Analysis:

Professor Judges Buckley's "Distortions"

Buckley argues that students compete among themselves to promote and repress student freedoms. He claims that students support the suspension of those who disagree with them, and that any reasonable person would agree with his proposals. However, Buckley's proposals are based on a false dichotomy, ignoring the complex realities of university life. It is important to remember that universities are not just places of learning, but also spaces for debate and discussion. Buckley's proposals would stifle this debate and limit the growth of students as thinkers and citizens.

The Arts: The I.D.A. Argonaut

Council Picks Up Debate On Tenure Today

At the June meeting, the State Board of Education approved a unanimous 3-0 proposal to grant tenure to faculty members who are 15 years away from retirement, a move that was seen as a "great victory." State universities were required to pass a three-fourths vote to grant tenure.

Now, it's up to the Board to finalize the proposal with the student council. The Board has already passed similar proposals in a previous meeting. The move to grant tenure to faculty members who are 15 years away from retirement, a move that was seen as a "great victory." State universities were required to pass a three-fourths vote to grant tenure.

Day Care

A Relief To Young Women Students

By Lynn Payne and Maryjohn Wirtz

Day care centers are not available to many women college students. The center would provide a safe haven for many students who are looking for child care during the day. The center would also provide a opportunity for students to learn and develop new skills.

Barbara Meldrum

Photography: Barry Langle

The famous woman photos...
By Celia C. Stroffer

The movement of the women's rights movement gained impetus after the presidential election of 1948. The United States Senate passed the Equal Rights Amendment in 1923 only after intense lobbying, with significant opposition from Southern Democrats. The legislation would have been the first federal law to guarantee equal rights for women, regardless of race or class.

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States in any state on account of sex." That is the language of the Equal Rights Amendment, which the Senate passed as joint resolution HR 59 in March 1923. It is 39 words long, and the debate centered on its formal passage, which was a major victory for women's rights advocates. The resolution would be sent to the states for ratification. If it is passed by three-quarters of the states, it will become part of the Constitution, ensuring equal rights for women.

The resolution was introduced by Representative Grover Cleveland, Democratic member of the House of Representatives from New York, in 1921. It was passed by the House of Representatives and sent to the Senate in 1923. The Senate debated the resolution for months, with many amendments proposed. The final version was adopted by the Senate on March 25, 1923, and sent to the House of Representatives.

The Equal Rights Amendment was a significant step toward gender equality. It was a response to the suffrage movement, which fought for women's right to vote. The amendment was a key part of the Women's Rights Movement, which fought for equal rights for women in the workplace, in education, and in society as a whole.

The Equal Rights Amendment was not ratified by the necessary three-quarters of the states. It was unsuccessful due to opposition from Southern states, which were primarily agricultural and rural, and had strong opposition to women's rights. The amendment was reintroduced in subsequent Congresses, but has not been successful in gaining the necessary support.

The movement for women's rights continues today, with ongoing efforts to ensure equal rights and opportunities for women. The struggle for gender equality is ongoing, and the Equal Rights Amendment serves as a reminder of the importance of the fight for women's rights.
Programs Expand for Second Year

Center Slates Activities

The Center's programs expand for the second year with the announcement of new services and offerings. Among these, "Open the Book" is now available, offering free, open access to educational materials.

Clinics Offered

Clinics offered by the Center include health counseling and educational services. These services are available to all community members on a voluntary basis.

Women at Idaho who are already working in the Idaho state and nation and what position is in regard to those women," said John A. Parke, Idaho Attorney General.

3. Would the court be required to order a party to share the costs of an impartial attorney? Yes.

8. What procedure would be followed if a party is required to pay the costs of an impartial attorney? Any party may request the appointment of an impartial attorney. Under AIA, all attorneys would be liable, but under this provision, any party may request the appointment of an impartial attorney for his own benefit.

10. Would states require the use of an impartial attorney? Yes, states would be required to use an impartial attorney. Under AIA, all attorneys would be liable, but under this provision, any party may request the appointment of an impartial attorney for his own benefit.

