RELIGIOUS FEAST DAYS UNFAIR!!

It's turkey season again and it's no more apparent than on Thanksgiving day. Idaho students are departing this week to partake of the annual holiday at their respective homes.

Later in the day the Kibbie dome had another sporting event involving the U of I Vandals and the Northern Illinois Huskies. Idaho defeated the Huskies 25-24 in the last minutes of the game.

It was a rough and tumble game between the ASUI and the U of I administration in the Kibbie dome Saturday. However, the ASUI prevailed in the end with a 12-6 victory over the olders.
The University Idaho Board of Regents will meet the first week in December to decide on such matters as the tuition rate for WAMU students and the future of research in Idaho. The tuition now totals $150 per school year; this would be raised $220 a school year. At the last regents meeting, the issue was brought up but not voted upon because students had not been consulted on the matter.

Student leaders said they have not yet come to a formal position on the increase but were awaiting comment from Vice President for Student and Administrative Affairs Tom Richardson. Richardson, when contacted by the Argonaut, said the administration was "encouraged by the State board and legislative office" to raise U of I WAMU fees to come in line with those of the University of Washington, the host institution. "Our legislators see it as us just not putting in our fair share," he said, indicating that they might meet resistance from out of state people when working on other programs, where in-state fees are so much lower in WAMU.

The regents have said they also plan to consider the future of research in Idaho. Replies will be issued concerning U of President Ernest Hartung's report to the regents on projections for the next few years, and other reports issued to the regents concerning other universities.

The regents will also discuss alternate methods of financing the College of Law at the university. The college will be facing monetary problems, according to the report submitted to the regents, and will need additional funding.

Some persons in the administration have suggested using monies now paid by students in their fees to the construction of the Education Building, be transferred in 1977 when that building is completed paid for.

The university has also asked for permission to contract with the College of Idaho in order to allow some U of I Agriculture faculty to set up offices in Caldwell. College of Agriculture officials have said they want to move because it would promote efficiency and facilitate operations.

Weisberg due to Appear

Tim Weisberg, that mystery man of the flute world, is back to haunt the Moscow-Pullman area with his dynamic and highly indescribable new sound.

Just who is Tim Weisberg anyway? He's a young musician who started as a drummer and ended up playing flute. He and his band have produced five albums, the last one, "Listen to the City," hitting no. 11 on the Record World charts one week after it's debut.

He's an experimenter, an innovator, a challenger of the status quo, as he plays in his own style, creating tunes that are uniquely his own.

Senate endorsed student role in faculty collective bargaining

The ASUI Senate endorsed the concept of student associations to take part in collective bargaining between the University administration and faculty at their meeting last night. Such a student association already exists in the university's School of Communications and is intended to assure quality education within the school, according to senator Kim Smith, one of the association's organizers.

According to ASUI President David Warnick student groups could take part in academic decisions in each university department if student associations were formed throughout the University. If collective bargaining comes to the University, Warnick said, student associations could play their biggest roles, in taking part in negotiations between the administration and faculty.

The report acknowledged that students were the consumers of education, but said they should not have an active role in collective bargaining if it comes to the University.

According to Gerald Marousek, chairman of the ad hoc committee in the actions of General Motors affect consumers, but those consumers aren't present at negotiations between GM and the United Auto Workers. The action of the senate last night was evidence that the ASUI is committed to taking part in academic decisions made at the University and not just providing "auxiliary services" for students, Warnick said.

The strength of the student associations voice would differ between departments, he said, but added that the senate's action last night would help make an association possible in every department.

In departments where students are active and well organized they could have an active role in collective bargaining, Warnick said, as consumers of education provided by the University.

Warnick said he realized the concept of student associations might not meet with widespread approval among the faculty.

Some disapproval of the concept among faculty members was shown in a report from faculty committee on collective bargaining, submitted to the faculty council earlier this semester.

No Arg Friday

There is no Argonaut scheduled for this Friday, the day of the Thanksgiving holiday. The Argonaut will return to regular publication on Tuesday, Dec. 2. The final issue of the Argonaut for the Fall semester is Dec. 12. There will be no Argonaut during finals week.

Thanksgiving vacation events schedule

by Carolyn Harrada and Michelle Heckney of the Argonaut Staff

Thanksgiving vacation is worth giving thanks to, but as Helen Steiner Rice, poet, defines What is Thanksgiving? it makes us look at the real meaning of this festive holiday.

Thanksgiving is more than a day in November.

That students of history are taught to remember.

For living today in this great and rich nation.

That depends not on God but on mechanization.

We tend to forget that our forefathers came

To establish a country under God's name.

Oh, teach us, dear God, we are all Pilgrims still.

