Blue Mountain

May 2

by PRINCIPLES DE BOURRIN, DELIBERATION OF PIERS UP SCOTCH

For the south spring is a rare the U of I will have the corn and aations of Blue Mountain. This can't festival will have the same bands with some underlying changes as dictated by the university administration.

Gladder, in charge as the Manager, Ed Gladder, is optimistic that everything will go smoothly and the after will come off without a hitch. He has scheduled eight bands for music that will range from heavy rock to key stepping bands from the local area with some of the bands coming from Thunder and Southern Idaho.

The fest went from Tuesday to Friday when the ASUS Senate passed the model NSF appropriations for police protection at the May 2 even. The police protection was done in cooperation with Dr.
Hamming and the university administrators.

The crew on stage will be underground and the weather conditions for their stay of Blue Mountain.

Other expenditures for the music festival include $500 for remittances of the stage that is presently owned by the ASUS 1990 to go to the next major band. 1000 for rental of the portable amplifiers, and $25 for the local area with some of the bands coming from Thunder and Southern Idaho.

Spring football injuries have been very much in Ex-Commerce head gives views on students, university

by CHRIS CARTER

Ray Holling, past president of the Chamber of Commerce and co-op student, is a man concerned with the problems facing the U of I. In this interview, he shares some of those other issues that are important.

Q. How do you see the role of the Chamber of Commerce in relation to the U of I? I think the Chamber of Commerce is doing everything it can to help, by working to see that the shape, form or content can possibly be done. We try to also help students in any manner that we possibly can. I think it takes the initiative of the Chamber, the university, and the students to come up with a way of viewing the way. This is the year of ‘70, and we are prevailing the American Business schools and it is clear that it is time that the students of the university try to unify the university back to the people of Illinois and our location.

Q. Is there an example of that interaction that you have in mind? Yes, I think probably the rock festival, number one. Then that has been run as one of their events, I think the any other one number two that can be body. I think the quantity of the amount can have been helped through the U of I and the Chamber of Commerce.

Q. Would you just as soon not see this happen? Yes, I would just as soon not see Blue Mountains. For one reason you are having it within a week of exams time. It was just to a lot of people don’t want to go. The other reason is I don’t think it’s a good publicity for the community or the U of I.

Q. Do you feel that the burden to run Blue Mountain lies with the Board of Regents, or President Rhoads, or the Hill Senate or perhaps a general agreement among all three? I think the Hill Senate is probably spending a little money on the area as possible so that they can further develop in the future.

I would think that somebody had blocks either the pure sciences or the control of the university either say, “no dance way,” or they try to block out the student body you want it. Someday someone had block out their first, and I do not know whether the Board has the power or the president has the power. I’m not making any excuses against the president because I know he has his hands full with many, many things, and he can’t stay on top of everything. I know he’s been dealing with. I know he’s trying to get to the legislature and to be sure they have their proper items done. I don’t think the Chamber of Commerce has any responsibility to try and promote housing in Illinois.

The Chamber of Commerce and the community have been working on housing for many years that I know of. The Chamber has encouraged and has tried to bring in internal financing in the past. They have never been able to come up with a program, or an office will support the concept to the administration.

As far as Blue Mountains, it is needed for the relaxation or construction of a new U of I, the building must be needed and I think it is needed for the relaxation or construction of a new U of I.

Black student union to be torn down

Black student on the U of I campus will be without their Black Student Union. On Campbell, U. If I am correct, 15 to 18 Black students are hearing to music from their building on Elm Street because it is torn down to create the People’s Park, located behind the Student Union.

The building must be vacated by June 1 according to Charles Ramsey, head of U of I minority programs.

At present, there are three Black graduate students living at the U of I, and the University has planned a move in plans for this building to be torn down.

Campbell said he thought the monumental side should be kept intact. “We should look at whether or not it’s a project that we should tear down or replace the area, or what the area of which has been condemned,” he said.

Raney said he does not think any area will be taken by black students and has said, “Just when you think you’ve come up with a program, our offer will support the concept to the administration.”

As far as Blue Mountains, it is needed for the relaxation or construction of a new U of I, the building must be needed and I think it is needed for the relaxation or construction of a new U of I.

Six days of activities and fun are in store for those who live in campus residence halls next week. The all student, all faculty, event will be beginning Thursday through Saturday, May 1, the campus will hold an LSD week, activities open to all students living in the residence Greek, coops, and off campus students.

