Registration sets mark

By Barbara Sinclair

6,293 students passed through the Memorial Gymnasium Tuesday and Wednesday during class registration, a record number according to M. E. Telin, registrar for the University of Idaho.

"This fall is the first experience with an early calendar, we are expecting a high number of late registrants," Telin said. Late registration could be expected to reach 15 per cent of the present.

Fees increased

Students beginning the semester at the university this week were faced with increased fees that President Nixon's August wage and price freeze did not affect.

According to the Cost of Living Council, college charges were not affected by the 90 day freeze because commitments and in some cases, payments had already been made.

University of Idaho students found themselves paying $173 in registration fees, a $11 increase over last semester.

Gene Slade, business manager for the university, gave an increase of $10 increase over August. 24 to last year's $180 was requested by the Board of Regents and was directly connected with balancing this year's budget.

The 1971-72 budget approved by the Board of Regents totalled $13,718,210, including state appropriations and other income. It fell short of the amount the university requested but is still more than a $1,000,000 increase over last year's budget.

Also included in the fee raise is a $3 per semester charge requested by the ASUI to balance its budget and increase the total by $35,478. According to ASUI Vice President Tom Slayton, a $3000 new programs area is being developed and extra funds are also needed to fight depletions of the general reserve. He also cited higher operating costs, a 12 month employment cycle, reckless spending in the past, and inflation as reasons for the total $6 increase.

As far as future fee increases are concerned, Business Manager Slade pointed out that two areas are under financial pressure, the student health center and the athletic's operations. "There are no present plans for fee increases; but this can change at any time," Slade said.

In addition to an increase in registration fees, out-of-state students, approximately 20 per cent of the enrollment, were faced with a drastic tuition change. Out-of-state costs jumped from $550 last semester to $600 this semester and caused many new students to be unprepared. About 20 students claiming they were unaware of the change, are now being helped by emergency financing.

Slade said this increase was also due to budget balancing and remarked, "The total tuition and fees of a non-resident do not total as much as the state pays for education through general taxation." He gave the non-resident's contribution as $1146, and in-state student's amount as $226, and state appropriations per student was $1255.

Charles Decker, dean of students, reported that the scholarship committee awards out-of-state waivers to 75 students, a figure based on one per cent of full-time enrollment.

These financials, which are in addition to athletic grants and the College of Mines were higher than many for recruitment, are not distributed by an exact guideline but go generally to disadvantaged and deserving students.

Donald Miller, a student leader at the University of Idaho was killed in an automobile accident during summer vacation.

Miller was employed at Camp Cooper, a Portland Boy Scout camp and was returning from a staff meeting on the night of July 19 when the car was hit in a head-on collision with another car in the vicinity of Tillamook, Oregon. The driver, and one other passenger, both camp counselors, were hospitalized.

He was born February 1, 1949 in Oakland, California and had resided in Idaho Falls since 1961. He had been attending the University of Idaho since 1969.

He had been chosen an outstanding sophomore, outstanding junior, and this spring he received the Distinguished Senior Award of the University. He served as Attorney General of the A.S.U.I., was a former member of the Executive Board (formerly of the present day Senate) and during his senior year was an advisor in the residence halls.

He was planning to return to the university this fall to begin graduate work in economics and was to be the advisee in Guam of the Agriculture Department. He also served on many committees during his stay at the university. The Curriculum Committee and Traffic Court
Hartung requests referendum on athletics

A referendum to determine student opinion on athletics has been requested by President Hartung. It was announced yesterday, "This referendum is urgently needed to examine student feeling on the total athletic program here at the University of Idaho," Hartung said.

Forgeron says conduct code not dead yet

"Contrary to popular belief," commented Dr. Forgeron, the new ASUI attorney general, the student Code of Conduct is not dead. The code is now in the hands of the second Code of Conduct committee.

The committee which hasn't met yet should, according to Forgeron, report to the ASUI senate with a draft proposal by Oct. 15.

John Orwick, who was supposed to finish the code this summer while Forgeron was in Boise, failed to complete it, according to Tom Slayton ASUI vice-president. The code has been in the planning stages since last fall.

The code, when finished, will supplement the Regents' statement of student rights. Though fairly comprehensive in Forgeron's opinion, the statement does not cover what a student should do before action is taken against him. Forgeron describes it as a self-policing device for the ASUI.

Forgeron says background work has been done for the code, much of it contributed by John Orwick. Whether Orwick will be asked to help on the new committee is still not known.

Code of Conduct committee members include Harry Davy, John Hill, Glen Owen, Janet Rugg, Dan White, Forgeron and Mike Davidson. New university attorney Jon Warrell will provide legal advice for the code.

"I have suggested to ASUI President Mary Ruth Mann that it be placed before the student body in October if the ASUI can put it together by then. I also hope that the referendum would be wide ranging and comprehensive with the aim of examining student feeling not just in the area of intercollegiate athletics but on intramural program as well," Hartung continued.

"This is definitely not a referendum to abandon intercollegiate athletics," he stated. Hartung said he feels that this question should be included, but it then referendum were limited to that question, no real knowledge would be gained." "At this point, I don't believe it would be proper to put more appropriated funds into intercollegiate athletics," Hartung said. "In addition, since students already share a large burden of responsibility for athletics, I would assume that they would not be too happy about a raise in fees for the athletic program. Therefore, this would hopefully give us some indication of whether students wish to reduce, expand, or hold the athletic program at the same level.

The earliest possible date mentioned for presentation of the referendum has been Oct. 13, when Freshman Advisory Board elections are to be held, according to Tom Slayton, ASUI vice-president.

Slayton also said that this referendum would not be related in any way to the Athletic Study Commission established in October 1970, nor is it related to the poll taken at the last ASUI election regarding budget allocations to various athletic departments.

HEW grant awarded to drug squad

The Moscow Drug Squad is beginning its second year of operation in Moscow with a $32,500 grant from the Drug Education Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The money will be used by salary for a full time director for the squad, the operations of the squad, and in series of "mini-grants" of $100 each to be distributed in the Moscow area for various private projects.

The new director for the Drug Squad is Bob Cameron, formerly the head of the Wallace Complex. Cameron has been hired by the squad, which is completely self-regulated, to provide an administrative staff for the next year. Jerry Leonard, a senior in psychology, is the student director of the squad.

The squad has a house at 615 W. Sixth Street which is open at all times for visitors or people with drug problems. Volunteers on duty at the house can be reached by calling 805-6728. Drug Squad volunteers can also be contacted by calling Nightline at 805-0202.

