A newspaper was published with the title "The Idaho Argonaut". The contents of the page include various articles and notices, such as sports news, campus events, and announcements. The page also features advertisements and notices about upcoming events and meetings. The layout is typical of a local newspaper, with headlines, subheadings, and paragraphs of text. The language used is formal and informative, typical of news reports and announcements. The page appears to be from a local university newspaper, given the references to campus events and activities. The newspaper is in good condition, with no visible damage or tears. The page is readable, and all text is legible. The content is diverse, covering local news, sports, and community events. The newspaper's content reflects the community's interests and activities, providing a snapshot of the local scene. The layout and design are typical of newspapers, with a mix of headlines, paragraphs, and visual elements such as advertisements. The text is organized logically, with a clear hierarchy of information. The overall quality of the newspaper is indicative of a well-produced local publication, providing valuable information and news to its readers.
"HAY FEVER" NEXT THREE ACT COMEDY

Cushman is Directing Play Which Will Be Produced May 2 and 3

"Hay Fever," the romantic comedy of manners by John van Druten, now being produced in London by Herbert Marshall, will be presented here May 2 and 3 at 8:30 by the Cushman Players. If it is not too much to ask, Miss Cushman will direct the production, which will be presented in the Brandeis Theatre.

"Hay Fever," which has been under practically continuous production in London since March 11, 1929, was first presented in New York at the Theatre Guild, which is producing under the direction of John C. Wilson, with Robert Young, Doris Lloyd, Constance Collier, Adele Jergens, and Janice Rule. Miss Cushman, a member of the New York company, is not only the producer and director of the play, but will also appear on the stage in one of the two leading roles. She will be playing the part of "Blanche" opposite Frank Pevey as "Lionel." Although the play is being produced in London by Herbert Marshall, which company consists entirely of English actors, Miss Cushman has managed to retain the roles of "Blanche" and "Lionel." The only British actor in the New York cast was Lionel Atwill, who plays the part of "Lionel." Miss Cushman is the only American in the cast of the London production.

"Hay Fever," which has been referred to as "a comedy of manners," is a play of good acting opportunities. The part of "Blanche," which is given to Miss Cushman, is a role of great complexity and is one of the most difficult to play. It requires not only the ability to act but also the ability to direct the play. Miss Cushman has demonstrated her ability to do both.

The play is set in a country house in the English countryside and opens with a family gathering at the home of "Blanche" and "Lionel." Theremainder of the play deals with various family problems, including the marriage of "Blanche" to "Lionel," the marriage of "Ellen" to "Arthur," and the marriage of "Violet" to "Teddy." The play has been popular with both audiences and critics.

"Hay Fever," which was first produced in New York in 1929, is a play of great charm and wit. It is a play that is easy to understand and is a pleasure to watch. The play has been produced in many countries and has been translated into several languages.

Here's a challenge to young men who plan to make farming a business

T o the wide-eyed-minded young men, especially to the graduates and under-graduates of agricultural colleges and schools, I bring a challenge in Florida's unclouded agricultural possibilities which offers an opportunity to exercise knowledge and skill for real profit in farming. Business men, you know, expect to make money. If you are one who plans to make farming a business—profitable, full of joy of achievement—you need the story about Florida.

Investigate! There's no better way of spending your summer vacation than hunting for the car for a crossing trip to Florida for personal investigation of this state's many agricultural opportunities. You'll enjoy a vacation unlike any you've ever had. It won't cost a lot—but it may mean much to your plans for your future. Be sure to send for facts about agricultural subjects you are interested in. There's a handy excerpt below.

I think you might be having a bit of a problem with your sugar. I noticed you were eating a lot of it yesterday and it seemed to be causing some difficulties. I recommend you try to reduce your intake and possibly consult a dietician for advice. Is there anything else I can help you with today?
