The Gem

is coming
do we care?

Yearbooks going down?

Are yearbooks on the decline? Are they relevant to today's college student? The answers to these questions depend on who replies. Pischel Yearbooks, the company which has printed the Gem of the Mountains for the last two years, claims that yearbooks took a dip in popularity but are now coming back. But other sources disagree. Newsweek magazine said in its June 5 issue that about a dozen have ceased publication, many schools can't find staffs, circulation and advertising are dragging and students seem apathetic towards the traditional yearbook. The article noted the death of the University of Washington's "Tye" and said that Stanford's "Quad" had 600 copies unsold. As for those who turned out to have photos taken for yearbooks, 10 under half of Stanford's seniors turned out and at the University of Wisconsin, only 19 per cent of the seniors bothered to be photographed.

Does all this apply to the University of Idaho? According to the editor for this year's Gem, Jackie Hadenfeldt, the Gem is not dead; neither is it in the process of dying. She noted that over a third of the student body signed up to pay the additional fee to get the yearbook and that despite rumors that people living off-campus supposedly care less about the Gem than anyone else, a greater percentage of off-campus students turned up to have their portraits taken for last year's Gem.

She says she feels college yearbooks are coming back into popularity. Several colleges and universities, she said, have dropped their yearbooks or tried making them into magazines or other less permanent records. She feels several have found this inadequate and have returned to the traditional hardbound yearbook.

"A magazine or whatever just can't serve as a historical record as a hardback," she added.

According to Newsweek, those yearbooks which aren't dead are changing, realistically and even drastically. University of California at Berkeley cut the number of sports pages from 70 to 20. put in six pages on campus sex, drugs and alcohol, added articles about campus figures including radicals and singer and added six pages about Telegraph Avenue life.

At Louisiana State, the "Gumbo" used photos of naked, sold a record number of copies and was condemned by the state legislature.

Newsweek noted that "At many institutions, conventional yearbooks are still thriving, especially on smaller campuses and at state colleges where students are more vocationally and politically oriented.
The University of Idaho's Gem of the Mountains has recorded a lot of history in its 70 year span. It has recorded the building of a university, the ups and downs of its athletic teams and the building up and the burning down of campus buildings. It has also recorded the ups and downs of skirt hem lengths and college fads.

It has grown from the tiny volume of 1903 to its present average size of 300 pages. It began as a project of the junior class and consisted primarily of a listing of the names of students. It had few pictures and put its main emphasis on campus traditions...young as they were.

The Gem grew in some way each year for the next few decades. In 1910, it included the faculty and gave the Argonaut a big story, editorials were even reprinted. No Gem was printed in 1905 due to a lack of finances, but it revived in 1906 to record the burning of the Administration Building.

The big stories in the years which followed were: 1907, Kappa Sigma became the first national fraternity on campus; 1908, a literature section featuring humor, poems and jokes was added (it also was a big sports year); 1909, Gamma Phi Beta was the first national sorority on campus; 1910, the Gem was enlarged and serious stories were added; and in 1912, editor George O'Donnell split the living groups into greeks and independents.

1915 was the first year in which students were listed by class and home town. It was the end of group class shots. The books in 1916 and 1917 were smaller.

1918 was the year in which the idea of having a theme for each yearbook was firmly established. That year it followed the idea of pioneers traveling in the Northwest. Men joined the women on the campus personalities pages in 1928 and a big spread was given to the dedication of the Memorial Gym.

1931 was the year of the "Campus Wheel," anyone who was "anyone" on campus got a photo and a write-up. This began a tradition which has survived in one form or another into the 1970's.

A "Beautiful Campus" section was the big feature of 1932 and much attention was given the new Vandal song "Go Vandal Go" which had been written that year for the Freshman Glee celebration, another hallowed tradition.