The squad now has 20 volunteers active in drug education and crisis work, but they could use more. They also need furniture for their new headquarters.

The squad will be giving out a series of "mini-grants" during the year. The grants will go to individuals or groups to act as seed money for community projects. It is not known yet how many grants will be available.

The drug team will also be working with the University in several classroom situations. They will be assisting Dave Green of the P.E. Department with a drug education class and hope to be working with the Education Department.

Ed Knecht, athletic director, feels confident that students would express a desire to maintain the present level of expenditure for athletics.

"This is clearly shown by the enthusiasm for the Boise State game, which is already sold out," he said.

Students pay $7.50 per semester out of their fees to athletics, which is exactly the same amount paid in 1954, Knecht noted. Student fees in the 1965-66 school year totalled $60,597.36 with an athletic operating budget of approx. $335,000. Student fees this year are anticipated to bring in around $107,000 with an athletic operating budget of a little over $500,000.

The athletic department has been using funds from its athletic reserve fund to cover costs for this year, Knecht said. This fund has been built up from televised games and gate receipts in past years. About $120,000 will be used from this fund for the athletic program this year, with another $100,000 expected to be taken out next year.

However, Knecht predicted that gate receipts for the 1971-72 season will be about $800,000 and most expenses will be covered with no need to rely on any reserve funds.

President Hartung expressed his personal opinion that there would be the most advantages to Idaho by staying in the Big Sky Conference. He felt that some costs could be stabilized if the conference could set rules and limits for recruiting.

"All teams would then be recruiting on the same basis," he said.

Financial aid laws declared uncertain

A restless campus scene during the fall of 1969 provoked the state of Pennsylvania to authorize the Pennsylvania Higher Education Agency to deny financial aid to students involved in disruptive practices.

Recently, in an historic decision, the U.S. District Court in Philadelphia has overruled the Pennsylvania laws declaring them vague and unclear.

The court questioned the clarity of the term moral turpitude used by the agency in describing misdeemors that would warrant denying a student financial assistance in the form of a loan or scholarship. It also overruled a provision denying students aid if they have contributed to campus disruption through refusing to obey campus laws. The provision was also termed unclear by the court.

In the spring of 1970, 260 institutions were requested to sign an agreement by the Higher Education Agency that would provide information about students affected by the laws. The institutions signing the agreement were to report to the agency any activity by students receiving financial assistance from Pennsylvania that would cause for retracting the loan or scholarship under the state regulations. All students from Pennsylvania receiving assistance were subject to the rulings. Of the total, 204 signed the agreement and 27 students were reported. When 26 institutions did not execute the agreement 176 students were denied scholarships and 188 were denied loans.

Idaho did not sign the agreement. According to Ernest Hartung, the document was folded up and sent back unsigned on the principle that it was an invasion of the rights of the individual. Hartung agreed with the court decision.

The terms of the regulations were unclear he noted.

Coalition organizes for political change

According to a press release from the Coalition, thirty-five parties representing people from 25 states and Washington D.C. met in Albuquerque, New Mexico to organize a coalition of mutual interest for political change.

The groups, met, according to the release, “to affirm a continuing faith in what the United States was intended to be and register a series of objections to what has become part of the dream of those who met in Philadelphia that first fourth of July.

A convention committee was established during the meeting which will stage a national convention in November to nominate candidates for the 1972 elections. The committee will also consider for approval the draft platform adopted at July’s meeting. A finance and a fund raising committee together with a committee to contact candidates have been formed with efforts being made to organize local third parties in those states where none exist.

Natural Resources Stressed

Prior to November’s convention the Coalition which the New Party will “take the draft platform to people in all parts of the country for discussion and approval.”

The platform stresses the use of natural resources for human oriented purposes rather than for profit. It calls for measures to stop pollution and encourage recycling of waste. It urges building rapid transit systems and a pollution free combustion engine.

The Coalition advocates the abolition of what it terms crimes without victims: drugs, alcohol, prostitution and gambling. It also supports non-white national minorities in their civil rights efforts.

The foreign policy of the Coalition reflects a movement away from an aggressive nature toward one of peaceful cooperation with the rest of the world in order to solve common problems.

“In other words, get out of Vietnam. Abolish the draft. Amnesty for draft resistors, reallocation of money used in war to making better lives for people.”

Spock at Conference

Speaking at the July conference were Dr. Benjamin Spock and Gore Vidul, who is a member of the New PRT. Spock believed that an alliance with the rising progressive parties such as the new party could provide a needed alternative for the millions of young voters.

“The two major parties,” comments Spock in the New York Times about the conference in New Mexico, “haven’t had the courage and forthrightness to get out the destructive war in Vietnam. They have failed abysmally to represent the American people.”

Gary Cooper represents the coalition in Moscow.
It is often pointed out to the citizens of this country that our system of government and Free Enterprise have produced the things for us. For instance, our higher standard of living, a chicken in every pot, masses of youth attending college, all power are attributed to our economic way of life.

Capitalism and Free Enterprise have done this for us, they say. Perhaps the Free Enterprise system has brought both good and bad. We can not ignore the obvious facts that each has its advantages and disadvantages. Each can be used to serve the interests of the public. This is done when we recognize the social needs of the people in the light of the economic conditions.

The function of the Idaho Argonaut officially is to serve the students by reporting the events and opinions of interest and importance. The Argonaut is a not-for-profit society and it does not cater to any particular group. What it does is to provide information for the University of Idaho students, present a forum of varied opinions and strive to serve the enterprising interests of its audience.

The staff will try for honest news coverage. We have learned that what is typed is the reporting is doubled, then likewise editorials will be doubled.

However, the Argonaut may not always show the university, student government, or the public in the best light — the truth often hurts.

Consequently there will be criticism of the Argonaut. This is no change from last semester.

Who will laugh last?

It’s the vote. Twenty one, the once magic age when men become men and Harry Wallbangers are legal, lose some of their glamour to the 18-year-old vote. The fighting children marching off to war have been recognized as entities and not merely scapegoats or flunkies for lawbreakers and politicians out of their reach.

Older people are nervous. It must be like letting your teenagers decide whether to stop at the soda fountain bar, too much for them to handle wisely though they must dutifully take out the garbage or preform well in college. A little of the sage-like power and mystique of the older than 21 group has been given to a younger set of qualified voters.

Registering isn’t difficult. Rites of passage are not required. In Idaho to vote in a state or federal election a voter must have lived six months in the state and 30 days in a county. Registration involves signing your name and address at the courthouse.

City elections are more difficult for students to participate in. A voter must live in the state six months and in the city 90 consecutive days. Summer vacations have eliminated a good deal of the 18-year-old voters.