Subject alone to your guidance and will.

And show us the way to purposeful living.

So we may have reason for daily Thanksgiving.

And make us once a God-fearing nation.

And not merely puppets of controlled automation.

Many students have already left for home, their friend's house, or other excursions, but there are still others who will stay in Moscow and enjoy such things as:

STUDYING--The U of I Library will be open on Wednesday, from 8 to 5 p.m.; closed Thursday, 8 to 5 p.m. Friday, and regular hours on the weekend.

WATCHING TELEVISION--The three-hour CBS American Thanksgiving Day Parade featuring non-stop holiday parade highlights from New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Toronto, and Honolulu will begin at 1:30 p.m. Thanksgiving Day on Channel 3 and 4 in Moscow.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING--Bargain hunting and special sales for the economical minded shopper can be found in several downtown merchant's stores.

PLANNING FOR CHRISTMAS--Along the gift line, some people may spend this vacation making (knitting, crocheting, or tatting), baking cookies, cakes, and candies, or constructing (kitts, furniture, or plants) economical, time-consuming masterpieces.

GOING TO THE MOVIES--This week features Rooster Cogburn, a western with John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn at the Kenworthy Theatre. The Nu-Art offers Royal Flash, a comedy with Alan Bates and Malcolm McDowell. Both will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m.

The Micro Movie House offers the Paper Chase, the story of a young man's battle against the competition of the law school system tonight. Beginning Wednesday evening, through Saturday, the Magus, a chilling fantasy on a mysterious Greek island with Anthony Quinn, Candice Bergen, and Michael Caine will be shown. It costs $1.25 for the 5 p.m. and midnight showings and $1.75 for the 7:30 and 9:45 p.m. showings.

SLEEPING--After long hours and sleepless nights of studying or whatever, a body can tire easily, so now is the chance to catch up on this biologically rejuvenating process.

LISTENING--KUID will be operating from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Wednesday through Friday. They will be going back to normal operating hours Saturday. KUID will close at 7 p.m. Wednesday night and be back on the air at noon Sunday.

GOING FOR WALKS--Weather permitting, the U of I campus has a lot to offer in scenic views.

Writing on the wall

If the problem is so obvious, why hasn’t the administration made any real steps to correct it? Why, for example, was the administration so slow to respond to the College of Mines students’ complaints about academic freedom and the administration’s bias against their views?

Youngsters, including myself, who have spent the last few years studying at BSU, have often been frustrated by the lack of attention paid to these issues. The administration has been more interested in maintaining its image than in addressing the concerns of its students.

The problem is not unique to BSU. Many other universities face similar challenges. However, BSU’s situation is particularly serious because the university is the hub of a vibrant and diverse community of students, faculty, and staff.

If the administration is not willing to take action to address these issues, then it is time for the students to take matters into their own hands. This could involve organizing protests, holding sit-ins, or even filing lawsuits against the university. The students have a right to demand a university that is committed to academic freedom and the well-being of its community.

Vandal action in the stands

At the last football game a very excited student, who called himself a "fan" ordered a friend of mine to stand and sing during the Vandals’ entrance. My friend, when told that this "fan" is an assistant coach of the Vandals. About fifteen minutes later, when the Vandals performance was, somewhat less than perfect, my friend tried to help the assistant coach in clapping and cheering the situation. At this time, the student was left to themselves. This incident again enunciated the help of the head coach. The coach had to go down next to the student and talk to a particular no-nonsense fan who sat in the 5th and weighted about 150 lbs.

The ensuing fight sickened me. While the redshirt quarterback was crouching together, the other held back and slapped other who was standing to stop the fight. The redshirt even had the audacity to throw the ball of one’s friend towards his own. While these two were showing off their excesses of bravado and lack of care, the girl who wet on one could only say, "I hope he doesn’t hurt his knees."

It is possible that the order to these two that the fans, even though who only 150 lbs was only his brother for whatever they want. Fights are nothing new between the middle of this melee, injury or death could have resulted. (Remember even football players...were small once.)

Thanksgiving feast

Everybody’s going home for Thanksgiving including my good friend Conrad. Conrad is a real nice guy, alwayssupporting his favorite team, but I know he must have been upset during the Thanksgiving day game.

Yesterday, as Conrad was packing for his trip home I asked him if he was going to carry his favorite food, home cooking. He said, "Sure, but I don’t want to bring it here, I don’t want anyone to eat it." I thought he was joking, but he really was serious.

Thanksgiving is a time for remembering old friends, being together with family, and eating good food. Conrad was just reminding us of the importance of these things.