The return of the glorification of campus big-shots and beauties was completed in 1948 with the return of the campus beauty section. Gems from 1948 on are characterized by several well-established features. With little variation, there are pages devoted to abstract shots of campus life, plays, athletics, dances, campus hijinks, important events like the 1949 Little International Livestock Show, ASUI personalities and officers and pictures of students in their proper class category and with their living groups.

The Gem has changed somewhat, however. The biennial issue which came out last year carried summaries of graduate research projects and delved into some seniors' projects. Dances and the like have been given much less play than in the 30's and 40's.
The yearbook deal:

Students speak on their $5 worth

The students at Idaho are beginning to realize that the University is not America and is far from being democratic. They know now that when the administration takes a poll the results probably won't be listened to anyway.

Last spring when the administration asked the student body whether it wanted a yearbook, the majority said it did but on a subscription basis and most students said they only wanted to pay a maximum of $5 for it. This fall, however, the book is only partly on a subscription basis and the total cost of the book is $10.

Typical of the University

When asked about this move, most students found it typical of the University and were surprised by the situation rather than the University was doing such a thing.

"It simply violates the right to choose and reject," says Doug Gulver while relaxing in the sun. "If that book had any merit they wouldn't have to force the students to get it. Then if it didn't last they wouldn't have to pay for it."

Protecting Minority

When Gulver was asked to be thought the University was protecting the minority that wanted the yearbook from the majority who didn't want it, "that's putting words in my mouth but that's about it."

Gulver also says he doesn't think its logical to make those who oppose something to pay for it and by doing so keep the book going.

Of all the people interviewed only two knew that they were paying for the book whether they bought it or not. One found out through the grapevine and the other from the cashier at registration.

"No, I didn't know that," says Marcia Marigue in a surprised voice. "If I would have known that I wouldn't have bought it."

The students aren't the only ones who can't understand the fairness of the university.

Ronald Klimko a professor in the music department says he has to admit he has taught here five years and has only looked through the contents once.

"As a matter of fact I have only seen it once and that was at the publication office one day when I was waiting for something," says Klimko.

"I know one thing it sure doesn't seem to be very popular with the students," he says. "Not being personally involved I think I can say its not the fairest thing.

The fairest thing, according to the mod music professor, would be to jack up the price for those who wanted it badly enough.

One of those who seem to want it so badly is Louise Scharnhorst. When the situation was proposed she laughed and said, "I don't see anything wrong," then she laughed again saying if you want it if you should get if it, you don't.

When asked what she thought would happen if the yearbook failed she said, "I'm an enthusiastic voice she added, "every college needs a yearbook."

---

Sales: Mason shoes, all sizes, top quality. Satisfaction guaranteed. Men's, Ladies, Children's 882-4149.

For Sale: Poster Volsag slide rule. Never used. $15. 882-4149.

For Sale: One dozen hard-craft pottery mugs. Glazed, raw, $2.50 ea. Also matching souffle dish, $6.00. Will sell as set or groups. 882-1076.

For Sale: 1970 Yamaha, 175 cc dirt or trail. $300. 882-1070.

Call evening.

For Sale: The establishment believes you won't read: None Dare Call It Conspiracy—now available at Student Bookstore. 882-9416, ask for Jan.

Musat have cash for rent. Stereo reel-to-reel player-recorder, $100.00. See staff artist Angounou offices 3 to 6 daily during week days.

Two male albino Abyssinian guinea pigs. One adult, one baby. Call 882-1076, $4.00 each. After 6 p.m.

For Sale: 90 inch couch, beige, $40. 882-5794.

'69 Opr G.T. silver ext., red int., 1.1 liter, full instrumentation, 4 speed, bucket seats, $1900. 882-4148.

I have an introduction to a literature book by Barret Berman and Burton for Eng. 175. Brand new. Will sell for $5.00. 882-3065.

'71 Honda 360cc, 500 miles. 882-1683 after 5 or 882-0265 any time.

---

Tutors wanted $1.60-2.00 per hour. Apply Tutorial Services. Ed 110F 885-4520.

