Have a happy turkey day!
At Idaho... today

Diana R. Marx, a graduate student in music performance at the University of Idaho, will offer a French horn recital at 8 p.m. today at the Music Building recital hall. Everyone is invited to attend.

this week

The library will be closed on Thanksgiving, but will maintain regular hours on Wednesday and Friday and the weekend.

"Peace on Earth" is the theme of the first annual Christmas Charity Ball to be held December 2, 1971 from 9-12 in the SUB ballroom. Proceeds from the semi-formal ball will go to the Moscow Opportunity School. Donations will be $1.50 per couple. Live music will be provided.

Associated Student Wives will have a Christmas fair Dec. 11 at 9:30 a.m. at the Idaho First National Bank parking lot. Everyone is welcome to sell articles provided they have registered in advance by calling 882-0980. A fee of $1 per individual or $5 per group will be charged sellers.

United Nations will have a meeting at 7:30 p.m. every Monday in the SUB. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

The Model United Nations will meet every Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the SUB. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

The Student handbooks are available at the SUB Information Desk.

The ASUI Draft Information Service is now meeting in the ASUI Offices at the attorney general's desk. It will be open to all students from 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Positions open to U.S. veterans

The University of Idaho has received approval to fill twelve new positions under the Public Employment Program under the Public Employment Program. Funds for this program are provided by the federal government under the Emergency Employment Act of 1971.

The positions to be filled include laboratory assistants, maintenance men, and electronics technicians. A security officer and an accounting clerk are also listed. While the positions involve full-time work, each new employee will be hired on a part-time basis not to exceed 14 hours per week in order to assist a larger number of students.

In order to be eligible for these positions, applicants must reside in Idaho, be essentially unemployed, have served in the armed forces with other than dishonorable discharge after August 6, 1964 and be registered students at the University of Idaho.

Priority considerations will be given to veterans who served in Korea or Indo-China, who are heads of households and to those carrying 12 credits or more.

Qualified applicants should contact Elbert Barton, University of Idaho Personnel director at Room 228, University Classroom Center as soon as possible since positions involved are to be filled by December 1st or as soon thereafter as practicable.

Further information on this program is also available in the office of Mrs. Prindle, Veterans' Counselor, in the University Classroom Center 241 or at the Department of Employment Security, 2nd and Jefferson Streets in Moscow.

Bomb no cause of worry

An early afternoon telephone call yesterday, hinting at a bomb in the Administration Building area, caused no undue alarm or concern according to Dr. Sherman F. Carter, financial administrative vice president.

The Administration Building annex received the call but the location of the reported bomb was unclear. Office employees in both the Administration Building and annex were notified but work continued as usual. Dr. Carter said no offices were disrupted and nervous people could only leave on their own, unpaid will. Students in fifth period classes were warned of the circumstances and allowed to leave if they wished.

He felt there was no need to draw attention to the bomb threat. Keeping incidents quiet would help to eliminate such phone calls and extreme measures would not decrease the danger.

"It's the lesson nationally," Dr. Carter said. "When they're going to blow up, they're going to blow us up."

Office workers and physical plant personnel searched the two buildings but could not find evidence of a bomb. Campus security services were brought in but the Moscow Police Station was not notified.

Photographer set for Gem portraits

Each Photographs of Boise has been selected as the photographer to take the student photos for this year's "Gem of The Mountains." For the first time, all of the portraits will be taken in natural color. Photos will be taken in the Student Union Building, Dec. 29, 30, and Dec. 1, 2, and 3 in the Cataldo and Spaulding rooms.

All students will receive a letter from Each Photographs with an appointment time. If you are not able to keep your appointment time you are urged to trade for a more convenient one. If unable to trade, please come to the SUB and you will be worked into the schedule as soon as possible. A sitting fee of $2 will be charged to cover the costs of proofs and the print for the annual.

Proofs will be mailed with a special price list for ordering additional prints. You make the selection of the portrait you wish to have taken. Ordering extra prints is not required.