"I suppose you’ll just have to break your fast, deny your(Continued)" I suggested. "Never, because the cause must be supported," he screamed. "Conrad, I really respect you..." I said.

"But your poor mother, she’ll be so disappointed," I mentioned. Conrad could only bow his head and shrug his shoulders in agreement.

Like I said, I’m a really nice guy and I hate to see my friends in trouble, so I offered to go home with Conrad and have Thanksgiving dinner with his family. He was so relieved that he couldn’t thank me enough. Yes, I really respect my friend Conrad, almost as much as I respect Thanksgiving.

A number of spectators at the UN-I-N-N-I football game last Saturday night were abruptly disturbed by a fight that broke out second quarter following a N. Illinois touchdown. As the person seated next to the cause of the fight, I would like to tell what occurred.

Prior to the touchdown, Darrell Birchfield and his friend Rick Sullivan were watching the roiling ago steadily for the Vandals. I might add here, that Mr. Birchfield is a TA in Chic for Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Sullivan is a member of the team. Upon the Mr. Birchfield stood and made some profound statements I won’t repeat in print. Whatever the N. Illinois fan’s reply, he was first to come up few rows and repeat it to the few fairly angry Birchfield. Turning to Mr. Sullivan, the two rose to go down and speak with the other man. After few words, Rick Sullivan, a man of large and muscular stature, grabbed two men’s collar with his head together. The ensuing fight immediately embroiled nearby fans, encouraged a number of able-bodied fellows to try and pull the contestants apart. Finally, a number of policeman arrived, one of whom received a blow by Mr. Sullivan. The two jocks were then led out of the crowd andamiably by those of us who found them quite offensive. The others Mr. Birchfield was also escorted away. Birchfield and Sullivan took the trip downtown in handcuffs. I offer this as an example of how the spirit of the tribal war should be brought about. As such, the action of the officers was quite commendable.

Supporters

I am writing this letter to express my support for the cause of the fight. As a member of the team, I witnessed the events firsthand. The fight was sparked by a disagreement over the outcome of a play, and it quickly escalated beyond control.

Vandals win year's last game
by Michelle Hackney
of the Argonaut staff

In the year's last home game the Vandals pulled off a win against Northern Illinois.

Within the last minute of the game the Vandals scored their second touchdown which put them a point over Northern Illinio's. The final score was 25-24.

Northern Illinio's had the ball nine times, losing it on four occasions and turned it over three more times on interceptions. They also gave up huge chunks of ground to the Husky offense, which also had troubles with four lost fumbles and three interceptions.

At the end of the first half the Vandals were leading with a score of 10-14. When the second half started off they seemed to be lagging a little, but they pulled up in the last few minutes of the game.

Idaho Coach Ed Troxel commented that, "I'm very happy with the ball game because we won a tough one and the Vandals need to win some tight ones."

Senior quarterback Dave Comstock from Pocatello was the general behind the year option in 1975. The talented signal caller guided his offensive unit to many records, led his team in rushing and passing, and finished high in several time Idaho statistical races.

Co-Captain J.C. Chadband etched his name further into the Vandals records. His 72 yards rushing against NIU places him fourth, ahead of Fred Riley. He has L582 yards for three years of activity on the gridiron.

According to Troxel the Vandals team had lost 16 seniors and they will be hard to replace.
However, a good nucleus will return for spring practice and the 1976 season. On defense and offense, the silver and gold will return six starters apiece.

The football squad will be honored with the annual banquet on Tuesday evening, December 2, at 6:30 p.m. at the Moscow Elk's Lodge. The Latah County Chapter of Vandal Boosters will host the banquet, at which awards will be given out and lettermen will be announced.

Burning season to be limited in Moscow

A limited burning season, during which Mos-oc residents may burn a restricted variety of materials, went into effect Saturday and will last for two weeks.

According to Moscow Fire
Chief Ralph McAllister, burning permits are required, and may be obtained at City Hall between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

There is no charge.

Materials which can be burned during the two week period include paper and wood products, garden
ceilings and tree trimmings.

McAllister noted that all burning must take place on private property and not in city streets.

What's Happening
by Charles Reith

Since Friday is a holiday, this column is coming out three days early. For those who are planning to stay here during Thanksgiving, there will be a limited number of activities.

On Thursday, there will be a Thanksgiving dinner at the Campus Christian Center for interested students and faculty planning to stay in the area. There is no admission, but contributions of food and beverages will be appreciated. The dinner takes place at 4 p.m., and all religious denominations are welcome.