Day Care

Day care programs are available for children of working parents. These programs provide a safe and nurturing environment for children.

Radioshack

Radioshack offers a wide range of electronic products and services for all age groups.

FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL's OFFICE:
DOROTHY S. KELLEY
Assistant Attorney General

With Bank of Idaho's Campus Club, Campus Club is a real bargain. Look what you get. With our convenient banking services, you can enjoy the convenience of banking anywhere, any time.

YOUR PROGRESSIVE

BANK-IDAHO

MORRIS AUTO SUPPLY CENTER

SERVING IDAHO SINCE 1908

Coy & Nelson

1215 Pultman Road
Moscow, Idaho

YOU CAN HELP WE CAN HELP YOU GET THROUGH COLLEGE

In Idaho and the nation, the need for services for children is growing. The Center is offering programs to meet this need.

With Bank of Idaho's Campus Club, Campus Club is a real bargain. Look what you get.

With Bank of Idaho's Campus Club, Campus Club is a real bargain. Look what you get.
The Idaho Argonaut

Editorial

Strengthening With Students

By Rod Gramer

Editor's Note: This Tuesday's editorial is a contribution of Linda Coeur, writer for the special section on women's issues published in the Idaho Argonaut on September 10, 1973.

In the tingling aftermath of the long-needed dustoff of the real, the King's Women are at last, less sportive issues are demanding audience.

It's a nudge to the King's men and more of them are tumbling and tired of the hammy, dumpy roles they play. The time has come to mount your high horse and ride the High Heights the subjects from the ministerial serfdom to some of the referees and players. I don't propose turning the castle but daring the most wouldn't be bad idea.

Let us recognize and set our abilities. Don't blister in defiance of our talents or cringe secretly in fear of our actions and ideas. The issue is really quite simple. We want freedom from your disparagement and your resistance to our ambitions. Believe it or not, we can and are doing things, quite commendably, besides shopping for laundry soap and stockling the nursery. That's not an attack on motherhood, it's the expression of a point. We're trying to realize our objective recognition of our accomplishments, a release from the shackles from our feet more. We want in the world society. We want to make our pieces together and climb down off the wall. —COATES

Arg Criticized for Bike Report

By Editor

You've printed many comments about the report on bicycle laws, and your response last week has been to say that the report is factual.

I've been thinking about the problem of bike laws, and I have some thoughts that I'd like to share.

It's true that bicycle laws are important. The situation in the United States is relatively tame compared to some other countries, but there are still some serious issues to be addressed.

Firstly, I'm concerned about the safety of cyclists. In many cases, cyclists are left out of the equation and are not afforded the same protections as motorists. This is a serious issue and needs to be addressed.

Secondly, I'm worried about the impact of bike laws on the environment. Bicycles are a much more environmentally friendly mode of transportation than cars or trucks, and it's important that we support and encourage their use.

I understand that you've tried to address these issues in your report, but I believe that more could have been done. I hope that you'll consider these points in the future.
Room of One's Own

By Vicki Je Wadding

"Do you want the older children of fascist leaders in the children's play areas of the room of one's own? To make this room of one's own, all we have to do is to take the children of fascist leaders out of the children's play areas."

This positioning in the room of one's own exploitation, the continued exclusion of women, is also at stake. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women."

Elsie, she said, they were a hand. "But they do not have to be."

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

Elsie, she said, they were a hand. "But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.

The remaining question, how to make a room of one's own, is also about our children. "Neither man nor woman can ever be fully recognized as individuals without the continued exploitation of women." "Elsie, she said, they were a hand." But they do not have to be.
The Master Dies

I will take the ring, though I do not know the way.

Frodo Baggins

by John Hettich

Tolkien's popularity made him a new hit, a role model for the indomitable hobbits of Middle-earth. His work spanned a lifetime of love and devotion to the beloved Lord of the Rings. His legacy continues to inspire millions around the world, from children to adults, with the enduring themes of friendship, loyalty, and the power of good over evil.