State and federal elections will be in 1972. Students may decide if they wish to vote in city hall when they will be able to pack a city hall in the time of election. Senior group positions are to be filled. Students who meet the residency requirements may file for candidates at city hall when they may pick up a petition of nomination. Several signatures from registered voters are necessary and the petition must be in 25 days before the election. The election date is set for Nov. 2.

It will be a big laugh for the skeptics if the vocal generation of new voters is so over-awed by their new power that they forget to register.
ON STAGE AT FARRAGUT — Two Universal Life Church ministers jamming for free, and digging it.

Guest column

By LES CANARDS

Dopers and philosophers picnic?

Everyone in their right minds knows that the Universal Life Church Picnic at Farragut is the one last thing to happen in Idaho for a long, long time. Those of us who actually attended the Picnic are keenly aware of the atmosphere of love and brotherhood that pervaded the whole affair. The people (more than 50,000 of them, contrary to the subclassed figure of 17,000 that the "authorities" were releasing) were free to do whatever they liked, and they enjoyed themselves on Independence weekend.

An older local resident was honest when he approached some exhausted Hippy Farmers after the Picnic and said, "By God, you kids are all right! This is the most fun I've had in thirty years. You young people are doing exactly what we generations failed to do when we were young, only there are so many of you that you can all get together and get away with it. My hat's off to each and every one of you.

Not all older local residents feel the same way as this fellow, of course. There were unpleasantnesses, arguments and fights with the Picnic people, and once again the lesson was brought home to us that no one is perfect. But anyone who went knows that those people were a distinct minority, and the vast majority of the picnickers were peaceful, laid back, and loving.

At the present time there is a sham 'investigation' of the Picnic being conducted, with a fellow named Stan Crow as the front man. He is a Boise lawyer who is working with some politicians who want to exploit the Picnic for political reasons. They want to make it appear as if the Picnic was a drug-drenched rock festival, and give Governor Andrus a black eye in the process.

Crow has three hand-picked committees, and they are supposed to come up with findings that prove that the Picnic was detrimental to the moral health of those who attended. Whether Crow's gambit will succeed is questionable, because a few people on his committees feel that the problem of drug usage at Farragut is incidental to the larger problem of drug use as a whole in Idaho, and maintain that the committee could serve the people more effectively by trying to pinpoint and solve the conditions in society that lead people to abuse drugs.

Crow and people like him don't understand the Picnic. It was a free affair (the Park Department charged its usual fee at the gate, 35 cents on that later) and people went because they wanted to. No one was forced to go. All of the entertainment and facilities were donated, free of charge. Many members of the Universal Life Church attended, and many of them viewed the Picnic as an extension of their philosophy of life. The motto of the ULC is "De What's Right," and many people do just that. There's no one who can tell you the right thing; you just gather information and make up your own mind. You're as free as you feel.

A lot of people in this world use dope. It is impossible to grow up and not encounter it in some form. A lot of people smoke tobacco and marijuna, drink alcohol, take uppers and downers, and use psychedelics. A lot of people abuse drugs. Obviously, a lot of people feel that getting stoned is the right thing to do. And, they're doing it right now. Everywhere.

Dope at the Picnic. That's what the politicians want to talk about. They think it is in an area that they can exploit to get votes. They don't and won't understand that people take drugs because they want to. They think that Farragut was an isolated event. They are afraid of their own children, and want to believe that Farragut was an "invasion of hippies."

They don't know that the people who went to Farragut learned some very valuable lessons from the experience. A lot of us learned, really learned, that people can take care of themselves. There were no uniformed police at Farragut, and somehow people managed to work out their problems. People learned to work together, and take decisive action to solve immediate problems. People learned how to share, and apply the much-talked about principles of brotherly and sisterly love. People learned how to enjoy themselves, and learned how to clean up place. People also learned that you don't always have to have money to have fun.

People learned how to get it together at Farragut. Crow and his politics may discover this time going around. One thing is for sure: the Picnic isn't over.
Vandal Hall to remain as dorm

Vandal Hall is to remain an athletic dormitory at least another year, according to Davey, dean of students. Although the psychology department had requested the building, problems arose in finding accommodations for the athletes elsewhere.

"We had thought that many of the men in Shoup Hall might plan to move to the Hayes apartments, but found in meeting with them that not many planned to live there, and men weren't happy about the plan to move them out," said Davey.

"Next we had that McConnell Hall could be made more academic and atmosphere, so that these two dormitories could later be combined, leaving one open for the athletes. However, the men in McConnell Hall submitted a petition and a letter opposing this idea and the plan was abandoned."

"There had been a definite commitment to the psychology department to move them into Vandal Hall, but now it was delayed for at least a year," said Davey.

Placement Service helps students find employment

The Placement Service, located in the Adult Education Building in Room 103, helps seniors or graduate students find a job before the degrees are handed out, according to Miller, director. It's not a bad idea for underclassmen to know about it too, Miller added.

The service is free. It consists of a student filling out a form for a computer listing majors, previous colleges attended, grade point average, type of work preferred and work experience, Miller explained. The computer then goes to work and every student is matched with every employer to discover if he or she is eligible for employment.

The employment situation is very tight he said. In 1969, there were 8,000 students enrolled on campus. In 1979 there were 4,983. This rate shows no signs of improvement and Miller is anticipating further drops. He urges students planning to teach to drop in and establish a file, as the demand for teachers has been cut in half since 1969.

Traffic tickets to be issued

Citations for campus traffic and parking violations will be issued after Monday according to Dean Vettrus, chairman of the traffic committee.

Faculty, staff and students who are not acquainted with the provisions of the new parking regulations can obtain a list of rules at the Information Center or check announced in The Vandal.

"The staff and students who are not acquainted with the rules of the new parking regulations can obtain a list of rules at the Information Center or check announced in The Vandal," said the chairman of the traffic committee.

Traffic rules also include some common violations which occur on campus. These include failure to remove old decals and replace them with the decal parking sticker, displaying decals in the wrong position on the vehicle, backing into parking spaces and parking in prohibited areas.

Free tutoring now offered

A free tutoring service has been made available to students needing help in certain courses. According to Driskell, it has been established to aid both the students seeking help and the tutors. According to Driskell, approximately 39 tutors are available and volunteers are still needed. Although not paid, the work for the tutors, the students may gain credits through a program of directed study which must be worked out with the different department heads.

The program aims to be informal but a learning process will be stressed. Tutoring will be offered to anyone who needs help whether it be full time or just a small study problem. Resident advisors are asked to keep an eye on the students and recommend to them the tutoring service if they develop any problems.