Ending tonight at the Micro Moviehouse is the comedy play "Paper Chase." This movie depicts Timothy Bottoms as an eager first year law student who romances and fears his professor. He falls for the professor's daughter, whose contempt for the law and her father prompts the student to question his own aims. Starting Wednesday and running through Saturday is "The Magus" starring Anthony Quinn, Candice Bergen and Michael Caine. This macabre drama based on the novel by John Fowles, will be shown at 5, 7:30 and 9:45 p.m. Sunday through Saturday with an added midnight showing on Friday and Sat-day. Admission at the 7:30 and 9:45 shows is $1.75 and $1.25 at the midnight showing.

Playing at the Kenworthy Theatre is "Rooster Cogburn" and the sequel to "True Grit" starring John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn. This action-adventure western should be a worthwhile diversion. At the Cordova Theatre in Pullman Michael Dante and Jeff Erickson star in the action adventure "Wintertwist." Both movies are currently being shown nightly at 7 and 9 p.m. The Nu-Art Theatre in Moscow and the Audian Theatre in Pullman will be closed for Thanksgiving vacation.

For musical entertainment, there will be bands playing this weekend at the Rathskeller Inn and the Eagles Capricorn.

MOSCOW
Interceptions, long bombs and missed passes characterized "the first and last adnual ASUI-administration football game," as the students won this round 26-0.

The ASUI team held the offensive most of the game, though they were close to scoring once other than when the two touchdowns were made. The administration never really seemed to simply come close; their one TD, made by George Stockton of the Computer Sciences department, was made in a blaze of glory or, as some observers said, "it was a fluke."

The ASUI team racked up most penalties; defensive holding lost them yardage

Several times. The administration lost fewer yards by their penalties.

Each side had several quarterbacks through the game. Stockton and coach Bill Teln were two for the administration; David Warnick, Art Berry and Todd Brown threw for the ASUI.

They made the game a clearly forward pass game, though Warnick did hand off a few lateral passes to halfbacks who were usually tackled early on. And Warnick did breach the university lines himself once.

The game was touch, but several people were hauled down roughly during the course of it - usually by the ASUI.

The game took place at the Kibbie Dome for an hour Saturday afternoon. Teams had been practicing regularly for a week, and both sides reported strong defenses; neither apparently regarded their offenses as outstanding.

The administration got off to a good start at the beginning of the game. Although, their quarterback Mike Harris of Student Advisory Services threw some incomplete passes, solid advance was made before the ball was turned over to the ASUI. (The rules did not allow for punting.)

There was a similar situation for the ASUI in the few plays that followed, but an interterception stopped the threat. After two plays, the ASUI reversed this as senator John Rupe intertercepted a long pass and ran over 100 yards to start the ASUI toward its first touchdown. A series of long, hard passes - one by Art Berry was 30 yards long - eventually placed the ASUI within six yards of a touchdown. The administration intercepted for a couple plays, but when the ASUI attempted it, it was their game. Communications Manager Mike Gallagher ran the first TD.

The ball changed sides even more quickly over the next few minutes. Almost every attempt to move the ball over a great distance was foiled. A shot from university Budget Officer Dale Aldredge in the direction of Ernest Hartung was stopped and nearly caught by student John Hecht and a 12-yard pass from Warnick to Gallagher was halted by student Affairs Vice-President Tom Richardson.

The ball gradually moved back toward the ASUI goal, and with about three-quarters of the hour-long game over, Lionel Mitchell, a law student on the Administrative Hearings Board, made a second touchdown, raising the score to 12-0 in favor of the ASUI.

The remaining action came quickly; the ASUI was charged for two penalties, losing 15 yards on a defensive holding. Then the administration struck hard.

Despite the efforts of senators Jed Jeaudon, Kim Smith and others, the administration, led by Teln and Computer Analyst George Stockton, pushed hard within a couple minutes, and made their second touchdown with minutes to go, leaving the final score 12-6.

The administration apparently was not helped along by their cheating section, which was solid and capable urged them to.

Most of the spectators sat on the administrators' side (the visitor's side in football games), partly because that side had backs on the seats. However, the sides was in

Thanksgiving travel tips

With Thanksgiving travel up most in many drivers' plans, Chief of Police Clark A. Hudson today offered the following recommendations from the International Association of Chiefs of Police:

2. Keep a check on weather reports. Adjust your driving schedule if necessary. Don't force your way to your destination. Cancel your trip if the weather threatens to turn vicious.

3. Be prepared for the worst that winter may have to offer: carry tire chains for severe snow and ice conditions that might be encountered.

4. If you're caught in a storm, keep alert to announcements of emergency locations and stopping points. Call 911 for help.