---

MISCELLANEOUS

Boo tube busted? K & V TV, next to Health Spa on 3rd (open till 9) 882-7171.

There will be a Free University this fall. Notices have been posted on campus and in town. Please feel free to make any suggestions for courses that you would like to see taught. For further information check at Talisman House.

Free Tax drop-in tutors available Tutorial Services.

The organizational meeting of the Moscow food co-op was at Talisman House 885-6371. Viewpoint: College level discussion of the role of Christianity in contemporary society. Is the church relevant today? Can we learn anything from the activities of the early church? Is the church spirit for us today? Share your views with us each Sunday morning at 8:45 at Johnnie's Cafe. Sponsored by Moscow Assembly of God.

Reading Clinic — improve reading comp. and speed. Organizational meeting Mon., 3 p.m. or contact Tu.

Tutors. Copy and save this add for future reference. Typing of all kinds done. By the page or by the hour. Professional, reasonable. Rates 1111 Deakin, married student housing. 882-4149.

Ag. Bar & B-Q and Awards Assembly, 6-9 p.m. Sept 17, 2 at Adams Pavilion. 75c children under 12, $1.50 adults.

Free Pussy Cats. 8 weeks old. Solid black, white or combinations. Call 882-0411 or 882-3065 after 6:00.

Free Give-Away bed and couch, 100.00. 882-0220.

Apartments — Blaine Manor furnished or unfurnished, 1, 2 and 3 bedrooms 882-4721.

Lost: White female dog with rifle collar. Call Lyle Powers, 895-7101 No. 68.

Couple with cat need clean apt. Call 882-1893.

View SYMMS FOR CONGRESS table in SUB Friday and Saturday. Acquaint yourself with this refreshing young spokesman of freedom. Pick up your buttons, bumper stickers, and literature while you last.

All students and faculty are invited to participate at the testimonial meetings of the Christian Science organization held at a Thurs. at 2 p.m. at the Campus Christian Center.

Due To Popular Demand

We will give you all classifieds

One More Issue Call 885-6371 or 885-6484

---

Page 2
Women at U of I:

by Valerie Vickstrom

The opening of University of Idaho’s Women’s Center marks a step forward in male-female relationships in all aspects of campus life and hopefully will expand into a service valuable not only to the University, but also to the Moscow community.

Expanded goals of the Center’s organizers are not only to serve and advise women on their particular problems, but also to increase the female population of the U of I campus.

And not only in student roles, but in roles of faculty and administrative personnel.

According to Student Director Louise Dressen, the male-female ratio stands at three-to-one, or a percentage of 25%, women in terms of total students and enrollment of women at U of I is up this fall.

Which sounds shocking, especially when one considers that the Regents consider the U of I first in terms of student enrollment.

But what sounds more shocking is that on this campus, only 12% of the faculty and only 22% of the top administrators are women.

Faced with these figures, one could deduce that the Women’s Center has, “a man-size job” to accomplish.

But the Center has definite, clearly-outlined plans, which could not only solve the University’s “women problems” but also enhance both life and academices for men and women on the U of I campus.

Initially the Center was an illegal referral service for University and Community women, providing information on birth control and abortion as well as other questions.

Of major importance will be the Center’s ability to act as a successful referral service for women with status, education, or personal questions, which women at the Center do not feel qualified to answer.

The Center will also provide special-interest programs and will serve as a speakers’ bureau for both campus and community organizations.

But perhaps the most important service of the Center will be its high-school recruitment program whereby the Center hopes to equalize the male-female student ratio on campus.

According to Dressen, a study made by the university showed that over a four-year period, 51% of the women undergraduate students withdrew from school. The same survey showed that only 9% of the undergraduate men withdrew.

Faced with these figures, the administration and the U of I Women’s Caucus formulated the Women’s Center to help do something about them.

Side-effects of a nearly equal male-female student body would include expansion of curriculum of interest to women and more female openings for women in academic programs formerly considered only for men.