Student response has been good so far according to Driskell, who prepared and revised the study guide for students needing help. Students who need help or who would like to be tutors are asked to contact Jeanette Knecht, associate professor of English, Extension Building, Room 110, from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. for more information on the tutoring service.
ON DISPLAY — Several books are on display at one of the two new off-campus bookstores, The Wind, Sands and Stars. This bookstore is located on Sixth Street. Books by authors such as Tolkien and Sartre are offered for sale here. The other bookstore, The Bookfrog, is also offering some textbooks. It is located at the Trading Post.

New off-campus stores offer variety of books

Two new off-campus bookstores are in the process of bringing both competition and culture to Moscow.

The Trading Post located at 606 W. Third is a general store that has expanded to include The Bookfrog. Owned by Mike Justman, The Bookfrog is selling University textbooks at discount prices.

"Our selection is limited to 1,500 to 2,000 books which includes anthropology, psychology, sociology, philosophy, and religion, and our prices are approximately 7 percent below the university bookstore prices," Justman said.

According to Justman, the Trading Post book selection is stocked mostly with lower-division courses because classes are larger and are easier to stock than smaller upper-division courses.

"Assuming everything goes well we will have stock books from every department in the university by next semester," Justman said.

In the future the Trading Post will have a large selection of science fiction books also. Its goal is to competitively serve the wants of the students.

The second new off-campus bookstore, The Wind, Sand, and Stars, located on Sixth Street has added a new cultural book to the university city. Owned by Ducks Peterson, the new bookstore is not competitively directed, but rather culturally aimed at the youth.

"This bookstore has a varied selection of books that are concerned with the study of what man is and not what man does," Peterson said.

Peterson said the books in his store are aimed at expanding man's cultural thinking.

"It is not a bookstore that directs political movements or competes monetarily, but it is a vehicle between the people and literature," Peterson said. "It is a store for people and its purpose is to serve the people."

Peterson said that the books are an in-depth study of man from the earliest times until now.

Although the store does not carry university textbooks, it does provide a varied selection of writers including Sartre, Whitman, Darwin, Mimes, Chaucer, Pound, Tolkien, and Zolotnyan.

looked to the American people to help free them — now our President plans to wine and dine with their Communist slave masters.

The United States government has been making overtures to the Chinese Communists for more than two years. Lifting restrictions on travel, lifting trade restrictions, approaching Peking through third nations, beginning to refer to Red China as the People's Republic of China in official announcements. These clear signs of changing United States policy have encouraged countries such as Canada, Italy, and the others to recognize Peking and consequently to sever their ties with the Republic of China. At the announced trip, closely followed by the changed U.N. Policy, were the final cracks in freedom's dike which loosened the flood.

In the eyes of foreign nations we are committed now to Red China. Uncertainty about the determination of the United States to continue opposing Communist expansion, aroused in the minds of many foreign leaders by our demonstrated inability to defeat a fifth-rate power like North Vietnam, has been transformed into certainty that we no longer have any determination. Nation after nation is scrambling to recognize Peking, permanently altering the diplomatic balance against the Republic of China.

We are turning our backs on a friend, Chiang Kai Shek and Nationalist China, and recognizing an enemy, Mao Tse-Tung and the Chinese Communist in Red China. It has been estimated that over thirty-four million people have been killed in cold blood in Red China in order for Communists Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai to take over and control Red China, and now our President plans to visit and pay homage to these murdering despots. Are the leaders of the United States for freedom or for dictatorial enslavement of the world's people?

We should write to Mr. Nixon and say "Please, Mr. President, do not go!" Sincerely, Eva V. Burnham
ASUI Comm board to get major changes

A major overhaul of Communications Board is expected within the next month according to Greg Heitman, board director. New regulations for procedure and delineation of authority area on the planning board. Appointment of new board members also is expected within the next month.

A essay in the approvals of recommended persons has come, says Heitman, because of a dispute over appointment procedure. Before the establishment of a personnel committee last spring, Heitman claims he recommended two members who now only need senate approval before taking office. The remaining four members must be interviewed and approved by the personnel committee as soon as it receives the final senate okay.

Heitman, who says he feels appointments should be made in the future by the personnel committee, believes, however, that all six of the members should be appointed in the same manner. Also, states Heitman, the committee already has enough business to warrant his appointing the four other members.

Until the final approval for the committee members, persons recommended to fill the positions are acting as Communications Board. Two two-year appointments are scheduled to be made each year and 3 one-year appointments.

Disagreement has also arisen, claims the board director over what qualifications should be considered for appointment.

Heitman foresees a stronger Communications Board. Despite the short existence of last year’s board, the appointments weren’t approved until December. Heitman contends that the board had more control because the editors and managers in the communications field were not members of the board.

“Difficulties arose,” claims Heitman, “because of the lateness of the appointments and lack of regulations. With more time we could have had better problems.”

Guidelines for procedure of the board are undergoing revision designed to define more clearly the roles of board members, the director and editors and managers in the communications area.

“We need to define the role of the board,” claims Heitman. “No one knows what we can and can’t do.”

Heitman plans on giving editors and managers more say in the areas of contracts, hiring and firing of personnel and “general day to day things like fixing typewriters.”

“The board shouldn’t be involved except in case of a dispute,” he states. “We cannot say what to print or broadcast.”

Asked if he felt guidelines should be established as to what could be printed or put on the air, Heitman felt no need existed. He added, however, that the board should be available for what he termed recommendations.

Heitman sees the role of the board as being twofold.

“I see it as acting,” he commented, “as a mediator for the different communications area and as being an overseer in disputes.”

Outlining the specific changes he is proposing, Heitman included a provision to replace members who do not attend meetings. In this area also Heitman recommends more administrative power to the director. He claims giving the director emergency powers to act without the board’s permission will speed alleviating the situation.

As director he would be given the power to suspend an editor or manager if he felt it was necessary. The board would be notified within 48 hours.

Heitman also expects regulations concerning procedure for hearings on disputes such as the one involving Young Americans for Freedom and the Argonaut last semester.

As director Heitman predicts no difficulty in passing the proposed regulations.

“The senate,” he concludes, “is not sure what the Comm board is for either. So far they have not seen a communications board work efficiently.”

“The senate is lazy,” he continues, “about giving the communications board more authority as the board is in giving the editors more power. Each sees his position as one of overall responsibility.”

U of I Museum displays photos

German color photographs and Polish theatre photographs are on display at the University of Idaho Museum now through Sept. 15, opening the museum’s 1971-72 season.