5. Slow down on slippery roads. Allow considerably more distance between cars.

6. Get the feel of the road. Know how slippery roads are.

7. Keep an eye on icy spots. Ice lasts longer on bridges, overpasses, and in shady areas.

8. Drive ahead of your car -- plan every maneuver well in advance. Accelerate and steer smoothly. Pump brakes when stopping, maintain both steering and stopping control.

Hudson concluded with this reminder: "Whenever you travel, using safety belts is never out of season!"

STUDENT FINANCIAL AID FOR 1976-77 AND SUMMER, 1976

Students who plan to enroll in Fall or Spring Semester, 1976-77, and who expect to need and qualify for financial aid of any kind, should pick up application materials at the Student Financial Aid Office, U.C.C. 228, after December 8 and before departing for Christmas vacation. This also applies to "No-Need" scholarship applicants.

Continuing students who are not planning to attend School in the Fall and are interested in obtaining full-time summer Work-Study employment in order to save for academic year expenses need to obtain a separate Summer-Work-Study application in addition to,... the 1976-77 materials.

The deadline for timely applications is April 5, 1976.

Summer School Financial Aid Applications from continuing students must be turned in not later than April 5, 1976, to permit awards to be made prior to commencement of the Summer Session.

Correction

The Argonaut apologizes for the error that appeared in the Friday issue concerning the story about Montes Carlo's move to Education. The story and headline incorrectly stated that money was to be reverted from the law fund into education building construction.

In fact, the money might be diverted from the education building fund to the law building fund. The student fee involved is $5.00 and the change would not mean a raise in fees, but neither would the fee be dropped, as has been proposed. The resolution is expected to be discussed at Monday night's senate meeting (see related story.)

A Coeur d'Alene motel company is negotiating with Moscow businesses to buy a liquor license for a convention center to be built on a parcel of land owned by the Coeur d'Alene tribe.

The company, which is negotiating to buy the liquor license, is the owner of the North Shore Convention Center in Coeur d'Alene. The company plans to build a convention center on the tribe's property and is negotiating with Moscow businesses to secure financing for the project.

The company, known as Coeur d'Alene Development, has been negotiating with potential investors in the project, including the city of Moscow, for several months. The negotiations are ongoing, and the company has indicated that it is committed to making the project a reality.

The convention center is planned as a multi-functional facility that will accommodate a variety of events and activities. The company is working with local businesses to secure funding and support for the project, and is in the process of finalizing contracts and agreements with potential investors.

The company has indicated that it is committed to making the project a success and is working hard to ensure that it is completed on time and within budget. The company has also indicated that it is committed to providing a high-quality facility that will meet the needs of both local businesses and visitors alike.

Although Thanksgiving is a distinctively American holiday, the practice of setting aside a communal day of thanks
during the harvest festival was centuries old by the time the Plymouth Colony ate its celebrated feast of wild turkey
and venison in 1821.

We lose sight of the idea that it is primarily a religious occasion, a time for reflecting on one's blessings, not merely a family banquet. Many churches still offer a Thanksgiving service, and in some sects members of the congregation
give testimonials of the past year's good fortune. Services are offered by area Moscow churches for those wishing to give thanks.

The version of Thanksgiving Day is more modern than most of us probably think for it dates back to the mid-nineteenth century. Although the Massachusetts Bay Colony and Connecticut had an annual day of thanks in the seventeenth century, it was sporadically observed until well after the American Revolution. It was not until 1859, when thirty states gave thanks all on the same day,
that it became known as a national event.

The credit for this holiday really belongs to Sarah J. Hale, who began to campaign for a Thanksgiving day in 1827
writing editorials and petitioning the governors of all the states as well as successive Presidents. She made her last plea in September 1863, arguing that
"wise lawgivers and great patriots have acknowledged the salutary effect of appointed times for national reunions which combine religious sentiment with
domestic and social enjoyment." President Lincoln's proclamation establishing a uniform date throughout the union followed a month later in the midst of the Civil War.

In the latter part of the last century and the early part of this one, families were larger and possibly more closely knit than they are today. Thanksgiving became one of the major occasions for great get-togethers of the clan. The family members with the largest house, usually gr-naparents, acted as host;
and everyone contributed something to the feast. This sort of pot-luck is prominent today and, students staying here during vacation can enjoy a Thanksgiving pot-luck dinner
at the Campus Christian Center 4 p.m. Thursday.

Nowadays, Thanksgiving is ever a family affair involving grandma and grandpa
don't to the present generation. It is composed of a smaller family, and often,
especially in the urban com-

tunities, it is an opportunity to share a good meal with fri-
des. The food is far simpler than it used to be and less overwhelming.

While some people this day will always be the time to eat turkey, most of us will remember it as a day of combing religious sentiment with
domestic and social enjoyment.