This expansion would hopefully also lead to the hiring of more women in faculty and administrative positions.

However, these positions would not be filled just with women, to raise a quota, but they would be filled with academically-qualified people, regardless of sex, race, or religion.

One column cannot possibly include everything that would be accomplished by an effective Women’s Center on the University of Idaho campus, in the Moscow community, and even within the professions, business, and the general economy of the state of Idaho.

But interested students can help make an effective center a reality by finding out about all the Center’s goals.

Stop in the Center.

Read about discrimination, breaking of legal sex barriers, population control, the men’s point of view, humor, and news of women at the University of Idaho.

But most important, read about and consider the Center as something you can be a part of, and help make your school and community more viable and a better-working part of a world full of people working to help people.

Don’t shatter the fans

Many people, student and faculty alike, enjoy something cool (or hot) to drink at a football game and tomorrow will be no exception. This beverage can consist of anything from hot chocolate to lemonade to coke — Right?!

To enhance or hide the flavor of these thirst-quenching but somewhat bland drinks some people like to spice them up a bit. (This does not mean putting marshmallows in the hot chocolate or cherries in the lemonade.)

Avid football fans and not so avid football fans bring an assortment of alcoholic blends into the game with them. True — this is against University policy, but alas this liquid contraband usually finds a way to get smuggled in.

Once in the stadium the brew gets in the people and once in the people the glass dehydrates from wine, beer and/or whisky etched in the stadium goers, a thermos, bota bag or plastic container, however, just ends up peacefully empty.

Having to dodge a wine bottle or getting maimed by an empty fifth of Early Times can sober a person up very quickly. (Almost as quickly as getting thrown up on.) Consequently, if you’re going to take something to drink, regard its content, take it in a container that isn’t going to shatter all over everyone and everything.

And, with the new stadium holding 18,000 spectators, it probably would be a lot quicker if people living on and near campus walked to the game instead of drove. This not only would get you into the game faster but get you out faster too. Cheers!

Basic courses can be skipped by taking tests

Students who want to save time and money and adults who have wanted to go to college but didn’t want to waste time on freshmen-level courses, have a new option at the University of Idaho.

College Level Examination Program (CLEP) tests will be offered at the U of I the third Friday and Saturday of each month in the UCC.

Credits Toward Degree

All credits earned on the CLEP tests can be applied toward various college degrees subject to the discretion of each department chairman.

A score in or above the 50th percentile is needed to validate CLEP credits here.

A general 60-minute test in English is offered but will not be scored. Credits are earned at U of I. However, credit can be received for freshmen English by taking the 90-minute CLEP subject and essay exam in English composition.

Credits Through Examination

An applicant can earn 60 hours of credit (worth $425 at U of I) by taking either the general examinations ($15 for one, $25 for two or more) or any of 21 subject examinations ranging in courses from American government to introductory biology and from English composition to art appreciation.

The general subject tests in humanities, mathematics, natural sciences, and social sciences are 90 minutes each and are designed to measure general knowledge and learning from both traditional and non-traditional degrees.

Those interested in the CLEP tests may apply at the Student Counseling Center, UCC 309, three weeks in advance for the general exams and one month before a subject exam.

the people speak

The Argonaut will accept letters to the editor on all topics. If the editor believes that all sides of a particular topic have been presented to Argonaut readers then no further letters will be printed on that topic.

The Argonaut will attempt to print all letters, however, preference will be given to short letters. Letters of unusual length (more than two typed pages) will not be printed except under unusual circumstances.

All letters to the editor must be typed and double spaced. No letters in verse form will be accepted.

The Argonaut reserves the right to edit all letters submitted to the editor and reserves the right to determine style and space limitations.