The German prints are by three men considered by the Photographic Society of America to be among the best non-professional color print photographers in the world today. All three men — Dr. Raimo Gareis, Erhard Mülalschek and Wolfgang Kollges — are on the staff of Alfred Kurtz of Germany. Amateur photography is their hobby.

Their work ranging from straight pictures to unusual experimentation, has received honors from all over the world.

The Polish photographs are by Edward Hartwig, one of the foremost theatrical photographers in the world. He is considered the father of the Modern School of Polish Photography and is one of the founders of the Association of Polish Art Photographers. His work has been exhibited throughout Europe.

In the first half of the 20th century as well as displays on volcanoes and energy conversion.

The museum is open from 1-5 p.m. seven days a week except for university vacation periods and certain major holidays. The displays are open to the public free of charge and arrangements can be made for group tours, club meetings and other special events.

Bicycles present new problems

By Doris Urbahn

Bicycles, those two-wheeled wonders of engineering have come to the University of California campus in unprecedented numbers this fall. With the surge in the popularity of bicycling have come two big problems.

The multiple speed models have especially become very hard to get in recent months. This has been caused by high demand and, for foreign models, by the West Coast dock strikes.

One local bike dealer has 200 bikes on backorder and has not received a two-speed model since early July. American manufacturers can't keep up with the demand, foreign models have also been unable to adequately fill the demand because of the strikes, said the dealer.

When the strikes end, he is hoping for more bikes, but said the price-freeze tax on imports may discourage imports.

Bike ordering stopped

The Western Auto Store is operating on a first-come-first serve basis. The store stopped backordering when it was discovered that they couldn't promise delivery. A store representative said people can order them and wait if they want to, but that it is better for a potential buyer to not depend on an order that may not arrive.

Once a bike enthusiast finds the machine he wants, he needs two other things: a place to store his bike and a place to park. There is no truly safe place to ride in Moscow, but with a little common sense a bike can be parked and be safe. Bikers operate under the same traffic rules as motor vehicles, according to Timothy R. Hart, new chief of security at the U of I.

This means being licensed, having lights and reflectors at night and driving in the correct lane.

Like the driver who takes his key with him when he leaves his car, a bike owner should not tempt someone by leaving his bike vulnerable to theft or vandalism. Roping a chain through the spokes and securing the chain to something is usually an adequate deterrent.

Anchoring bikes

Cyclists here can see anchoring their machines to pipes, trees and even bike racks. Most will settle for any immovable object they can get a chain around.

Even with the new bike racks around campus, there are not enough places to park and secure a bike. Students have been taking bikes into classrooms, dormitories and buildings. Although this gives added protection to the bike, it is hazardous. Bikes in buildings can become safety hazards by blocking exits and by being tripped over. The administration has not yet become serious, said Hart. Most complaints have come from janitors and night watchmen.

A few warnings have been given, but no one has yet been cited for parking a bike in a building. Hart said, "Students are still being allowed to keep their bikes in the dormitories." But serious problems have developed. Technically, a person should have a special permit to park inside. Hart said, "A warning could be issued to anyone creating a hazard and if the person fails to comply he could then be issued a traffic ticket."

Theft possible

Hart has received reports of stolen bicycles since arriving on campus two months ago, but he says they have been few. Parking areas closer to the residence halls would be an added deterrent to theft and vandalism, he said.

Vice President Sherman F. Carter and the traffic committee have been asked.

Hart said, to help find and approve new bicycle parking areas.

Because of the parking problem on campus, Hart would like to see more bicycles in use. "I feel it has been a very good year for electric bikes in use. But, it would be more practical if we could get along without cars."

This university is one of the few colleges left with free on-campus parking, he said. Other schools have either banned cars, put in meters or charged a fee.

It has been suggested that large areas outside of campus be installed, but due to a lack of funds this is not now possible. An adequate lot, fenced, well-lighted, guarded and with all windows to and from campus would be ideal, Hart said. The university does not now have paid parking and Hart noted that paid parking funds could possibly be used to build an area for bicycles.

With or without the buses, the campus would belong to bike and foot traffic only.

Hart noted that large numbers of bikes and cars cannot use the streets on campus because there is just not enough room.

Bike lanes are another possible answer to the problem, according to Hart.

CHAINED UP

Bicycles have been chained up to all sorts of things in more than one dormitory. Others have been chained to trees, telephone poles, and even in bicycle stands where the stands are provided.
Play tryouts announced

Dr. Edmund Chavez, head of the Department of Drama and Speech, announced today that tryouts for parts in the play "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running" will be held Tuesday and Wednesday in the University Auditorium in the Administration Building. All students are urged to try out, according to Chavez.

Parts are also being cast for the tour show as well, with the play You Know... scheduled to run October 7, 8, and 9 at the university and the tour show running at a later date in schools across the state.

The Chess Nut

By Fred Knight

The Canadian Open chess tournament in Vancouver, B.C., is just winding up its eleven-day schedule. The tournament was marked by the appearance of Boris Spassky, the present world champion, and several other chess notables. Spassky, who will meet Bobby Fischer next year for the world championship, didn't seem to be having much trouble with the competition at the tournament.

eating less and is paying his fair share of the fixed costs. Likewise, the C Plan is cheaper per point (45.35) but the student eats more meals and therefore pays his share.

The snack bar is being put in the former small east dining room of the Complex. "The physical plant has gone as far as they can except for painting. We're waiting for some countertops. It will be at least another week before the equipment arrives, so it will probably be the end of the month before the snack bar is ready," Miss Morin said.

I am going to try and help you put together food that tastes good, looks good, and most important is good for you — At the same time I hope to show you how to maintain a relaxed, friendly kitchen and have good time cooking. — Now let's make some potato salad — Turn your oven on to 375 degrees — I always make my potato salad in the oven because they taste much better and taste, is usually an indication of nutritional value — Scrub 8