This LSD week is to bring students together on campus in a fun atmosphere.

The week will include a variety of activities for students which will be held in a pool party and with the work week around winning a trophy.

Production splits; media heads sought

The ASME seminar last Tuesday approved the unfinished version of an article dealing with production in the genre of the medium of the medium, which has been the subject of much discussion and debate. The new format will provide the general audience with the opportunity to see the new concepts and ideas in the genre. However, the additions will not be included in the pre-print.

The seminar was well-attended, with many attendees demanding to see the completed work. A representative of the Local Institute of Technical Arts and Sciences was present to answer any questions. The seminar was the first of a series of meetings to discuss the future of the genre and its potential applications.

Tradition takes a bath

Yesterday's toppling of a newly-engaged Sigma Nu member's fraternity house mirror is the property of such an action. This seems a casual and unusual punishment for the high crime of allowing oneself to become intoxicated.

More important, such pranks have led, on other campuses, to serious injury and even death.

We're not talking about being tied to the LG anchor and having prisoners or other objects indiscernible from you face and snared on your body. However, impaled by chicken wire and wire and eyeballs, held in a tub of cold water for ten minutes, and exposed to the Moscow spring weather can be dangerous. Added to the extent that the alledged was taken to the health center and held for observation.

At this point, it's not funny anymore. What's the rationale of such acts? Certainly the value of his and future gained siftinghroducing from the experience. No doubt the Sigma Nu's will not benefit in the area of public criticism.

Even though the procedures may be in violation of Article Three of the Student Code of Conduct, it is a complaint from the victim to be acting. Which member will risk his membership for such an act?

Let's grow up a bit, boys, and put an end to the "standard procedure" and "tradition of toppling"

Sports strikes out

In an interview with the Argonaut some weeks back President Hanson said, "I do not feel we can go very much longer putting major amounts of appropriated monies into intramurals." Harding made this statement in reference to the trend of campus athletic programs. And the Faculty Council adopted their "Proposed Faculty Policy on Intramurals." Their statement went like this: "At the other end of the continuum, because it is not necessary to the fulfillment of the University's mission, the intercollegiate athletic program should be assigned the lowest priority in budgetary planning.

It appears that intracollegiate athletics, in light of an overwhelming need for recreational funds, can give our readers a more vivid picture of just what these implications are, we went to the key people in the athletic department. Larry Green, athletic director, and Ed Troxel, head football coach.

The response most revealing. It is inappropriate for me to make a comment at this time," he said. And then sought some clarification from Coach Troxel. He referred us back to Green. So the trend will linger and nobody really seems to know who will be most affected or to what extent. Maybe there are a few students to back some dollars out of our intercollegiate athletics. But what are they? Being closemouthed, the athletic department appears to be minimizing the alternatives. Or maybe there aren't any. It would be nice to see the students, who may be more affected, in on this little secret.

Trroxel has little to smile about

Student government cannot be an effective tool for helping student needs. Power comes from the people, and that power cannot be implemented and directed where the people do not want it.

Thank you.

Lynn Tordenia, announce your write-in candidacy. It's a fall. It's here! It's your turn! I've got my tail up and I'm ready to go. I'm running because I'm willing to lend free attention to the people they don't listen to. I'm running to report back to their constituency, direct those issues that are too easily ignored by our representatives. We are the people who are the government of the Greek gods of our campus. With your support I can help make sure that's where we get policy that looks after all of the students.

Blue Centurions

Editor: Glad tidings of great joy! The University of Idaho has finally seen the end of their strike and the majority of the Blue Centurions is back to its work.

They tell us that they will be back for our fall line or to whatever else is available. Their main hope is that the safety of downtown Moscow. Now we need not fear the holy water in our money at the show, that might be eaten by some mischievous centurion containing choler or belief that they may guard themselves against the impurities of the empires.

Yes, the blue centurions will continue being effective in exactly what they do,hut it's been a long time since we've seen as much as we are used to.

The centurions say that they are working hard to ensure that everything is running smoothly.

At their last meeting, the centurions discussed the possibility of expanding their activities to include organizing events and shows.

The centurions are currently working on a new project that will involve creating a new tradition on campus.

They believe that this new tradition will help to bring the community together and create a sense of pride among the students.

The centurions are looking forward to the future and plan to continue to be an active and positive presence on campus.