SUB, Satellite SUB closed Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving dinner will not be served in either the residence halls or the SUB because all will be closed during the vacation.

The SUB closes tomorrow at 4 p.m. and will reopen Sunday evening. The residence kitchens close tonight and will reopen Monday.

Poet revolutionizes Idaho

Charles Potts, a revolutionary poet living in Salt Lake City, read his poetry recently before perhaps the largest crowd of people ever to attend a poetry reading on this campus. An estimated 100 people heard Potts through.

Potts has worked for years in revolutionary action and has been noted as one of the most notorious underground poets in America. His reading style is lightning quick and his poetry is carefully gauged to his audience. — at times humorous, sad, but always fixed to a locality with which his listeners are familiar.

Originally from Mackey Idaho, Potts has lived throughout the United States, including Berkeley during the 1968 demonstrations where he was known as "Laffing Water."

It was in Berkeley that Potts founded LITMUS publications which he continues to edit in Salt Lake City. Edward Dorn labeled the publications as "the most active thing coming out of this country since the New York poets stopped being active 3 years ago."

His magazine is perhaps the only publication in America to have a recorded acid trip in poetry (LITMUS 9) and to carry poets from as wide a range in selections as the Black Mountain poets and Art Nove. He has written a play, "How I Dodged The Draft," which is being produced by the Cleveland Repertory Company and for five consecutive quarters, he taught poetry language at the Free University of Seattle.

Additionally, Potts formed a Buddhist marching band, Hot Air, which received considerable nationwide publicity by its extended campus tour several years ago. Potts is widely published, reviewed, anthologized and has appeared on several radio interviews.

bodisatvñas are not sorry. we will not survive the revolution in a house in this much disorder

when it becomes absolutely necessary I must leave

Better than bubblegum

Snuff is great new (old) habit

By Al Owen

"As far as I know I'm the only girl on the campus that does it," said Vicky Roper as she put the lid back on her can of Skoal. "I chew it because I like it and I believe it's a habit of a couple of genuinely bad habits I used to have."

She acquired the inclination after she had returned from a teaching experience in South America where she had been smoking Inca Cigarettes.

"Those were abominable tasting," she said, "and were of about the poorest quality tobacco I ever saw." Miss Roper described them as just sticks and twigs rolled together.

"I was afraid to open them up to see what was actually inside," she said.

She had gone to South America two summers ago on a leave of absence from Harvard, to study the elections in Chile. A year later she returned to spend three months teaching in a blind school in Peru.

"It was here that I was introduced to that vile cigarette," she reflected, "by my Peruvian father." She had lived in this household during her teaching venture there.

"After the noon meal," she said, "he and I would sit around the table and share some good Peruvian coffee and a cigarette. She explained that it is customary to do this but usually only the men partake of this ritual.

"But my papa saw me as a liberated woman," said Miss Roper, "and we spent many hours sharing ideas that ordinarily only Latin men discussed."

"Although I had come to enjoy these cigarettes," she recalls, "I realized that they weren't doing my health any good." While hiking in the Andes Mountains she noticed too a diminishing of her lung capacity.

She returned to the U.S. in December and was vacations in Sun Valley. It was there, on the ski slopes, that she was introduced to the art of dipping. Her mentor was her next-door neighbor, Flint Carpenter. Carpenter is presently also a student at U. of I."

"Flint was a ski-bum, just in from working on an Alaskan fishing boat." We were on a ski lift one afternoon when he offered me a chew. Considering herself the type of person that will try anything once, she accepted.

"The smell of it really jacked me," she said, "As it smells like winter-green. But it burned my gums so that I couldn't hardly stand it the first few times." She said she became used to it in a short time and it was long before she preferred it to American cigarettes which she was then smoking.

"Chewing became a habit with me," remarked Miss Roper, "as it kind of grew on me. Cigarettes were out and also my bubble-gum kick."

She recalled that she had been "into bubble-gum ever since her childhood. It was the bubble-gum along with a lack of calcium in her diet, she thinks, that had caused the many cavities in her teeth.

