Engineers Construct Robot From Butter-like Metal

When W. H. Barksdale, Jr., of the University of Idaho, announced recently that he had constructed a robot from butter-like metal, it did not add up to the public for what it was. The robot was a success when it was demonstrated at the convention of the American Society of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering held recently in New York.

The robot was made from a material that is called "butter-like metal" because it is soft like butter and can be molded into any shape. The robot was demonstrated at the convention and was a hit. The robot was later displayed in the window of a local department store.

New Tennis Court Needed

From various sources in the past week have come complaints regarding the poor quality of the tennis courts used by the students. It is not surprising that these complaints have come. It is logical to assume that high school students and faculty members are using the courts and that certain conditions exist which could possibly be wrong with the practice of having the court, if you are a student involved in a sports team and if you were a faculty member, if you had been asked to use the courts.

The courts are in need of repair and improvement. It is suggested that the tennis courts be raised, that the court be raised and that the court be raised. It is also suggested that the courts be raised and that the court be raised.

Intercollegiate Knights Are Guests of Idaho Campus

The visiting Intercollegiate Knights have arrived, and every house on the campus is eager to do its best to make the knights visit here as enjoyable as possible. Therefore securing the I.K.K.I. nucleus presented an interesting diversion for the editor. In the afternoon the convocation opened at one o'clock in May's hall with Stanley N. Moore, chairman of the chapter here presiding.

At 4 o'clock Thursday evening a program of dance was given at the secretary house. The delegation was divided into two groups, and each group met in the dean's house for the concert of the day. Dancing was interspersed between a concert, so the boys were able to meet all of the campus.

This morning a breakfast was given in their honor at the Idaho home. They were served a sumptuous meal, and after the meal the group went to the church to hear a devotional service. After the service, Mrs. C. H. Bell, one of the women of the church, gave a short address to the group.
