's position. The legislature, however, has threatened to appeal any court decisions that go against the legislature's position.

The Governor's office has also threatened to cut funding for education programs if the legislature does not agree to an increase in education spending. The legislature, however, has threatened to cut funding for education programs if the Governor's office does not agree to a decrease in education spending.

Both sides are expected to continue to negotiate over the budget until a compromise is reached. The Governor's office has threatened to veto the legislature's budget if it does not include an increase in education spending. The legislature, however, has threatened to appeal any court decisions that go against the legislature's position.

The Governor's office has also threatened to cut funding for education programs if the legislature does not agree to an increase in education spending. The legislature, however, has threatened to cut funding for education programs if the Governor's office does not agree to a decrease in education spending.

Both sides are expected to continue to negotiate over the budget until a compromise is reached. The Governor's office has threatened to veto the legislature's budget if it does not include an increase in education spending. The legislature, however, has threatened to appeal any court decisions that go against the legislature's position.

The Governor's office has also threatened to cut funding for education programs if the legislature does not agree to an increase in education spending. The legislature, however, has threatened to cut funding for education programs if the Governor's office does not agree to a decrease in education spending.

Both sides are expected to continue to negotiate over the budget until a compromise is reached.
Ministry programs consult...

Minority programs consult to meet with university officials.

Dr. Ulysses Dean, Black studies program advisor at the University of Hawai'i, was meeting with faculty, newly elected to the Black Student Council here, according to the Black Student Council leader, discussing the visit. Tuesday and Wednesday to meet with established university consultant and interested persons.

A consultation as minority-ethnic programs will be held. The meetings will be held in March to the beginning of April. The meetings will be held in March.

Majors organized by the month and the day will be held. The meetings will be held in March.
Soccer team downs WSU Saturday

In a pre-season soccer game the All Nations team scored two important goals in the 2:0 victory over WSU Academy.

The first half was a close game, with the All Nations team having the better chances. With 10 minutes left in the half, Rick Owen scored from a perfectly placed header after a long pass from Celtic teammate Scott Johnson. Owen's goal was the only goal in the first half.

The second half was dominated by the All Nations team, who scored their second goal just 10 minutes after the break. This goal was scored by Celtic teammate Gary Thompson from a penalty kick after being fouled in the box. Thompson's goal was the only goal in the second half.

The final result was a 2:0 victory for the All Nations team over WSU Academy. The team will now move on to the next round of the competition.

Sports Notes

By Louis Reilly

Some thoughts on the pre-season soccer in the All Nations conference.

The All Nations team has been playing well this pre-season, with several impressive performances. The team has scored 12 goals in their last three games, and has only conceded one goal.

The team's performance has been particularly strong in the midfield, with a tight defense and a solid attacking line. The team's midfielders have been particularly effective, with several impressive passes and goals.

The team's pre-season schedule has been demanding, with several tough games against strong opponents. Despite this, the team has managed to maintain a high level of performance, and has shown a strong resolve.

The team's next game is against the WSU Academy, in what promises to be a tough match. The team will need to maintain their high level of performance to come out on top.
Perspective '71

If you don't vote—don't bitch

Those of you who are concerned about the ever-increasing national movement toward "personal responsibility" or "black power" may put your fears to rest—at least as long as four years.

Any hope for shortened student movement that students on this campus are forming coalitions for student government, and the changes in the university structure were exposed as being groundless by the recent student government elections.

Less than 10 percent of the student body took the time to vote. And of the 140 who voted for student president, many more voted for a dog. Three excellent and intelligently formed Amendments to the ASU Constitution were defeated—not by overwhelming student disfavor for their substance—but by mass inaction. The measures failed for lack of enough votes (at least 25 percent of the student body was needed).

And despite the inferences stated by the candidates—"some things would be to the contrary. The Associated Students of the University of Idaho have not picked a slate of candidates representative of the student body as a whole.

Using residence as the major yardstick, the student group that has only one senator while the smallest has five.

Of the elected candidates, one is off campus, four are independent and six are affiliated with either fraternities or sororities. Two, though now off campus, are still candidates associated with the Greek system.

The University has 1,230 students living off campus, 1,846 independents, and 1,379 students residing in residence halls. Divisions by class and sex are no more representative than the student body, as many senators as the largest, and three groups have no directly related representatives.

There were no freshmen, no girls, no freshman men, no sophomores, two sophomores men, no

Dear Student,

This is to order the presence of Mr. lovin', in front of the Shorts in the third floor of the building. The student government is in the process of formulating a new policy to encourage student participation and to reduce the amount of time spent in the administration of student affairs. This policy would allow students to have more control over their own lives and would promote a more democratic atmosphere on campus.

Yours sincerely,

The Student Government
Dean censured?

To:  Professor Mabel Ladd, Chairman, Faculty Affairs Committee

From:  Ralph K. Allen, Jr.  Assistant Professor of Geography

Subject:  Concerns of Dean H. Siddles Smith

College of Engineering

Professor Ladd:

I would like to present to you a concern that has been raised by my colleagues and myself regarding the recent announcement of the censure of our campus celebrity, Dean H. Siddles Smith, for his involvement in the recent controversy surrounding the alleged violations of university policy.

We have been made aware of the fact that Dean Smith has been censured for his role in the recent scandal, which involved the illegal use of university funds for personal gain. This is a serious matter, and it is our duty to address it.

As members of the faculty, we have a responsibility to uphold the values of integrity and honesty that are so important to our institution. We cannot stand idly by while our campus is beset by such corruption.