Idaho Argonaut

The Idaho Argonaut is entered as second class matter, publication at Moscow, Idaho office 83842

Our goal is information and our message is peace

Editor

Bill Fitzgerald

Associate Editor

Diana Pfaffinger

Assistant News Editor

Barbara Sinclair

Editorial Assistant

Doris Urban

Reporting Editor

Mark Frizner

Discussion Editor

Kimi Kondo

Sports Editor

Kim Crotton

Columns Editor

Rod Gunner

Special Assignment Reporters

Mike Goss

Jim Slack

Charlie Spencer

Marshall Hall

Valerie Vickstrom

Advertising Manager

Steve Barge

Umpire Reporters

Dave Carlson

Dave Fetters

Craig Marshall

Staff Reporters

Mike Munch

Photographers

Jim Haggard

Roy Kewitz
Occult week arises Monday

Both the serious and humorous sides of the supernatural will be explored starting Monday when the University of Idaho observes "Occult Week."

Four days of magic, science, films, lectures and demonstrations will be presented by the ASUI in observance of the nationally-proclaimed week according to Evelyn Hedges, chairman of the events.

"We're going to try to show some of the different aspects of the occult," Hedges said.

LeWiston astrologist Kenneth Hopkins will present a lecture-demonstration entitled "A Case for Astrology" at 7:30 p.m. in the Vandal Lounge (SUB) as the week begins. Monday, Hopkins will interpret the movements of the stars and explain some of the major concepts behind the recently-revived astrological movement.

Tuesday, U of I psychology department staff members Bob Lehman and Bob Gregory will explain the scientific view of telepathic communications with a lecture-demonstration on "Science and ESP" also at 7:30 p.m. in the Vandal Lounge. Two Edgar Allan Poe chillers will come to the screen (free!) in the SUB Ballroom Wednesday. "Masque of the Red Death" starring Vincent Price and "The Raven" will each be shown twice between 6 and midnight.

Occult Week will end Thursday with performances by Mandrake the Magician. Mandrake will present feats of wonder at 4 and 6 p.m. in the Borah Theatre. Students must present their ID's for Mandrake's show. Admittance for non-students is $1 for children and $2 for adults.

All programs scheduled for Occult Week are open to the general public and those on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, are free.

Occult Week is being sponsored by ASUI.

ACE 2nd HAND
215 West Third
BUY—SELL—TRADE
Furniture—Appliances
Open 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.
Closed Sundays
SEE OUR BACKROOM SPECIALS!

The VARSITY CAFE
& LOUNGE
STEAKS DINNER—LUNCHES
Downtown Moscow
Paging in Rear

Congressman
JIM McCLURE
Wants To Meet You
Postgame Coffee Hour
MAIN LOBBY
STUDENT UNION
Saturday, Sept. 16
Following Idaho-Ohio U. Game

Collegemaster
Number ONE
In College Sales
Insurance, Investment and Savings
To See If You Qualify
See:
R. Wade Curtis
620 S. Jackson
882-3891
Fidelity Union Life Ins. Co.

What's happening
by Mark Fritzler
Weekend madness prevails

Putting aside my hard-hat (literally) for a time and donning the eveshades and sleeve garters of a journalist, I find myself trying to make sense out of what passes for life on campus here. It is not too difficult, which is the point. From the aspect of diversions specifically entertainment in the broadest sense, I find the circle completing itself.

Perhaps tenure on this page for more than one year is dangerous. (Perhaps tenure in this town for too long is suicidal.)

What I mean to say is that there is hardly a damned thing new under the sun! Does this mean that there is not anything different or creative or does it mean that people really are satisfied with permutations and combinations of the same things over and over? Depressing thought.

By itself, this weekend is a manic frenzy. Football is off with the season home opener in our brand new, tartan-turled egg roll. Great weather for it.

We have two dances on the books, in keeping with the kinetic nature of the time. Theodorus Tower is sponsoring a free outdoor dance Saturday night from 9:00 p.m. to midnight in the plaza in front of the Tower. Music is by "An'naconda," from Spokane. Should the weather turn inclement the dance will be moved to the SUB Ballroom.