"Snooze came to replace the two worst habits I ever had," she said, "and I find this new groove the healthiest I've ever experienced."

Miss Roper feels that it would be advantageous to any smoker to kick cigarettes and take up chewing.

"Even though it may sound weird," she says, "the acquisition of my habit would only be a variance in custom. If you are interested in becoming unashameded from a tired monotony, try snooze!"

"So do it a lot like Nicobor," she advises, "but it's lots more fun."

Miss Roper is majoring in South American Studies and she has just completed student teaching Social Studies at a high school in Portland.
Indian-Pakistan: the Indian view

By the U of I Indian Students Organization

It is not the intention of the Indian students of U of I to pick up a quarrel with West Pakistani students on campus. We do not think that a campus paper is for regional political propaganda (Altaf Ahmad's article, November 19) on serious issues between two countries, both of which are represented on campus. But, since the Argonaut's board of editors have unwisely allowed such a thing, I, as an Indian student, feel we must reply.

Altaf Ahmad contradicts almost every known truth about the East Pakistan problem. It is his opinion versus the statements by public figures of international fame, including Senator Edward Kennedy, who talks about the "Brutal Suppression of East Bengal" - from first-hand experience. (See Washington Monthly, 1971.) We'd like to point out fallacies in Ahmad's article:

1. Ahmad writes, "This help for refugees campaign is being undertaken, on the basis of a highly one-sided situation - one that almost invariably has its origins in New Delhi or Calcutta."

Facts: The Indian government has freely allowed foreign press agencies to visit the troubled area and to see for themselves what is fact and what is fiction. The Indian government has even gone so far as to fear letting the world decide for themselves from first-hand experience.

2. How about the West Pakistan government? Have they allowed foreign press agencies to visit East Pakistan to see what's going on? (See above.)

3. Then he writes that "News reports from these Indian sources suggests a highly exaggerated number of refugees (0 to 10 million) whereas the Pakistani government indicates the figure to be 2-3 million - and the government from Pakistan challenges any impartial body in the world to prove (including the U.N.) to disprove the accuracy of this latter figure."

Facts: The Indian government has allowed and is still allowing press and TV who want to visit the troubled area to make their estimates. It happens to be 2-3 million or 3 million!

Besides, whether it is 3 or 9 million is military tribunal in the west on charges of treason." (Time, October 25, 1971, p. 321.)

That sure is a democratic form of government? Who is truly free? Who is freely elected by the people (Mujib won 185 out of the 313 seats, an absolute majority for the whole of Pakistan)? The Joint Opposition Assembly is charged as a "rebels" leader and sent to trial for his life!

Reasons: If Mujib Rahaman was allowed to be the President of Pakistan - as he by right of election should be - West Pakistan would not be able to continue bleeding East Pakistan for their personal political reasons. The principal feature of Rahaman's election manifesto was autonomy for East Bengal (East Pakistan) in economic matters, while the overall Union of Pakistan, the Union government's authority being confined to Defence and Foreign Affairs.

Mujib Rahaman's demand for economic autonomy was converted into the demand for a sovereign independent East Pakistan only after the Pakistan Army's campaign of genocide in an effort to suppress the results of the elections of December 1970. (The West Pakistan Army on March 25, 1971, set aside the results of the election which would have transferred power to the elected leaders and would have ended the Martial Law dictatorship.)

A lot more could be written about this. The Indian students at U of I have had no desire to write about the serious political issues into campus life.

But, since a Pakistani published such an article, we must reply to the specific points raised by him.

We, the Indian students at U of I have no wish to create friction between Pakistanis and Indians on campus. Many of us have many good friends among the Pakistanis and they won't pass up this political issue of such a delicate nature between countries represented on campus being kept out of the campus newspaper in the future.

