Proportional Representation

According to all accepted text books, the fair and accurate system of voting is the Hare Single Transferable Ballot. The whole high opinion of the voters is concurred in, consists of listing first choices, as well as second and third choices, or more if desired. This is the system of voting, which, if applied to a field of from five to fifteen candidates, is in the counting of the ballots that it seems about to the C. P. A. or two, it is called "slippery," and the lightning car is necessary.

In Hong and Halley, the following example is used.

Five places are to be filled from a field of nine candidates, in which election 116 votes are cast, as determined by counting all the first choices. The smallest number of ballots which will secure the election of a candidate is known as the quota, and that is the name of the ballots that are cast by dividing the total number of ballots by one more than the number to be elected, and taking the whole number next larger than the result. In this case one are to be elected, plus one, and by the required division 20 is the quotient. Throughout this text, we had nothing up our sleeve. As soon as the first quota is filled, the surplus ballots are distributed again on the basis of the second choices expressed. If another position is filled through the addition of these ballots, these choices are brought into the count. These choices are picked by chance, or by a draw of a defendant. After delivering who the first three candidates elected are, if there are no surplus to be transferred, the candidates at the bottom of the list are declared defeated, and his ballots are distributed, or rather, transferred, as the close friend is to the desired candidates. By successive eliminations, the five men elected are determined. Admittedly, the above description leaves much to be explained, but a 127 page book is not easily condensed.

The main defect of the system is that the method of selecting the members must be made very accurately, especially if applied to a student body as small as ours, with a total list of equi-opportunity.

The Hare Single Transferable Ballot system has been tried in France and Colorado university. A former case is in a state of operation; but at Colorado is worked so well that no one will ever be difficult to attain, and students, when the policy is declared, is a perfect student government over the faculty, due to the fact that the system can be changed, as it is changed. In theory the party is the party to put it over. The plan is intended to make possible an impartial and fair representation of each party.

College Journalism

Much has been written recently concerning college publication. The writers loudly declare that they are an unnecessary expense, a waste of the student's time, that they give no fundamental news writing experience to any of the students; that their advertising departments make inroads in the business communities. If the remittances of our student publications would thoroughly investigate the conditions of our local college (and not only the college, but its publications, it should be noted that the college publication presents one of the few extra-curricular activities, both educationally and financially on the campus.

Student papers may not be given "fundamental news writing experience to any of the students," as one writer says, but, strange to say, there are many alumni of college journalism who are reaching successful careers in that field.

None of the advertising in our college papers is solicited from the business man's favor to the school. Students provide a live market for the products of modern business and wise business men seek their advertising through the closest connection with the school paper. National advertisers contact the college man and woman through agencies whose exclusive interest is college journalism.

College journalism is not a bad nor a picaflor of adolescence. It really has an established institution with an enviable record.

Gins and Gripe To The Editor

Dear Sir:

Last week there were many students at the Idaho campus, who thought that the idea of sending a pop bottle to the campus was a fine idea. It would seem to be the best idea to be the one to suggest it. As a matter of fact, I would suggest that we start a movement to have a pop bottle given to every student on the campus. This would be a great idea to start the movement, but it should not be allowed to continue to have to be continued. If the truth be known, many professors would approve this idea, but I am personally opposed to it. I am personally opposed to it.

Sincerely,

Just as tricky corduroys get nowhere fast with university men—so Campus Cords get over with a bang.

Campus Cords are favorites in the best circles on practically every major campus, because their snug hip fit and straight hang coincide exactly with university men's ideas of distinctive, but conservative style.

This approved corduroy trouser length at acid wear and keeps its style through many cleanings or rubbings.

University tradition also says that the Campus Cords dealer is generally a good man to consult on university style. See him today for Campus Cords and other apparel needs.

With Dancing This Week-End

Attention for the Alpha Chi Omega pledges of Delta Chi Omegans was centered Saturday night at a Fiveondale gathering. The Alpha Chi Omegas selected Mrs. John Stanley to head the program, which included a voice group, a soft drink and piano music. Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. John Stanley were dinner guests at the Delta Chi Omegas home Sunday night. Mrs. Stanley was accompanied by Mrs. John Stanley and his daughter, Miss John Stanley. The program included a variety of songs and dances performed by the Alpha Chi Omegas and their guests. The evening concluded with a delicious dinner served by the Delta Chi Omegas.
Vandals Drop Opening Game Of Season To Husky Eleven By Decisive Score Of 32-6

By BILL McKEE

The Vandals are back and ready for a sizable dose of college football. To anyone who thinks the Vandals look like anything but a team that should participate so far has not seen the Vandals. For, not only did the Vandals look as though they were ready to face the Huskies, but they played with the determination of a team that was ready to take on any challenge.

The Vandals were backed by a strong defense and were able to put up a fight against the Huskies. They put up a good show, but eventually fell short, losing the game by a score of 32-6. The Vandals' defense, although not always successful, showed a lot of fight and determination. On the other hand, the Huskies' offense was overpowering, scoring two touchdowns in the first half alone.

Despite the loss, the Vandals can take pride in their effort and the spirit they showed during the game. They fought hard and held their own against a strong opponent. With practice and improvement, the Vandals can definitely rise to the occasion and challenge the Huskies again in the future.
