English Schools Are Super for New American Authority

Dr. Abraham Ascher, director of the Institute of Advanced Study in New York, N. Y. in a new book, criticizes English universities for

"tautologous" research and "lack of depth." But even as he decries the trend, he accepts it, he says, in the name of progress.

The book, "The Social Nature of Science," is a critical survey of the problems of the new American authority, and a demonstration of the value of the English universities.

The book, in Dr. Ascher's view, is a "triumph of the sociological method over the method of the natural sciences." The author asserts that the English universities have been "baptized with the spirit" of the new American authority, and he quotes a number of English scholars as examples of the new trend.

The book is a fine piece of work, and the author is to be commended for his zeal in attempting to bring the sociological method to the field of science.

He has done some very good work, and his book is a valuable contribution to the literature of the new American authority.

The book is written in a clear and concise style, and is a pleasant read.

But the author's arguments are not always convincing. He sometimes seems to be trying to make too much of the sociological method, and he is often seduced by the ease of this method into making too easy a conclusion.

In spite of these faults, the book is a welcome addition to the literature of the new American authority. It is a valuable contribution to our understanding of the problems of the new American authority, and it should be read by all who are interested in this field.

SLEEPS AT DIABO

THE GREAT PASTY BATTLE AT SPOKANE'S LAST FESTIVAL

WHEN you hear the word "Pasty" you don't think of anything but a large, flaky, golden-brown dish of potatoes and meat that has been baked to perfection. But at the Great Pasty Battle at Spokane's Last Festival, the pasties are not only baked to perfection, but they are also made from the finest ingredients.

The Great Pasty Battle is a kontest between two teams of bakers, each team trying to make the best pasty. The judges are all local bakers who have been there for many years, and they know what it takes to make a good pasty.

The contest is held in the city's largest park, where a huge crowd has gathered.

The bakers come from all over the area, and they are competing for the title of Best Baker in the State.

The contest is a great success, and the local bakers are very proud of their city.

THE UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO AT THE LAST FESTIVAL

The University of Idaho was represented at the Great Pasty

Battle by a team of bakers who had been trained by the university's culinary school.

The team was able to produce pasties that were praised by the judges as being the best in the contest.

The University of Idaho's culinary school is one of the finest in the state, and the students there are trained to make the finest pasties.

great way to see the talents of the local bakers, and it is a great way to support our local businesses.

Whole-hearted, natural, real!

Equally genuine is the re sponse of smokers to Chest erfield's satisfying goodness, their wholesome smoothness.

No one ever has to "acquire" a taste for Chestfielders. You don't have to learn to like them.

Smokes take to their pleasing flavor instinctively and . . .

MILDNESS — the entirely natural mildness of tobaccos that are without harshness or bitterness.

BETTER TASTE — Such as

our own, that well represents of wholesome purity and better tobacco can have.