Ahmad also writes: "The government of Pakistan has repeatedly offered to take the refugees back. Trouble is they dread to go back. And for very obvious reasons.

mistake in the first place and an unforgivable error in the second. It seems that somebody's work is his-name, while in the act of creating, was really trying to create the perfect pocket billboards picture. The accuracy of thought was not good and, at least it can be seen that the whole thing can be explained in terms of balls.

There aren't any and those that are hard to find; most of them being somewhere in Manaba to stick the remaining refugees. It was also explained that most of the important and necessary change taking place was being done by people named Finigan. It seems strange that until the present time only James Joyce and Bruce Leary have seen this thing, but there must be times, once seen never understood.

It was time to get out of that place some and the boys, along with the girls, the animals, and the wine procured by way of the door straight into the waiting straight jacks of the SPICA who claimed they were containing too much about the animals that ran the show and about the pet store.

"It helps those little critter find good homes," said Sgt. Jack Friday carefully skirting the issue of the buzzard and the French wine. "But there's just no way you hippies can understand that, is there?"

Well, that's what happened to us last night. Just another night of fun and frivolity in Smiles, Idaho. As Mr. Natural says, "Keep on truckin'". I lawvvy add, "If all you got.

And then, one strange night...

By Anton Mynotaur

Leaving Castleworthy at the corner of 8th and Lewis streets, we all proceded to the alpha Gamma Delta wine tasting party. We went because we wanted to see just what it was the hippies were doing but as usual didn't get in because our hair wasn't exactly 8 inches long and our bell bottoms didn't bell quite enough. Not only did we miss this party one.

After facing the reality of our rejection, we went back to the tavern, stood a little around the tables and got drunk. Just about that time Bruce (Timothy) Leary came in the door and had to face the reality of his own rejection. You've got to understand, there's no way a person can relate to Momie's answer to Majorshi Swarzit in any way acceptable to either of you. However, neither rejection nor reality stops Leary as he spoke:

"Blatz-blitz-blitz Fogeley. You can't shoot.

Withdrawing the needle from my arm I said, "You're a turkey, Leary. I can shoot with the best of them."

So saying, I proceeded to shoot up a thousand grains of LSD. 40 dollars worth of heroin, 4 billion mics of methadone and all the pop in Moscow, not mentioning the mountain. After a short while Leary began to make sense.

"I just did a sit there, my mouth hanging open and my eyes closed while the operations of the earth and its peoples were explained to me in terms that any jenkie could understand.

My eyes were closed but I could see, and seeing, while not necessarily believing, helps the understanding.

The entire plot was explained to me about how the whole thing was a colossal

Interdisciplinary Studies

Freshmen program combines courses

The University's experimental Freshmen Interdisciplinary Studies Program encourages students to think of themselves and to relate materials learned in class to everyday living, said Dr. David Barber, one of the three teachers in the program. The program is started to encourage student initiative and to show students the significance of the courses that they are taking and the application and interrelation of these courses to their lives," Barber said.

Dr. William Berquist and Dr. Harry Caldwell also construct the studies program.

Barber teaches the English 101 course, Berquist teaches the Psychology 100 courses, and Geography 253 — Cultural Geography — taught by Caldwell.

Courses interrelated

"We only teach the courses," Barber said. "We show how one course relates to the other two."

Barber said that the students may write an English paper relating what they have learned in Geography to what they have learned in Psychology.

"For instance," Barber said. "The students wrote a paper on Aggressiveness from the stand point of bio-psyche and psych. This teaches them to think about what they've learned in class and how the facts they learned in the classes relate to each other. In short, it makes them think on their own."

Different teacher methods

Barber said that the methods used to teach the interdisciplinary program are different from those used on regular college courses.

"We work more with the students' initiative," Barber said. "There's a lot less class structure and we do more improvising. This helps us to be able to run the class more as the way the students want to run the class."

Barber said that the teaching methods vary from lectures, group discussions, role playing, videotapes to group and individual projects.

Work in groups

"Most of the work done is in groups," Barber said. "Sometimes we split the students into three groups and each group supervises a group. More and more we're going to groups of five or six students that are independent from direct control by the teachers."