most beautiful (I always choose my fruits and vegetables by their good vibrations — It's the only way to tell if you're getting something with life force to give to your body —) potatoes you can find, and all in lightly with vegetable oil, put them into the oven, which should have reached the designated temperature by now, and time them for 90 minutes — Plan on checking them frequently after the first 75 minutes, and poking them with a fork to see how firm they are — While the potatoes are in the oven you should get the rest of the salad ready — Put 8 eggs in a pan of cold water, turn a burner on high, place the pan on the burner — When the eggs start to boil, let them alone for 10 minutes — Then remove them from the burner and under a spigot of cold running water — When they're cool enough to handle crack them while they're still in the cold water and remove the shells — Put the eggs in a small bowl and put them in the refrigerator for later — You can make the mayonnaise for your potato salad with a whisk, blender, or electric beater — Break one egg into the receptacle you're going to make the mayonnaise in, to add 1 tablespoon honey, 2 Tablespoons vinegar, 1 Tablespoon brewer's yeast, .5 cup vegetable oil, 1 teaspoon each of thyme, rosemary and 1 teaspoon of dill weed or seed — Whip til creamy consistency the honey slowly dribble in more vegetable oil until thick — Refrigerate immediately — Next wash and cut about 6 green onions (be sure you don't discard the green part — it's the best part), 1 bunch of spinach (spinach loses less nutrients if you use your fingers and tear it into pieces, instead of using a knife), 1 green pepper, a batch of sprouts (preferably alfalfa), any raw vegetable odds and ends you have in your refrigerator (tarragon, radishes, cucumbers, mushrooms,) which you think would be good in the salad — Mix with the mustard together well, adding mustard until you have a strong flavor — Add the egg-mustard mash to the mayonnaise, mix lightly and add to the chopped vegetables, put the bowl containing the vegetable, eggs and mustard, mayonnaise in the refrigerator — When the potatoes are ready to come out of the oven, turn off the oven, take the potatoes out of the oven and place in the refrigerator — When they are cool enough to handle, remove them from the refrigerator and cut them into walnut size pieces — Be sure you leave the skins on as they will add immeasurable flavor to the salad — Now add the diced potatoes to the chopped vegetables, mix together and serve when well mixed — You may want to add more dill flavor and you will want to add a lot more vinegar — I suppose you might want to add salt or pepper, but I recommend you don't — They're both very bad for you — I recommend adding a heavy sprinkling of help and a light one of cayenne pepper to it if you think it needs it — instead of the usual white granulated salt and black pepper — Kitchen is naturally iodized, and contains many minerals and vitamins — Cayenne or red pepper is a digestive aid and has the opposite effect of black pepper which constricts the stomach and simultaneously sends the blood pressure soaring — Anyway, mix your salad, remembering the mayonnaise in the refrigerator the better it will taste — Ahh, but who can resist eating a good part by far — The climax of the culinary achievement — ENJOY

What's happening

Aside from the sods, pool shooting, and softball at Moscow's numerous watering holes, there are a variety of other entertainment offerings to suit the jaded student in the area this Labor Day Weekend.

Tonight an all-campus dance sponsored by the TKE house will be held in the SUB Ballroom from 9 until midnight. The band will be a new one called Lockley Hall. Admission will be $1.00 per person and $4.00 for couples. A TKE spokesman emphasized that this is an all-campus dance, not exclusively a house function.

Another all-campus dance sponsored by the Modern Republicans will be held in the SUB Ballroom on Saturday night from 9 until midnight. This dance will feature the Sper Bros. band and admission will be $1.00.

The movie scene is a little more varied now that area theatres have again begun full operation. In particular, Wallace Complex is now screening the film "A Man Called Horse" tonight and Saturday at 7 and 10 p.m. In the SUB's Borah Theatre. Admission will be 50 cents for singles and 75 cents for couples. This film, though not an Oscar winner, can be recommended for its authentic view of early Plains Indian life and a rather far-fetched plot involving a captured English gentleman-hunter, played by Richard Harris, and his exciting adventures into the life of the tribe.

Two rock festivals are scheduled for this weekend in the Northwest. Most of the information concerning these is rumor but one fact is that they will go ahead as planned. One festival will be held in the Ketchum-Halley area and the other is at Gray's Harbor College on the Washington coast west of Tacoma. KXL's radio in Spokane reported on Thursday that 5,000 people had already arrived and 10,000 were expected by Friday for the four-day festival. Rumor has it that Country Joe and the Fish will be playing among many others. Admission is reported to be $2.50 for the entire period. Parking facilities are 4 to 5 miles from the stage area.

The Wood River festival at Ketchum-Halley is reported to be featuring the group "War," which is the only name so far rumored to be among the performers. The admission is $3.50. The Wood River festival is also to be over the entire weekend.

Several communities in Northern Idaho plan banquets for the Labor Day weekend. Kamiah, east of Lewiston on the Clearwater River is having an all-you-can-eat free barbecue on Saturday. This will even begin with a Cowboy Breakfast at 5:30 a.m. 21/2 miles east of Kamiah on Highway 12. The rest of the day will feature airplane rides, exhibits, airplane rides, a parade and the free barbecue at 5 p.m.

Riggins, on the Salmon River will be holding raft races and a barbecue on Saturday, also. The raft races will be the "River Ruckus" and cash prizes will be offered for winners. Registration of the rafts and the crews is set for 11:30 a.m. Mountain Daylight Time at Short's Bar. Two man entries only will be accepted and no inner tubes.
It might be a Vandal year

By Loren Horsell

If the Idaho Vandals can make it through six road contests four of them in a row, and can stay healthy they could be in for an outstanding gridiron season.

Idaho finished the season last year with a 4-7 record, but those four occurred in a row at the close of the season, and with a hodgepodge of returning Vandals along with a good crop of recruits from the frosh team and the J.C. ranks, Idaho should have a vastly improved team this year.

Last year a big factor in the early part of the year was the loss at one time or another of eight starters because of injuries, a situation that wasn't new to the Idaho football program last year. One of the big questions will be whether the team can stay healthy.

Among those returning for the 1971 campaign are linebackers Ron Linkham and Rand Marques. The two led the defense that keyed the Vandals to the outstanding finish. Also returning are the center line on the defense, nose guard Steve Barker and tackles Billy Cady and Mike Newell, although Newell is being pressed for the starting spot by Mark Bouch.

One of several battles for starting positions is at defensive end where Oscar Nelson, Rick Simmons, Tom Doud and Alan Vance are fighting for the position left vacant by the graduation of Tom Reese and Jesse Craig. Either of the four could start, according to coach Robbins.

Another position that has seen a battle for the starting position is quarterback, where Bruce Cole fought off three other contenders for the starting position, one of the few solid positions at this time. Robbins elected to decide on one quarterback as early as possible and style the play around the quarterback chosen. The 1969-70 high school All-American from Moscow red-shirted last season after leading the frosh to a fine season in the fall of 1969.

Backings up Cole will be Tom Persiano, who played 2-4 ball with Fred Riley at Yuba Junior College. He started several games last season when Steve Olson was out. Rick Seifried, who had an outstanding year last season for the frosh team is another promising quarterback. He was playing for the alumni in the alumni-varsity game last spring. Coach Robbins hopes to red shirt him so he will be available for three more years. A fourth quarterback is on the Vandals squad. Buckley (Bucky) Brun. Brun is felt to be too valuable as a runner and receiver to not play, and he is expected to see action at flanker back.

