Idaho Will Inaugurate Junior College System

Final Decision Follows Faculty Meeting Tuesday; Plan Goes Into Effect Here Next Fall

The junior college plan will go into effect at the University of Idaho next fall, following a faculty meeting Tuesday evening. The school and college system is scheduled to start next fall, but was postponed until the fall of 1935 after a series of conferences in the state. The remaining colleges and school of the university form one administrative unit.

Idaho for junior college, with which the state has been identified, is the result of a movement which has been going on for a number of years. The school system is one of the few in the West that is completely integrated, and the plan of education is designed to meet the requirements of the state as a whole.

The junior college system will have a separate administration, and will be under the control of the state. The school will be located in the new Idaho State University, on the campus of the old Idaho University.

The administration of the school will be under the supervision of the state, and the board of regents will be responsible for the administration of the school. The school will be located in the new Idaho State University, on the campus of the old Idaho University.

Two-thirds of the college students will be back at school after the national holidays. The New York Times reported that most of these students will have already begun the search for a job, and that athletic teams and other extracurricular activities will be held to a minimum.

Dr. Miller, the President of the University, announced the registration dates for the fall semester, which will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday, September 5th. The registration fee will be $5.00 per credit hour.

STATE-WIDE POINT SYSTEM DISCUSSED

A report of the progress of the State-Wide Point System program was presented at the 19th annual meeting of the Idaho Association of Independent Schools held in Boise. The report highlighted the success of the program in promoting student leadership and civic engagement. The members expressed their appreciation for the efforts of the faculty and staff in implementing the program across the state. The next meeting of the association will be held in November, and details will be announced soon.

Students at Pocatello Demand "Equal Rights"

Business is the order of the day in the little town of Pocatello, Idaho, for Glase Idaho for hall, that time. The University of Idaho is the largest institution of its kind in the state, and its influence is widely felt in the community. The students, however, are not content with the status quo, and they are determined to have their full share of privileges and opportunities.

The Pocatello students have been denial of rights for some time, and they have been fighting for their just demands with all their might. They have been protesting against the unfair treatment they have received from the authorities of the University, and they have been demanding equal rights with the other students.

The University of Idaho is the largest institution of its kind in the state, and it is the only one of its kind in the west. It is the only institution that provides an opportunity for the education of the people of the state, and it is the only one that provides an opportunity for the advancement of the arts and sciences.

The students have been demanding that the University of Idaho should be made to live up to its obligations to the people of the state, and they have been demanding that the University of Idaho should be made to live up to its obligations to the students.