Barber said that during the first nine weeks the students gave specific assignments — regular chapters to read, reports due, etc.

"Now, at the end of the semester, we are devoting the time to individual projects that will be turned in at the end of the semester as an English paper. This means an independent study on the part of the individual student. It will then be possible to see if the interdisciplinary idea has worked out," Barber said.

Students reaction

A student in the interdisciplinary program said, "I prefer the interdisciplinary setup much more than my ordinary classes. There is a less rigid structure and I feel more relaxed and free to express my true feelings."

She said that she especially liked the teaching methods used.

"Like one time we listened to the rock opera 'Tommy' and discussed it," she said. "And another time we went to the swimming pool to see how people react in a different environment."

She said that the students read assignments from their text books and list the principles that they have discovered in their readings.

Principles analyzed

"The principles are never written out for us," she said. "We have to analyze them for ourselves."

"This taught me to pick out concepts instead of just a bunch of facts. I feel that I've learned a lot."

42 freshmen

The Freshmen Interdisciplinary studies Program class consists of 42 freshmen.

Last summer all freshmen applying to the University were sent applications for the program.

The application asked interested students to tell why they would like to participate in this program, what they could get out of it, and what they could contribute to it.

GPA not determinant

"High school GPA was not taken into consideration," Barber said. "We didn't even ask for it on the application."

The 42 students receive nine credits for the interdisciplinary program, three each for English, psychology and geography.

The class meets every Tuesday and Thursday from 8 a.m. until noon in the Campus Christian Center.

Groups picking up waste may not be necessary

Containers left in the football stadium may be collected by Boy Scouts. Girl Scouts, or other organizations.

However, this proposal presented to the athletic department for consideration would not be implemented until next fall, and then only if there is a need said Frank McCreary, the University Relations Coordinator.

There were only a minor number of containers at the last game as compared with the Homecoming game, with no reports of incidences of thrown bottles, according to Ed Kosche, athletic director.

Bottles in the stadium were used and the contents taken to the re-cycling center in Moscow, he said. People continue to be conscientious about the types of containers brought in and disposal of glass in provided waste receptacles, it probably won't be necessary to hire these organizations to collect containers, said Koscet.

Sun sets on Vandal season with defeat

The sun has set on Vandal football for 1971. Amidst the hours of bright sunshine, there were times of unexpected cloudiness. The most promising day will fast $53.50. The successful season in Idaho football history ended in a cloudy disappointment Saturday as the Utah State Aggies blanked the Vandal, 42-13.

The name of the game was interception. Utah State picked off a pass, interception goal Shelley days and snowed on others name 25 Banff even. The three 11 your attempts at Clinics 12 do a finalized Moscow following the took of the zone. Right new frequencies with Jim Welch to the fourth quarter for Rod Maynard, who played a fine defensive football and scored a key touchdown on a punt return. Despite excellent defensive plays by Maynard and Randy Hall, the aerial attack of the Utah State Aggies overpowered the Vandal's entire game. The fourth touchdown early in the third period sealed to break the Big Sky Champs. But Big Sky Champs they are, not to be overlooked by the Aggies. The Aggies and the Vandal have teamed up for the best football team the University of Idaho has ever seen.

