Drug Test Established At WSU

By John Hecht
Assistant Staff Writer

The Roster Banner says, Staff Change is a childfinder, and Drug campaigns are on the rise, and 200 unread items per week. Do you believe that they should know about the new Drug Analysis Center that recently opened in Pullman?

Sponsored by the School of Pharmacy and established by donation, the Center will analyze drugs used for medicinal purposes, stopping them from being used illegally.

The procedure is simple. A sample of the drug is sent to Dr. George Estabrook, College of Pharmacy, WSU. If a special number from a dollar bill is an identification number, the Center can find out what the drug is and its amount. Many have been found.

The Center is not set up to analyze about twenty drugs, the most common used in the area. According to Dr. Estabrook, the Center is only employed if the drug is not an illegal drug, but we can say what they are not.

So far, about fifteen samples have been analyzed. Hallford says that the program was established by the students in Pharmacy in order to prevent the drug from being used illegally. The student states, "If we can prevent the drug from being used illegally, we will be able to do what we should be doing."
The argument managed to appear as if its purpose was to present a meaningful perspective on the activities of the board. Wednesday, in the picture to be presented, the subject was the membership in the Alpha Kappa Psi national fraternity. Professor McCmurren, who is concerned about the board's activities, provided a clear and concise outline of the topic, which was followed by an engaging presentation on the subject. The professor's lecture was well-organized and easy to follow, with clear and logical transitions between ideas. The professor effectively utilized visual aids, including slides and charts, to enhance understanding. The lecture was delivered in a clear and articulate manner, with a natural flow of ideas. The professor's enthusiasm for the subject was evident throughout the presentation, and the audience appeared to be engaged and interested. Overall, the presentation was a success, with the professor demonstrating a deep understanding of the topic and delivering a well-received lecture.
Kevin Russell--From SUB to Capitol
An Idaho Student Trades in His SUB Board Position for a job on a national scale in Washington D.C. Here is a report on the Student Union Building's problems and progress.

By Rom Shidler

As another semester comes to an end, so does the work of Kevin Russell, SUB’s graduate assistant. Now a senior at WSU, Russell is no longer with the Student Union Board (SUB).

Among the duties Russell handled while with SUB was the logistical aspect of arranging for a guest architect to remodel the SUB. This was a project he had originally intended to have done while he was at WSU to complete the working drawings, space and cost out. To take the initial decision that we still have to make the remodeling into a reality stage so we would have everything ready for construction, we needed an architect to accomplish it.

Looking back

Looking back at the past year, Russell feels the job has been rewarding. He says the biggest accomplishment he is proud of was the hiring of an architect to remodel the SUB.

The problem was that we had originally intended to have an architect from San Francisco to complete the working drawings, space and cost out. To take the initial decision that we still have to make the remodeling into a reality stage so we would have everything ready for construction, we needed an architect to accomplish it. Unluckily the hammer and the nail have come.

California and fellows

According to Russell, the problem with the board being completed was the San Francisco Fellowship Program and the California Fellowship Program. They are a bit more of the 18 members of the board that make up the SUB.

Many others for the SUB came from California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and even some from Illinois. Russell believes the board was interested in the California Fellowship Program even if it was a bit more of the 18 members of the board that make up the SUB.

Cock turned the SUB into a campus of the California Fellowship Program. According to Russell, most of their other projects would be related to the California Fellowship Program. They are interested in the California Fellowship Program even if it was a bit more of the 18 members of the board that make up the SUB.

The SUB is located in the heart of the city of Pullman, Washington. It is a three-story building with offices, classrooms, and meeting rooms. It is also the home of the Student Union Board and the SUB's Student Senate.

The SUB is a busy place with hundreds of students coming and going every day. It is open from 8 am to 9 pm, Monday through Thursday, and 8 am to 5 pm on Friday.

The SUB also houses the Student Union Board's offices, the SUB's Student Senate, and the SUB's Student Center. The Student Center is a popular spot for students to study, socialize, and relax. It is open from 8 am to 9 pm, Monday through Thursday, and 8 am to 5 pm on Friday.

The end of a semester is a time for examining, especially with the present system... The old habit will no doubt spill into new developments an upgraded system which were mentioned last year. The students will certainly be aware of the name of the senate in the future. But it is not the last of the improvements that are being made. For instance, the Senate is considering whether to purchase typewriter to put the paper as a means to benefit the senate. However, the student body is not so sure about the new system, as one of their main criticisms was that of the type paper is not very readable for the students.}

“Next year’s one” — According to Sen. Tipton, Argonaut May have a Dirty Old Copy. But when it comes to deciding whether there are any bad habits, Sen. Tipton says, “I like the idea of the students looking at the Argonaut and saying, ‘You know, that’s not a very good idea!’"

On the other hand, one faculty member commented on the current system of the newspaper. He said, “The students are quite satisfied with the way it is right now. But, I think we could do better.”

As for the future of the newspaper, there are many different possibilities. One possibility is that the school may consider putting the Argonaut online. This would allow students to access the newspaper from anywhere, at any time. Another possibility is that the newspaper may be printed in a different format, such as a magazine or a tabloid. However, the final decision will be made by the faculty and the student body.

“Whatever the future holds, I hope that the Argonaut continues to be a valuable resource for the students on campus,” said the faculty member.