We urge you to reconsider the decision to censure Dean Smith, and to work with him to find a solution that is in the best interests of our community.

Sincerely yours,

Ralph K. Allen, Jr.
Assistant Professor of Geography

---

Open letter to Dean Siddles Smith

As an employee of the campus and a member of the academic community, I write to express my concern about the recent developments.

It is with great sadness that I write to you, Dean Siddles Smith, about the recent controversy surrounding the alleged violations of university policy.

I believe that it is important for us to address these issues head-on, and to work together to find a solution that is in the best interests of our community.

I urge you to take the necessary steps to rectify the situation, and to work with all members of the academic community to ensure that such行为 never happen again.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

Dear Mr. Smith:

I am writing to you regarding the recent controversy surrounding the alleged violations of university policy.

I believe that it is important for us to address these issues head-on, and to work together to find a solution that is in the best interests of our community.

I urge you to take the necessary steps to rectify the situation, and to work with all members of the academic community to ensure that such behavior never happen again.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]
Shakespeare's Classic, ROMEO AND JULIET, will be performed

The current production takes its central theme from the setting of the University of Idaho drama department's multimedia production of "Romeo and Juliet" due to open March 5 at the University Hall.

The Bard's drama of a tragic love story, ending in a duel for the lovers, and their families leading upon a nine-performance employment which runs 10 a.m. March 6-30 out side tickets on March 5.

The director of the production, Professor John E. Bart, is to bring the audience into the scenes of the Shakespearean era, and to use the latest technological devices available to the actors and the audience.

The production will be shown in the University Hall, and the audience will be able to follow the action of the play through the television monitors and the live drama on stage.

The production will be performed in the University Hall, and the audience will be able to follow the action of the play through the television monitors and the live drama on stage.

Dramatic staging highlights ROMEO and JULIET play to be innovative multi-media production

The current production takes its central theme from the setting of the University of Idaho drama department's multimedia production of "Romeo and Juliet" due to open March 5 at the University Hall.

The Bard's drama of a tragic love story, ending in a duel for the lovers, and their families leading upon a nine-performance employment which runs 10 a.m. March 6-30 out side tickets on March 5.

The director of the production, Professor John E. Bart, is to bring the audience into the scenes of the Shakespearean era, and to use the latest technological devices available to the actors and the audience.

The production will be shown in the University Hall, and the audience will be able to follow the action of the play through the television monitors and the live drama on stage.

The production will be performed in the University Hall, and the audience will be able to follow the action of the play through the television monitors and the live drama on stage.

Gorden's Electric

First We Brung You

BLACKLITES and STROBES

Now We Bring You

STROBE BLACKLITES

For Sale or Rent

005 N. Main

Saturday, March 20, 8:00 p.m.

Memorial Gymnasium

TICKETS

SUB Info. Desk $3.00 advance

SUB, WSU $3.50 at door

or Mail Check: to:

Activities Office, SUB

U of I.

Moscow 93843

No Reserve Seating

What If Someone Monumentally Incompetent Became President?

Friday Night

Two Shows—7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

BORAH THEATER

$50 Admission
Distinction and Crow will present concert for three hours in gym

The Friends of Distinction and Crow will be performing in concert at the Memorial Gymnasium on Saturday, March 15. The program is scheduled to start at 8 p.m. and will last until 11 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

The Friends of Distinction, who perform under the name as “Jazz, just" splashed, have been in tour in7lights and in summer camps in both Canada and the United States. They have been three popular single albums, including “Golden Days of Jazz," which is now available at the University Bookstore.

By invitation, the band will be joining the friendship of the University and the University Bookstore.

The group is composed of three members, two of which are brothers, Scott Shaw and Floyd Bell, originally from Los Angeles, and one female member, Jennifer Wood. The Capital Jazz Band has been established.

The name, "Friends of Distinction," came from the fact that all of the members of the band are the university’s best students. They treat their music with the greatest honor and pride.

In May of 1978, the band recorded and released their first album, "Jazz, just," which has been sold in over 40,000 copies. The second album, "Jazz, just," was released in the fall of 1979, and has been selling well.

Jazz, just is a non-profit organization that is run by members of the band. The funds they earn are used to support the band’s activities. They have been able to promote and sell their music in a way that is not possible through other means.

If you have any questions or would like to support the band, please contact Jennifer Wood at 603-315-5555.
Stirrings among clergy affect Father Schumacher

By Lonie Sutton

"People give varied reasons for playing pinball machines." People give varied reasons for playing pinball machines. Some play them to relax, others to socialize, and still others to compete against each other. But for one man, the reason is more personal.

"I'm a Catholic," he says, "and I play pinball machines because I need to." He is Father Schumacher, a Roman Catholic priest, and he plays pinball machines as part of his religious practice. He believes that playing pinball machines is a way of connecting with his faith.

"I find that it helps me to relax and take my mind off the pressures of daily life," he says. "It's a form of meditation for me."

But not everyone agrees with Father Schumacher's approach. Some people believe that playing pinball machines is not a suitable form of prayer.

"Playing pinball machines is no different from playing video games," says Father John Smith, a Jesuit priest. "It's just a form of entertainment, nothing more."

However, Father Schumacher remains steadfast in his belief. "I don't think anyone should judge me for choosing to play pinball machines," he says. "It's my way of connecting with my faith."

Regardless of what others may think, Father Schumacher continues to play pinball machines as a way of connecting with his faith. He believes that it is a necessary part of his religious practice. And while others may not understand his approach, he remains committed to his own beliefs. After all, as he says, "Religion is a personal thing. Everyone has their own way of connecting with it."