Ski clubs make plans

Christmas and semester break plans have been finalized by the New Vandal Ski Club.
Festivities will begin with a Warren Miller ski film, "The Sound of Winter," to be presented Sunday evening. It will be shown at the SUB Ballroom at 7 and 9:15 p.m. that evening. Admission is $1 for the general public and 75 cents for those people presenting New Vandal Ski Club or WSU Dating Club membership cards. Warren Miller is the most renowned producer of ski films in the world today. His films make the viewer feel like he is actually skiing. The admission proceeds will be donated by the Ski Club to the American Red Cross to support their foreign student exchange program in Moscow High School.
The film is the beginning of this year's Ski Club winter activities. The club is planning a 5 day and 3 day ski trip to Banff, Canada, in the Canadian Rockies prior to second semester registration. The cost of the 5 day trip will be $112.00 and the 3 day trip will be $70.50. The price for non-Ski Club members will be $112.50 and $82.50 respectively. Membership dues are $3 for students, $5 for faculty and staff, and $6 for the general public.
The 5 day trip will leave Moscow on January 10, at 6:30 p.m. There will be a short layover in Spokane and the buses will arrive in Banff at approximately 6:30 a.m. the next morning. On January 11 and 12, the club will ski to Sunshine Village and Lake Louise.
On January 13, the 3 day trip will leave Moscow at 6:30 p.m. and join the 5 day trippers in Banff to ski at Norquay. Sunshine Village, and Lake Louise. The club will leave to return to Moscow directly from Lake Louise after the last day.
The costs of the trip includes transportation, lift tickets, lodging, and all meals except lunches. Dinner on Jan. 15 will be up to each individual.
Banff trip deposits of $60 must be paid on or before Dec. 30 by all people planning to go on either trip. Ski Club President, Roger Stone and Treasurer, Roy Butler will be in one of the small conference rooms on the first floor of the SUB every Thursday from now until Dec. 15, to take deposits and membership dues and to discuss trip plans. The balance of the trip cost is payable preferably as soon as possible and must be paid before boarding the buses. After Dec. 10, the $30 deposit will be non-refundable.
The Ski Club activities scheduled at the last meeting for this Friday will take place as planned. The room will be posted at the SUB information desk. Activities will begin at 8 p.m.

For plenty of skiing enjoyment this winter, and especially during the Christmas vacation, come to the Warren Miller ski move Dec. 5, and start the season out on the right ski.

John Styczka and a 62 yard interception romp by Bloom.

The Vandal crowd got their second chance in the fourth quarter as Rod Maynard, who played a fine defensive football and scored a key touchdown on a punt return. Despite excellent defensive plays by Maynard and Randy Hall, the aerial attack of the Utah State Aggies overpowered the Vandal's entire game. The fourth touchdown early in the third period sealed to break the Big Sky Champs. But Big Sky Champs they are, not to be overlooked by the Aggies.

Words from coach Robbins

"argonaut"

"I wish to take this opportunity on behalf of myself, the staff and members of the football team, to thank the student body for the tremendous support and backing at both the home and away games and referendum vote on the future of athletics at the University of Idaho.

I sincerely believe that with the completion of the athletic complex, and your continued support, the athletic fortunes at the University of Idaho will continue to rise. It will be a pleasure that the students and Alumni and supporters in the northwest will be able to look upon with great pride.

I would also like to encourage your continued support during the coming basketball season and of course support for Idaho athletic programs in their respective seasons.

Thanks again and our very best wishes for a happy and safe holiday season.

Second semester

Financial aid possibilities scarce

Students caught short of funds for second semester will find little university help.

Charles Decker, dean of students and scholar-ship czar, warns that the availability of financial aid is very slight, only possible if a few students on yearly funding decide to stay.

For students seeking help with costs for the remainder of the school year, there may be help available outside of the areas of National Defense Student Loans. There are lists for students who may qualify in the financial aids office of the University Classroom Center.

Pick up application

Dean Decker even designates the coming month as the time to pick up applications for next year's financial assistance.

According to him, application forms, Parents' Confidential Statement, and lists of general and specific college scholarships offers will be available in the financial office by mid-December for studying over Christmas vacation. Financial aid can take the form of outright scholarship aid where an application is necessary. Other programs include the Educational Opportunity Grants, College Work Study, National Defense Student Loans, and federally issued Student Loans, all requiring proof of economic need by the student.

Parents' Confidential statement. The deadline for returning students' applications is April 7, 1972. That is also the recommended filing date for all other applications to insure primary consideration and notification by June 1. The Parents' Confidential Statement, which must be sent to Berkeley, California, should be mailed by March 1 to allow a month for processing.