The Middle Earth

From The Secondhand Life

Of Corporal J. A. Linderman,
United States Army

The American soldier in Europe, in the 1940s, was a unique creature. He was a mix of the hardened, battle-tested soldier and the idealistic young man of the United States Army. Corporal J. A. Linderman, a recent graduate of Ohio State University, was one of these soldiers. He had spent the last year of his life in Europe, fighting for the freedom of his country. His experiences had taught him much about himself and the world around him. He had lived through the horrors of war, but he had also seen the beauty of humanity's resilience.

The book concludes with a touching scene where Harry and the other members of the Fellowship of the Ring say goodbye to each other in Rivendell. The group disperses to continue their individual journeys, but they all know that they will meet again in the future. As the sun sets over the mountains, the group says their goodbyes, knowing that they are about to embark on the greatest adventure of their lives. The story ends on a note of hope and promise, as the group prepares to face the challenges that lie ahead.
The Call of the Wild

Dear Argonaut,

This letter, hopefully, will serve as the start of a new series I look forward to writing, in which I will attempt to shed some light on the world of adventure and exploration. My aim is to share stories of daring and courage, of the wild and untamed nature of human spirit. I hope you will find it as interesting as I do.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Out of Moscow
On the Road

by Lee Conrad

"lenderman rocked back on his rear foot (he was on camera now, the World Series, and it was a long fly ball to center field)"
Western Ballet
by Mary Ellen Noble

As it always enjoyable watching people do things they love, I guess I am, I love ballet. I love the peacefulness that the art form brings. If you have never seen a ballet, you should. It is a beautiful way to express emotions through movement and music. It is a form of art that has been around for centuries and continues to captivate audiences today.

The performance consisted of five different sets, each with its own unique themes and ideas. There was a modern ballet, a classical ballet, a paso doble, a contemporary ballet, and a final act that was a combination of all the previous acts. Each set had its own music and choreography, and the dancers were amazing. They moved gracefully and gracefully, and the audience was captivated.

The last act was my favorite. It was a combination of all the previous acts, and it featured a large group of dancers performing together. The music was amazing, and the choreography was breathtaking. The audience erupted into applause, and I was thrilled.

Overall, the performance was beautiful and moving. It was a reminder of how much art can do to bring people together and move them emotionally. I highly recommend attending a ballet performance if you ever get the chance. It is a truly amazing experience.
In the second week of collegiate baseball action in this Pacific, the Vandals were slated on five more games this week. The Vandals dropped a 15-9 contest in Washington State University before suffering a 7-1 defeat at the hands of the Lewis & Clark College.

"This was the first time this season that our third through five lineup has been hit by three straight batters," said Coach Seefried, who suspects that the team has lost its batting edge.

NICE CATCH: Waukegan, Ill., coming into the season with three home wins, was defeated by Waukegan State today. The Vandals will have a strong pitching staff including the likes of Dave Wilson, John Aagaard, and Tony Kemppa, along with Gregory Seefried Jr., Ken Strom, and President Dave Condon's pitching squad for the season's opener.

Coach Seefried commented that the Vandals have been hitting through the season with a good balance.

"We really did have a good, strong season," said Seefried, "and we just need to get back on track with our hitting."

The Vandals' seven games were played, and they have a strong lineup with a batting average of .300.

"We really did need a good, strong season," said Seefried, "and we just need to get back on track with our hitting."

The Vandals are scheduled to play against both the Cougars and the Wisconsin Tech this week in their opening matches.

---

Week’s Honors

Jim Lee, senior defensive back from the University of Idaho, and Danieal Webster, senior left tackle, were named All-Americans by the United States Football Writers Association.

Lee, a football star, was named to the All-American first team. Webster, a key offensive player, was named to the second team.

---

Week 117 Game:

The Idaho Twisted In Third Game

Not particularly anything wrong, the up-and-down Idaho Vandals were flustered by the prevailing Stanislaus State Cyclones 6-4, in last Saturday's contest played in Airlie.

"Every game we've played this season has been a tough one," said Coach Seefried. "But it's nice to have the Cyclones so we can focus on our own game and not worry about them."