U. C. L. A. and California Rate Many Positions on Mental Teams

California players carried away on the Idaho Press and the Western Union wire are likely to meet a mental challenge when the Vandals play U. C. L. A. and California.

Dr. George H. Woodard, the University of Idaho professor of psychology, describes the mental training of the Vandals as a success story.

Dr. Woodard, who was a member of the University of Idaho Psychology Department for many years, said that the Vandals have outdone their own record of two years ago when they scored an average of 87.5 per cent.

The Vandals will face a mental challenge when they play U. C. L. A. and California, who have scored an average of 88.5 per cent on the same test.

Harry Carlin - Explains How Oregon won 27-21 Without a Single Yard From Scrimmage or Passes

"Gently possession" was the terminology of many Idaho opponents who were unable to stop the Leatherpunchers' spectacular execution of the pass play. And when the ball was placed near the goal line, Idaho's defensive formation would crumble before the force of the Leatherpunchers' attack, and the ball would become possession of the Leatherpunchers' lead.

In game action, the Leatherpunchers' offensive strategy was executed with clockwork precision, and the Idaho defense was unable to stop the Leatherpunchers' attack. The result was a 27-21 victory for the Leatherpunchers.