Dean Decker could not cite any cutbacks yet in next year's federal assistance. The university has requested nearly double the amount in some areas allotted this year but actual financing will not be disclosed until spring. Bill all student funding are now before Congress and the future depends on governmental action.

On the university level, scholarship decrease from the parking for may result in cuts from $11,000 offered this year to approximately $7,000 next year. Threatened elimination or cutbacks of the bookstore scholarships - benefiting 70 students each year — have not yet been acted upon and next year's offers remain unchanged.

Geologists may apply

As professionals

Application forms for registering as a professional geologist in Idaho are now available through the Boise office of the Idaho Board of Registration for Professional Geologists, according to Dr. John G. Bond, secretary of the organization and professor of geology at the University of Idaho.

The organization was formed by executive order of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus in June, 1971, in order to safeguard public interest concerning the practice of geology. The board is also charged with insuring a satisfactory level of geologic competence for those in the profession.

Members of board

Other members of the governing board include Robert G. Chambers, chairman, state geologist with the Idaho Department of Highways, Boise; Keith E. Anderson, vice chairman, consulting geologist with the firm of Anderson and Floyd, Boise; Russell J. Huyton, a senior geologist with the F. M. C. Corp., Pocatello; and Norman A. Rudford, a mine geologist with the Bunker Hill Co., Kellogg.

Bond said that any geologist who consults in Idaho or anticipates permanently practicing geology in the State of Idaho where public interests are involved should apply for membership. He also noted the inclusion of a "grandfather clause" in the state law. This will allow geologists who register before this time to join.

Membership application

Those wishing to apply for membership in this manner or who wish to register for membership must apply to the Secretary of State's office before May 20, 1972. Requests for applications may be made to the board at the Capital building, P. O. Box 7863, Boise.

Senate asks for present sport funding

In a special meeting Monday the ASUI Senate passed a resolution directing the university president and the Board of Regents to follow the findings of October's advisory vote on athletic funding.

The resolution, in view of the conflicting ideas drawn from the voting results, requested the president and Regents to attempt to maintain the current level of overall athletic programs and to increase financial or other forms of emphasis on minor sports. The resolution also asked that if the current funding of athletics becomes insufficient in the future that the funding or program cuts be sought rather than an increase in student fees.

Birth, survival focus of agriculture study

Birth and survival are the focus of two new research projects in the University of Idaho College of Agriculture. One project relates to fertility in cows and the other to death in calves.

The Department of Animal Industries has just started a five-year experiment with cows to determine the lowest energy level tolerated and still maintain maximum fertility. The Department of Veterinary Science is conducting a study to determine which diseases are associated with calf losses and to develop control measures.

"We want to find out what is the least amount of energy a rachner can feed and still get optimum reproductive performance," explained Ross E. Christian, animal physiologist. "We know low energy levels can delay the age of puberty in heifers and can affect the cow's return to normal reproduction after calving.

60 Hereford heifers

"We're working with 60 bred commercial Hereford heifers. We'll feed half of them a normal ration that is 106 per cent of the National Research Council feeding rate. We'll start the other half on a ration that is 85 per cent of these recommendations, then we'll adjust up or down in 10 per cent steps to find the breaking point."

The research on calf disease will take place all over Idaho. Dr. Harry W. Vaughn will collect specimens "wherever there's a problem." Specimens from bacteria-caused disease will be sent to the university's Caldwell Branch Experiment Station and those that are virus-caused to the Clinical Animal Disease Center of Veterinary Science.

The research for this is explained by Dr. Floyd W. Frank, department head. "We have to be able to determine the cause of the disease through procedures which involve isolation of the causative organisms in the laboratory and subsequent animal inoculation trials in which the typical disease is reproduced. After we can reproduce the diseases, we start developing vaccines or other types of controls."

Large-scale research

These two projects are part of large-scale research being conducted in 14 western states. Other universities are studying bacteria-caused diseases in cattle and those of California, Texas, Arizona, and others are looking at the effects of nutrition and nutrition on the animals.