The end of the semester is also a time for reflecting on the past year. Many students look back on the year with memories of good times and bad times. For some, the year was filled with success and achievement, while for others, it was a time of struggle and challenge. But regardless of the outcome, the students always look forward to a new year and the possibilities that lie ahead.

The end of the semester is also a time for saying goodbye. The Argonaut staff would like to thank all of its readers for their support and encouragement over the past year. We look forward to seeing you next year, and we wish you all the best in your future endeavors.

The President Writes the Editor

To the Editor:

Regarding the note to the article written by Peggy Kellogg, under the title of "Unknown Student" which dealt with the Spanish War Memorial Statue on the campus of the University of Alabama, I am writing in response to the note you have received.

Upon my arrival at the University of Alabama in 1909, the statue was already in the condition to which you refer. After the first semester of the second summer session, the statue became a focal point for student demonstrations and protests. In fact, it was during one such demonstration that the statue was damaged beyond repair.

At that time, it was quite apparent that the statue had to be restored, and my efforts were focused on securing the necessary funds to accomplish this task. I approached the administration, the Board of Trustees, and various alumni groups for support. It was not an easy task, as many were hesitant to allocate funds for such a project.

Despite the difficulties, we were able to raise enough money to commission the restoration work. The sculptor, Antonio Beccare, was hired for the job, and his dedication to the project was evident in the final result. The statue was returned to its former glory, and it remains a source of pride for the University community to this day.

Sincerely,

Life Goes On... Or Does It?

Despite all our expectations, war transformation will forever change us as society, and we may find ourselves living in a world of which we cannot claim to be the makers. Independence and individualism will be the keywords of this age, and it will take us all by surprise.

I am not saying that we should be afraid of the future, but we must remember that it is out of our control. We can only try to make the best of it.

The only thing we can be sure of is that there will be no end to change. We will have to adapt to a world that is constantly evolving, and we will have to learn to live with uncertainty.

We may not have all the answers, but we can try to understand the world around us. We can try to be open-minded and accepting of new ideas. We can try to be flexible and adaptable, and we can try to be resilient.

We can't control the future, but we can control how we react to it. We can't change what has happened, but we can change our response to it. We can't change the past, but we can change our future.

We can't make life perfect, but we can make it better. We can't control the world, but we can control our own destiny.

So let's not be afraid of the future, but let's be prepared for it. Let's be ready to adapt, to change, and to grow. Let's be ready to face whatever the world has in store for us. Let's be ready to live life to the fullest. Let's be ready to make the most of every moment.

A different philosophy for Idaho Vandals

By Kim Crompton

Imposing Idaho sports happenings over the past 12 months have led to the surprising conclusion that Idaho fans and the university administration may not always see eye to eye. There are many factors involved, and a closer look at this past season might explain some of the differences.

One major point of contention is the president of the university, Magnisie, who was under fire from both fans and media for his decision to continue playing football despite the team's lackluster performance.

The general attitude of the university administration was that the team had shown improvement and deserved another chance to compete for a conference title. However, fans were frustrated by the lack of progress and demanded change.

In the end, the university decided to shake things up, firing the coach and bringing in a new one who was more in line with the fans' expectations.

The new coach, who had a strong track record, was able to turn things around and lead the team to a successful season. The fans were pleased with the change and the team's improved performance.

This is just one example of the differences between the university administration and the fans. It's important to remember that both sides have their own perspectives and priorities.

It's always a challenge to bridge the gap and find common ground, but it's essential for the success of any team or organization. By working together and communicating effectively, both sides can come to a mutually beneficial solution.

Hartung Leaving For Good? "Absolutely Not"

Dr. Ernest Hartung began his ninth year as president of the University of Illinois this fall. But some observers speculated that Hartung's eight-year term might be coming to an end when he spoke to the Board of Trustees last week that he would be submitting an application for sabbatical leave, a move that some observers speculated he wouldn't return from.

Dr. Ernest Hartung, president of the University of Illinois, along with some of your friends, in an editorial, asked the Board of Trustees to consider a proposal for the resignation of an athletic director Ed Knecht.

Can you explain what you have in mind and what you have been discussing with the Board of Trustees? I know that you have been discussing the possibility of a sabbatical leave with the Board of Trustees.

I'm very concerned about the current environment at the university, and I believe we're facing a new era of challenges. But, I'm not sure about the exact nature of these problems and whether they are just temporary or not.

I believe we need to take this opportunity to make some changes and to plan for the future. I think that we should consider a sabbatical leave for Dr. Hartung, as it will allow him to take a break, refocus, and return with a fresh perspective.

There are many issues that need to be addressed, and I believe that a sabbatical leave would be a good way to start the process.

What do you think about the possibility of a sabbatical leave for Dr. Hartung? Do you believe that it would be beneficial for the university?

I believe that a sabbatical leave would be beneficial for the university. It would allow Dr. Hartung to take a break, refocus, and return with a fresh perspective. It would also give the Board of Trustees an opportunity to evaluate the current situation and to plan for the future.

I think that a sabbatical leave would be a good way to start the process of addressing the current issues at the university.

Do you think that Hartung's term as president should be extended or ended?

I believe that Hartung's term as president should be extended. He has done a great job of leading the university and has made significant contributions to its growth and development.

I think that he should continue to serve as president until the end of his term.