Record set straight

As an originator of the Blue Mountain Strike, I want to set the record straight on a few of the claims that have been made in the past. It is my belief that the strike was not led by the Blue Mountain Strike, but rather was a more general student movement.

In particular, I was quoted in The Student, stating that the strike was "a direct action of the student government to respond to the needs of student needs.

In fact, I was quite surprised when I realized that we had been quoted out of context by our government. The strike was not led by the Blue Mountain Strike, but rather by a more general student movement.

It is important to note that the strike was not a direct action of the student government, but rather a more general student movement that was able to bring together a wide range of students.

I hope that this clarifies the situation and sets the record straight.

Tear the fence down

Editor: I enjoy your fantasy, you provide me with fantastic fencing and it is a lot of fun. The hill of Montpelier is surrounded, the Molokai shops are empty, and there is no fence to tear down.

I am not sure that the editor is being honest with his readers about the fence. I don't know if he is being honest with his readers about the fence. I don't know if he is being honest with his readers about the fence. I don't know if he is being honest with his readers about the fence.

Blue Mountain is riding around again on top of its fence, or the media is looking back on the fence, and it is an important event. The fence usually occurs around the Perch and the Snowman.

No one has told us where the fence is located, and we are not sure if it is a fence or a border, and we are not sure if it is a fence or a border, and we are not sure if it is a fence or a border.

The fence is a general idea, no longer needs to set the fence as the fence is not used, and it is not a fence.

I hope that this clarifies the situation and sets the record straight.

For the editor, it is an exciting time. The fence is not a fence, and the fence is not a fence, and the fence is not a fence.

The AMU Finance Committee has just spent two weeks trying to raise more money to support the Special Projects Board. If all goes well, the students will have a better chance for the coming year, and their fiscal problem will be alleviated. There is no reason for the current financial situation to continue, and I would like to think that all of the students involved will be interested in continuing this process. I think the committee has done a very commendable job. I would like to see the number continue.

Posters torn down

Editor

An act of vandalism occurred this week in the AMU office. Several posters, all in support of the Special Projects Board, had been torn down. We are not sure who is responsible for this act. I am sure that we can figure it out, and I am sure that the person will be held accountable for this action.

One case is that Chris Johnson, a member of the board, had his old high school records torn down. The publisher of the school newspaper had provided the records to the board, but the person responsible for this act has not been identified. The same thing has occurred at Greek, Independent, and Off Campus, all of which have been affected by this act.

In response to liberty

Editor

After another rather lengthy discussion about AMU president andaterno, I came to the conclusion that what a person does for a living is not an indication of his character. My personal code is not based on this type of information. I do not think that it is fair to judge a person based on this criterion. I believe that a person's character is based on his actions, not on his occupation. This is a very important point.

There are many individuals who have become president of the AMU board. On a larger scale, it might be interesting to consider the following: What does it mean to be a liberal? Many people do not think of themselves as liberals, or as conservatives, but rather as people who want to live in a society that is free from interference. The key issue is whether or not this person is willing to support democratic principles.

I believe that there are people who have been elected to positions of power in this society, and I believe that they should be held accountable for their actions. If they do not, then they are not fulfilling their role as elected officials.

Support user fees

Editor

Wednesday, April 28, can you believe it? It seems like only yesterday that our students were debating the wisdom of allowing students to charge fees. But today, the issue has returned to the fore. In particular, the issue of user fees is being discussed.

User fees have been a topic of discussion for many years. At one time, they were seen as a way to support the university and its programs. But as time has passed, the issue of user fees has become more controversial. The debate continues.

Land use management, today's forest decision

In national forest management, the land manager is caught in a conflict between the local people who currently enjoy natural forest privileges, and the desires of the “have-nots,” those who would like to acquire or use the forests for different purposes.

This view was espoused at the U.S. Forest Service seminar in Jackson, Wyoming, where the problems of national forest management and administration were discussed.

The seminar was established in Jackson by the National Academy of Sciences-University of Wyoming joint committee on the future of national forests.

Candidates miss the issues

by JIM FRIC

This spring's ASU senatorial candidates are not confronting the important issues of the campaigns, according to David Warnick, ASU

"The campaign is totally lacking in issue-based debate and discussion. The critical or important issues are not being raised on important issues affecting the student's welfare."

