GRAY JOINS "MINUS AN APPRENDIST" LIST

Two of the most colorful events in the life of the industrial arts and crafts men in the community were the presentations of the annual "Minus an Apprentice" contest on September 25 and 26. The contest, sponsored by the Gray Manufacturing Company, is designed to promote the growth of the industries and create a more stable labor force.

The contest involves the selection of the most outstanding apprentice in the company's various departments. The winner receives a cash prize and a promotion to a higher position. The contest is open to all apprentices in the company and is judged by a panel of experts in the industry.

The contestants are evaluated on their technical skills, creativity, and leadership qualities. The contest also provides an opportunity for the apprentices to network with other professionals in the industry and learn about new trends and technologies.

The Gray Manufacturing Company is one of the leading manufacturers in the industry, and the company's commitment to the apprentice program is evident in its support of the "Minus an Apprentice" contest. The company believes that investing in the development of its apprentices is key to ensuring a stable and skilled workforce for the future.

The contest has been a popular event among the apprentices, who see it as an opportunity to showcase their skills and compete with their peers. The company also encourages the apprentices to participate in the contest as a way to gain valuable experience and advance their careers.

The success of the "Minus an Apprentice" contest is a testament to the company's commitment to the development and growth of its apprentices. The company's efforts in this area will undoubtedly lead to a more stable and skilled labor force in the industry.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT IN FIRST ROUND

Barnstable Country Club

OCTOBER 11, 1932

The Hialeah Park pony races was the scene of the first round of the Hialeah Park tennis tournament. The tournament, which was open to the public, attracted a large crowd of spectators.

The tournament, which was held in the fall, was a popular event among the tennis enthusiasts in the community. The tournament featured a variety of matches, including singles and doubles, and was open to both men and women.

The tournament was sponsored by the Hialeah Park, a local tennis club, and was held in conjunction with the annual pony races. The tournament was a great success, and the organizers were pleased with the turnout.

The tournament provided a great opportunity for the tennis enthusiasts to come together and enjoy the game. The matches were played in the beautiful outdoor setting of the Hialeah Park, and the spectators enjoyed the fun and excitement of the event.

The tournament was a great success, and the organizers are already planning for next year's event. They are looking forward to welcoming even more tennis enthusiasts and spectators to the tournament in the future.