"Blind Willie," is playing tonight in the SUB Ballroom from 9:00 p.m. to midnight. Admission is $1.50 per person. If you recall last Spring's Blue Mountain Two, you will remember that "Blind Willie" was a big hit. They put out some great original music and the band members are all veterans of Northwest music. In addition they will feature a bluegrass picker J. Robert Houghtaling, who will open the show and play at intermission between sets. For current sound and talent, it should be good show.

Movie-wise, you couldn't ask for a wider choice of fare. Many times the uncommonly good selection of films in the Moscow area saves us. (Sammer is the big exception. The theatre owner builds up his "O"-rated Brownie points here.) We have "Fitz, the Cat." All readers of the popular favorite of the comic book set "ZAP!" will instantly recognize this — you'll pardon the expression — cat. It is enough to say that it is an "X"-rated cartoon with all the good things of today's society — violence, sex, drugs, blood, bigotry, etc. This is a message movie.

Next door, Robert Redford bears an uncanny resemblance to a Kennedy in "The Candidate." This is a well-made vision of the hucksterism implicit in so much of our political life, especially during campaigns. The question is: What has your won when you actually win?

Pullman has the latest Hitchcock opus, "Frenzy." Confirmed Hitchcock fans will please forget "Topaz," his last picture, pass go, and see this one. Also in Pullman is "Shaft's Big Score!" the follow-up adventure of "Shaft," the "James Bond" of black detectives, as Richard Roundtree is billed.

In the SUB, the Wallace Complex film series is showing "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here," another Robert Redford flick of some fame. Shows are at 7:00 and 9:00 p.m. tonight and tomorrow in the SUB Borah Theatre.

If seeing premieres of new Fall TV shows bore you, take in a movie. There are some very good choices.

In my shot at lack of creativity in diversion and entertainment I make one exception to date: the ASUI Program's efforts and ideas. I believe there is great potential and certain great dedication here. The "Week of the Occult" is original and promises to be very interesting.

Oh, yes, the Fair. For fair fakes (like myself) the Latah County Fair is this weekend. I love 'em. You might, too.

For Only A Scent More

We have just received a large shipment of assorted candles. We have decorator candles, candles within a candle, layered candles, and worth noting is the specialty of the house: a musical candle. It doesn't do requests, but does a nice job of "Shadow of Your Smile." We also have a large selection of fall wreaths. You'll Luv 'em, they're reasonably priced.

Luv's
514 Main
882-7910
Idaho footballers Ready for Ohio

The Idaho Vandals face their first test of the season tomorrow when they face the quick Ohio Bobcats at the New Idaho Stadium at 1:30 p.m. The Vandals, although larger in size, are 17 point underdogs to the smaller, and much quicker Ohio squad.

Despite the fact that the Vandals are underdogs against Ohio University, the fact that the team will be playing their first game of the season in their own new stadium and with a home crowd cheering them, should add incentive to their attitude.

Unfortunately, a handicap to the Vandals will be the fact that they have nine players on the injury list and four of those are starters. Also they will have to play without their No. 1 quarterback, Rick Seefried, which leaves them with only two quarterbacks, neither of which have any varsity game experience at all.

However, behind the accurate arm of Ross Goddard and a talented defensive unit, the Vandals will be no push-over in what promises to be a closer and more exciting game than some might expect.

Vandal program

The 1971 University of Idaho Vandal football team were Big Sky Conference champions. Head football coach Don Robbins was Inland Empire Coach of the Year. Can the 1972 Vandals stand the pressure of last year's most successful season in history? Will injuries plague the Vandals in their attempt to capture the Big Sky crown again? Will Robbins continue to be the winningest Coach in Vandal football?

Robbins thinks the chances are good and he talks about them, injuries, last seasons team, and the new Idaho Stadium.

The timely comments of Robbins as well as film highlights of last seasons play and fall football scrimmages will be presented on Channel 12's "Vandal Football '72: A Pre-Season Preview."