"I'm not sure how one can make that kind of argument," said William Finley, candidate for the ASU senate. "Finley said most candidates give their stand on important issues during visits to living groups. He said that since Warnick cannot be at every living group, he cannot know what all the students are saying."

"But I think, if I who are not students, if these candidates aren't teaching some of the major issues, then because the point of these issues are not being talked about.

The issue of drugs and alcohol is one of the major issues that students are concerned with."

"The candidates aren't really doing what the students are demanding. They aren't raising the issues that the students want to hear about." - Finley

According to Warnick, the important issues for the April 28

"ASU continues to lose money from political influence. He believes the Argonaut and RUO will become more interested in influence with the benefit of the students' welfare."

"Collective bargaining between administration and the community vitally affects the student's welfare. What are the candidates views on collective bargaining and should they have a part in the bargaining system? Warnick asks."

"We need to decide which candidates are in charge of what government," Warnick said."

The recently formed administration's main concern is to put a new administration to work to improve the students' welfare."

"The time has come to see what candidates are doing in what government."

Warnick also said the candidates aren't involved in what's going on in the same government concerning higher education.

Fee referendum on spring ballot

by JIM FRIC

Students will not be just voting for candidates during the ASU senatorial election on April 28. They will also have to vote on a referendum concerning the Student Government of Rights and to fill the survey which deals with new fees and additional fees for a marching band.

"The Student Government of Rights and to fill the survey which deals with new fees and additional fees for a marching band will be the same as it now stands, but will be important to the Senate," said the President of the Student Senate.

"The referendum is not complex. It gives an agency or program a life of six years. Within that period, the legislature has the power to select, to suspend, or to justify the agency's program or a program's progress."

Swain explains play

Q. Why did you (Howard Swain) choose this play?

A. This is a new play that I thought would be a real challenge for the actors and give them something important to say. The play has a lot of ideas and is relevant to today's world.

Q. Do you think the characters are real in this play?

A. Yes, the characters are real and they have to deal with the same kind of issues that we all have to deal with in our daily lives. The play is about the human condition and the choices we make.

Q. What do you hope to achieve with this play?

A. I hope that the audience will come away from the play with a greater understanding of the human condition and the importance of ma...
I had a dream but I was not asleep. I was talking to someone who is in school. I guess we all are.
My dream was about people.
There are illusions on this world, I said. I did not speak for a long time.

"What are illusions?" I asked.

"They are people whom other people believe," They create things around and within themselves.

"What are other people than?"

"Some who do not really exist, some who create nothing within or around themselves, they manipulate others and things..."

"And other?"

"Other people do not do either."

"And who should I wish?"

With those who do not or cannot be either. For though you can see all of the kinds, even the illusions though you do not understand why, you cannot be your own. Nor are you good at games. And this is your day with age, time, and death all racing for you."

Troubles on Terra Firma—spring football injuries

Spring football practice is taking in a lot of injuries, and while the number of injuries has been high, the team coaches have generally related reports that the injuries would not have occurred if the team had been wise.

"One injury, to Dan Garetz, has been attributed to careless practice, but others could have happened on the field as well," according to Mark Smith, team trainer.

Garetz was injured when he stepped into a hole in the practice field and was walked off to the dressing room. Smith said the injury was directly related to the poor field conditions and could have been prevented but the team hasn’t been in the Dome.

McPherson did not feel the condition of the team is a factor. "We’re as good as any team in the West," he said. "We came into spring practice in better shape than we did in the fall game season because of winter conditions.

The injuries incurred have been from falls, mostly. According to McPherson, all players will play a few times of practice to get a feel for the field and weather conditions.

Don Garetz hurt his ankle, according to Smith, and has been kept off any practice because of his injury. Smith said he is recovering.

"We need a Gold medalist to win the sweep," said Robert Booth in the practice held in the dome on Wednesday.

Dennis Morgan, on the opposite end of the spectrum, has been on the injury list the past two weeks, said Smith. "He’s been hard working, hard training, and now he’s back in the practice and field conditions," Smith said.

Dennis Morgan, who appeared to have made a recovery, was put on the injury list with a number of other players and is expected to return to practice soon.

The weather on the field was cold and windy, and the field was wet due to recent rains.

Dennis Morgan, who has been with the team for the past three years, has been cleared by the medical staff to return to practice.

He said the team expects to have a strong showing in the upcoming meets, and will be ready for the season opening meet next month.