The flanker position had been held by Gunther Gutierrez until a few weeks ago but a torn knee cartilage has put him out for at least the next three weeks although his progress after surgery has been excellent. Brun and Jerry Hall are expected to fill in the interim.

A six-way fight is shaping up for the two running back positions with even Fred Riley not definite as a starter. He is getting a lot of competition from Bernard Hembert, a flashy transfer from Spokane Falls Community College. Robert Lee Williams is leading the pack right now for the other starting position but Randy Peterson, Malcolm Smith and Frank Doctor are fighting hard. Doctor was a Vandal regular in 1969 while Peterson saw considerable action when Williams was injured and Smith was a red shirt last year.

Muscle hurt Goddard

Jack Goddard had been figured on as split end but a pulled muscle forced him out for a while and he has been having trouble winning back the number one spot from Kevin Ault. Goddard is an excellent veteran who sat out much of last season with an injury but he has come back and has been named co-captain. Jim Wund should start at tight end.

The offensive line should be a veteran one with familiar faces like Andy Rupp, Dave Cnich, Ken Mulheier, Faustan Riley and Richard Beaver. Cnich and Mulheier are the smallest of the five at 6 feet 2 and weighing in around 225 pounds.

Ruth has added new guys to the football staff, including Don Matthews and Jerry Hendren. Defensive coordinator will be Ray Fulton and on the defensive staff will be Gary Withrow, defensive line coach, and Andy Christoffi, defensive line coach. Don Matthews, secondary coach and frosh coach Ed Troxel and receivers coach Jerry Hendren. Matthews came to Idaho last spring from Ferris High School in Spokane where Ferris took the City League championship and finished ranked eighth in the state. Hendren played sparingly in one season of pro ball with Denver and retired from pro ball this summer citing two shoulder separations and a lack of speed.

Even though the Vandals have an impressive looking team, the schedule is enough to give a coach nightmares. They open against Boise State in a relocated home game. They will play in the BSC home stadium, Bronco Stadium. Following that they travel to Ames, Iowa to face Iowa State Cyclones. Then they return to the Northwest for another relocated home game. Colorado State at Boise's Joe Ali Stadium.

Big Sky Conference power Montana entertains the Vandals in D supportive Field the following week before Idaho opens their new stadium. The first Moscow game in three years should be October 9 with Idaho State this opponent. Then Idaho takes to the road for four weeks to face the University of the Pacific at Stockton. West Texas State at Canyon, New Mexico State at Las Cruces and Weber State at Ogden. Idaho will close their 1971 schedule with two home contests. Montana State and Utah State.
Athletic directors request delay

Athletic Directors from the eight member schools in the Big Sky Conference concluded a two day meeting at Boise recently with a request to the Conference Presidents for more time.

The request was made in regard to the proposal submitted by the Presidents for a reduction in the number of "Grant-In-Aid" athletic scholarships. The Athletic Directors spent a large portion of the two day meeting in an attempt to work out the problems involved in a financial cutback, and a cut in athletic aid.

In a resulting memorandum to the Conference Presidents, the Athletic Directors recommended that any decision on the matter be held in abeyance until after the National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting scheduled for mid-January at which time the problem may be solved by legislation on a "need factor and recruiting restriction" basis.

In effect, the Athletic Directors are asking the Conference Presidents to withhold any final decision affecting the Big Sky schools until such action is taken on a national basis. The group expressed hope that the NCAA might come up with a solution to the problem, or at least a proposal that would solve a portion of the problem.

If the proposed delay is not acceptable to the Presidents, the Directors asked that they be permitted to meet in conference with the Presidents prior to any final decision.

Action concerning a possible "round robin" football schedule was tabled for the immediate future, but was turned over to a committee to be headed by Weber State Athletic Director, Dale Gardner, for further study. Other routine matters, such as game management and athletic schedules were also handled during the meeting.

Stadium progress

Completion date questionable

By Tom Coggins

The completion date for the new Vandal football stadium is a question no one seems to be able to answer. Director of University Relations, Frank McCreary says he, Dr. Sherman Carter and Director of Athletics Ed Knecht have accepted a one-month delay to the Oct. 9 beginning date with Idaho State, but a misunderstanding still exists.

The administrators feel the progress should be a bit faster, the contractors feel they are living up to their part of the deal.

Phase I of the new stadium was to be completed by the Sept. 11 game with Boise State, but because of inclement weather last spring when the construction began, a possible delay was foreseen by the subcontracting crew. According to McCreary, this fact has been recognized by the administration.

Phase II will consist of permanent seating on both sides, four concession areas, eight public rest rooms, and a press box. As it stands now, the October game will open the stadium, but with partial seating.

After a stormy meeting between administrators and contractors Aug. 26, a letter was written by Dr. S. to the architectural firm requesting a speed up in building. The two interests couldn't seem to agree upon what should be finished and by when.

Another meeting was scheduled by Glen R. Cline, of Boise, Small, Hamill, Shaw and Associates, stadium architects, for Wednesday at 6 p.m., but nobody showed up to represent the contracting firm. When Cline arrived later that afternoon, he presented a report prepared by subcontractor Ron Johnson, proposing an additional 2000 to 3000 seats on the south side by Oct. 9.

McCreary said this attempt, of course, is conditional because the weather is a big factor in the rate of completion. The original plan was to have at least 10,000 seats ready for the homecoming game, to which the contractors agreed. Of those 10,000, 9,400 were to be on the north side. The additional 500 seats were to be on the south side. But the concrete has yet to be poured on the south side. Deadlines for pouring concrete on the north side are Sept. 25 and Sept. 28 on the south side.

As the new proposal is, it should be somewhere in the neighborhood of 12,500 to 13,000 seats, with a possible 2,000 seat per game increase. This would end up with the year at 16,000 to 17,000 seats available.

If the crowd exceeds 12,000 the first game, someone gets to sit on the concrete, although McCreary said there has been some talk of temporary seating. Again, weather is an important factor.

Included in phase I of the stadium is a $114,758 two-story press box which would accommodate press, photographers, radio, television, team coaching staffs, scouting squads, and a VIP room. It is not known for sure who will have access to the VIP room but possibly donors of an undetermined amount of money. The press box for the October 9 game will be the contractor's trailer located on the south side of the field.