The program, produced at the University of Idaho, is the first in a weekly series designed to investigate the '72 Vandals and their quest for the Big Sky crown. Each week film highlights of the past weekends game, with commentary by Robbins and Sports Information Director Bob Maker, will attempt to give the local Idaho football fan all the information he needs to stay in tune with the Vandals.

Two unidentified Vandal footballers await their chance to play in a scrimmage last week. Idaho opens their football season this Saturday in the New Idaho Stadium against Ohio University.
Dal continuing support to the team. "The new stadium will make it easier to attract fans. We're not 'out behind Wallace anymore. There's been a rise in interest in soccer on this campus in the last year, and what we need now is to have people out there cheering."

As League champions, and as winners of the Washington State University Tournament in 1970, the team displayed great skill in ball control and handling, according to the new coach. The greatest area of concentration in practices this year will be conditioning, building stamina and endurance.

The United States is one of the few countries in the world where soccer, also known as association football, is not a major sport. However, Nick, who taught soccer at a sports camp in Rhode Island this past summer, sees a new trend developing in the U.S.

Out east, he says, although soccer can't yet compete with the three established team sports, football, basketball and baseball, kids in grade school and high school are playing soccer in their gym classes, and many youngsters already state, 'My favorite sport is soccer.' Nick predicts that in about ten years, soccer in the East will be as popular as any sport.

Here in Idaho it used to be non-existent, but now it's catching on. In other places, a movement toward soccer is developing rapidly. In St. Louis, children kick a soccer ball around as commonly as most kids toss a football. In New York, little league soccer matches are becoming popular.

What's the secret of enjoying a soccer match? Nick believes there are two important factors: exposure and familiarity. "You have to grow up with it, see a few games, learn to recognize the players and develop loyalty to them, and above all, understand the rules."

So, support the team and do your American friends a favor: take them to a soccer game and introduce them to a coming sport.

Dandies from Dexter

There's definitely something new a-foot. Keep an eye on Dexter. The pace-setter. Here's the oblique walled tow of new fashions on two idea shoes for fall and winter.

A. The saddle is back. In brown suede with tan leather. Blue suede. Sand suede with tan leather. $19.95

B. A tri-tone platform sole with new higher heel in brown/amber/tan & blue/amber/tan. $19.95

SUPPORT THE VANDALS—BIG SKY CHAMPS
Faculty abolishes exam week, ends early fall starting time

The University Faculty has decided that students during the next two years will not go through a formal final exam week. Neither will they have to begin school before Labor Day.

Instead of a formal final exam week, one or two class hours of the last week of each semester may be used for exams. Classes will continue to meet throughout the last week of each semester and any final exams will be scheduled during regular class hours with common finals and conflict periods in the evenings (7-9 p.m.). The semester will end before Christmas on Dec. 21.

Heated debate preceded final adoption of this proposal which must still go before the Regents for final approval.

Speaking for the majority, Professor Clifford Dobler of the College of Business said he felt this was a compromise and added that "We are formally giving up the formal final exam period which we have informally given up anyway."

He added that the calendar still leaves a proviso for people who feel they must give a two-hour block final exam.

ASUI plane seats go to rally squad

Members of the Vandal rally squad proved Tuesday at the ASUI Senate that they can actually motivate someone to action.

After hearing a mass appeal from the rally squad, the senate relinquished one of its two seats on the Vandal plane traveling to away games.

Before the rally squad's surprise visit to the senate meeting, Senator Greg Casey urged the senate to reconsider its tentative financing for Jerry Rubin's appearance on campus.

The senate gave tentative approval on September 5 to earmark $750 of General Fund money to bring Rubin here on Oct. 2.

Casey and other senators said sentiment was growing against a solo appearance by Rubin. His attempt to discuss the possibility of bringing in additional speakers for a panel or debate, however, was struck down. Procedural rules would not permit reconsideration of a bill passed in another meeting.

Debate on the appearance will have to wait until a contract is received from Rubin and submitted to the senate.