Phase II in the construction plan will consider doming the stadium and applying an artificial playing turf. The stadium is being constructed to support some type of covering, but possibilities will not be discussed until phase I is finished. If the stadium is to be domed, an artificial playing field of some type will have to be laid down, although administrative sources say a number of business interests are developing domes which allow the use of real grass.

Sleep needed

If it is decided that turf should come first, the field will have to sleep three feet, from center to the edges to allow for water run-off. Other considerations such as lighting and temperature control will have to be discussed.

The Idaho student spends $37.50 per semester of his fees to aid in the completion of the entire athletic complex. This amount will continue to be paid until the project is finished, but no fee increase is foreseen, the administration says.

Many uses

Knecht says upon completion, the new stadium will be a multi-purpose facility for university and community activities. As an artificial turf is used, it may even be possible to zip out a section revealing a basketball court with a seating capacity many times that of Memorial Gymnasium.

The possibilities are infinite, says Knecht, who even mentioned rock festivals in connection with the new stadium.

New swimming pool manager announces year's schedule

A schedule of times and fees for use of the University of Idaho swimming pool has been announced by Robert K. Lewis, newly appointed manager of the swimming pool.

Lewis, a former master sergeant in the U.S. Army, retired this past July after 20 years of service. In his last year, he coached the University of Idaho ROTC rifle team.

Semester tickets for the general public will be $7.50 for individuals, $10 for couples and $15 for a family of three or more. The pool is open for public swimming from 6-9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and 7-10 p.m. Sunday.

Single, full-time students swim free. Semester tickets are $5 for student couples and $7.50 for student families of three or more. Semester tickets for faculty and staff is $5 for an individual, $9 for a couple and $10 for a family.

Swimming hours for students, faculty and staff are 9-10 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, 9-11 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Friday; 2-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday as well as 7-11 p.m. Saturday. Two special family swim times when children may swim are 7-8 p.m. Monday and Wednesday. Students, faculty and staff may also swim during public swim times.

Single admission will be $10 cents per person. A fee of $25 per hour will be charged when private organizations are granted use of the pool.

Tickets will be available in the near future at a time and place to be announced.

Campuses in the news

Members of minority groups account for almost 10 percent of the total undergraduate enrollment at the nation's state universities and land-grant colleges, according to a recent survey.

Reports from 103 major public universities throughout the country showed that there were 134,545 minority students out of a total enrollment of 1,362,366 (9.8%) in these institutions during fall term 1970. In addition, data from 96 universities with graduate schools revealed that there were 23,869 minority students among a total graduate enrollment of 307,080.

The survey conducted by the Office of Research and Information of the National Assn. of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, also showed that these institutions are paying greater attention to the special needs of this type of student in an effort to expand minority enrollment.

A number of institutions reported that they now conduct vigorous recruitment campaigns aimed at the disadvantaged minority student, and 63 universities noted that they have comprehensive special programs to help these students succeed once they are enrolled.

Statistics also indicated that minority enrollment will expand greatly within the next few years. More than one-third (37.9%) of the minority undergraduate enrollment at the 97 universities which broke down undergraduate enrollment by class rank was in the freshman class. There were 44,499 freshman and 73,859 upperclassmen out of a total undergraduate minority enrollment of 117,348.

A news analysis

Black students accounted for the greatest portion of the minority enrollment. The 103 participating universities enrolled 89,427 black undergraduates and 12,192 black students were enrolled in the 96 graduate schools providing data.

There has been steady progress in the enrollment of black undergraduates in predominantly white institutions as revealed by a comparison of survey data with information provided by institutions participating in a survey of black enrollment at NASULGC institutions during fall 1969. There were 44,563 black undergraduates enrolled in the 89 predominantly white institutions, representing 4.7% of the total enrollment. In fall 1969, black undergraduates made up 1.67% of the total undergraduate enrollment at predominantly white institutions.

Almost half of the reported black undergraduate enrollment was concentrated in the freshman class, indicating a large future surge in black enrollment if these students remain in school. Among the 97 institutions which broke down undergraduate enrollment by class rank, there were 37,646 freshmen, representing 42.7% of the total black enrollment of 89,703.

The freshman imbalance was even greater among the 89 predominantly white institutions, which reported a black freshman enrollment of 21,648, accounting for 48.7% of the total black enrollment of 44,563. Eighteen universities reported that more than 50 percent of their black undergraduate students were freshmen.

Black enrollment at the graduate level lagged behind undergraduate enrollment. However, a number of universities reported growing efforts to remedy this situation in an effort to meet the need for more trained professional people among the country's minority population.

There were 12,187 black students out of a total enrollment of 367,060 at the 96 reporting graduate schools.

Progress shown by individual universities in enrolling black students revealed more striking success than a look at the total figures indicated. In 1969 only two universities holding membership in NASULGC reported black enrollments of five per cent or above. In 1969-70 there were six institutions with a black enrollment of five per cent or better. In 1969-70, the number of institutions in this category had grown to 12.

New cafeteria system doing well

By Doris Urbahn

If the new food plans continue to operate as well as in the first few days, students in university residence halls may find themselves getting more food and a greater variety of dishes.

"Everything seems to be going quite well. We've been watching it closely and things seem to be moving very smoothly," said food service director Bernie M. Morin.

"In the kitchen, there is a far easier flow of food to the line and a better flow of dishes through the washing process. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays used to be bad because everyone went to lunch around noon. The rush that created in the kitchen was terrific, Miss Morin said, and created waste and inefficiency.

The cafeterias are open for longer periods this year. However, there may be a savings in wages due to the greater efficiency of the new plans and the closing of the two small dining rooms in the Complex. Regular, non-student employees will be working about the same hours, but indications are that there will be a saving. If such a saving does occur, the funds can be spent for other things including a greater variety and more second helpings.

The serving lines are open at different hours this semester. This may be especially beneficial at the Gault cafeteria where eating space has been cramped. Besides lengthening the time students can use the dining area, Miss Morin said it may be possible to remove a few tables and provide more "elbow room."

Because the ticket checkers report every half hour concerning how many have been fed, the cooks can prepare much of the food in batches. This results in fresher food and less waste. To students, this will mean fewer leftovers. Students on Plan C have been put on a point system this year. This was done so that C Plan ticket holders will be able to use the tickets in the snack bar.

There is a noticeable difference in the cost-per-plate between the three plans. Miss Morin explained that the differences in cost are because of the need to pay the food service's fixed costs such as a bonding service, regular employees wages and insurance.

A student on Plan B contributes by paying the average cost of the meal ($5 per point) and eating an average number of meals. The A Plan student actually is paying ($8 per point) for the privilege of (Continued on page 101)