Arguing for retention of the formal finals period, philosophy professor, Francis Seaman said he felt the image of the worth of credits given at this university would be impaired if formal exams were eliminated.

Residence halls would open Sunday on Sept. 2, the day before Labor Day, for any undergraduate students. Registration would be Thursday and Friday, Sept. 1.

Classes would start Monday, Sept. 10, fall semester and Thursday, Jan. 17, spring semester.

This calendar, though not applicable to the College of Law, would still encompass the required minimum 10 instructional days each semester; start after Labor Day to the satisfaction of agricultural and forestry interests; and still release students by mid-May in the spring.

In other business, the faculty adopted some policy and catalog changes.

General academic regulation "J-3-a" on page 55 of the 1972-73 general catalog is changed to read:

After a candidate is within forty credits of completing the total number of credits required for the baccalaureate degree, he or she must complete residence, on the University of Idaho campus, a minimum of thirty-two credits.

This doesn't apply to students participating in an exchange program or students studying abroad.

Regarding academic probation, a new academic regulation "L-1-c" on page 58 of the 1972-73 catalog was added.

A student on academic probation who attains a grade-point average of 2.0 or higher during the following or subsequent semester after being placed on probation, but is still below the minimum cumulative grade-point average required for his or her rank, remains on academic probation.

The disqualification regulation was changed to read as follows:

A student on probation will be disqualified at the end of a probationary semester unless the minimum cumulative grade-point average of at least 2.0 is attained. After being academically disqualified, the student must be re-enrolled in order to re-register.

A new regulation regarding incompletes received at the end of a student's final semester was added as follows:

An incomplete in a required course received by a candidate for a degree or certificate at the end of the semester or summer session in which the requirements for the degree are otherwise completed, results immediately in the grade specified by the instructor with the class list, however, the student is permitted to continue the course work to receive a grade on a term limit and raise the grade on the permanent record.

ASUI Karate Club will have an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. in the SUB. All students interested in learning or continuing karate are invited. For further information call Ron Wendle at 882-6014.

Peace and Freedom Party will have its regional convention beginning at 8 p.m. in the Bohn Theatre. State initiatives for 1972 and local projects will be discussed. Which local and national candidates the group will endorse will be decided.

BENNETT'S AUTO PARTS

Parts For All American Cars, Trucks, etc.
NAPA Import Parts
Toyoa, VW, Datsun and Opel
510 W. 3rd
Moscow 882-8896
So. 315 Grand,
Pullman, Wash.
LO 4-1257

New Hong Kong
For Authentic Chinese Food and American Beer
Mon.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
Sunday 4 p.m.-9 p.m.
214 S. Main 882-4598

Gals . . .
Do You Know That Myklebust's in Pullman Carry the Finest Selection of Newest Styles in Women's Wear?

Such As:
- Bobby Brooks
- College Town
- Jantzen
- Junior House
- Pam Bee
- Lanz
- Pendleton

Myklebusts
E. 250 Main
Pullman, Wash.

at idaho

Today
The drama department will hold auditions today at 3 p.m. in the U Hut Studio Theatre for Anton Chekov's dramatic masterpiece, Uncle Vanya. All interested students are invited to try-out. It is not closed to non-majors.

Saturday
Theophrastus Tower is sponsoring a dance from 9 p.m. to midnight on the plaza in front of the tower. In case of rain, it will be moved to the SUB Dipper. It's free and music will be provided by Annakonde of Spokane.

Anada Marga Yoga Society will have the first of a series of four classes on yoga exercise at 10 a.m. in the SUB. All are welcome. A mat or blanket should be brought.

Student Student cards are available at the SUB Information Desk for the husbands and wives of University Students.

sunday

Inter-denominational Youth Fellowship sing-along and discussion meets at the Campus Christian Center, 822 Elm St. at 6 p.m. Students of any or no denomination are welcome. Guitars, harmonicas, tambourines, etc. are also welcome.