DR. JACOBY, CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD, Has been received by the board of regents of the University of Idaho, and was appointed to fill the position of president of the university.

The college has been established for many years, and with the addition of this new member, the board of regents has been able to increase its efficiency and to extend its facilities.

A Cry For "Elbow Room"

As information to Idaho students who are not accustomed to the open campus activities and traditions to which those are, The Argonaut loudly points out the fact that we have only one office designed to accommodate those activities. The door of Room 303, Memorial gymnasium, bears a glass plate which announces: "Announced Students, Argonaut, Klare and the Cling-man of the Mountain." The printing or that door clearly explains the extent which we are driven.

In 1928 the gymnasium was built at a cost of half a million dollars. It was thought there would be plenty of room available and that there would be enough enclosed space to maner an office. However, after the athletic and military department arrived at the university, they found it necessary to move into their present accommodations in three-fourths of the building space, little room was left for activities.

For many years The Argonaut editorial office was in the Moscow Daily Star-Mirror office downtown. After the gymnasium was completed there was an opportunity to have an office in the Argonaut editorial building which was to be the editorial room for The Argonaut reporter staff for the simple reason that they could not put on an additional room office which was crowded with every studentbody activity.

Today there is an office installed in the "U" but plans were being formulated to turn it into a student union building which would house the graduate, the executive board, and include private and individual rooms for each of the three student bodies.

Continually hoping that something could be done about the dreadful situation, we have used that public room in the Argonaut editorial building for over two years. It has become a sort of hunting ground for all the Geniusing student publications more comfortable and more convenient.

Now, four coaches have two offices on the main floor. Below us four or five rooms along the hall are occupied by the military department. The fifth is the coaches dressing room. In contrast with that confusion arrangement, three publications, the executive board, and the studentboard president occupy room.

The situation becomes even more abominable when one views with envy the studentbody publications of Oregon at Corvallis, University of Arizona, University of Oregon, or any other that might choose at will. Arranging at different times to see the editors, throughout the year to secure another office, to trade with some department, or even to build a partition in some unused office, all of which would make the Geniusing student publications more comfortable and more convenient.

Let's Agree On One Thing

Avoid the least of the ASUI election next Thursday, when party strife and differences will reach a climax. Students on both sides of the political fence have a chance to agree on an important point by casting their votes in a proposed amendment to the constitution. It concerns the awards that are given by the ASUI to winners of the minor sports "E." When the amendment is adopted, the need for a higher class athlete for our minor sports athletes was pointed out. Proper action should be taken to implement the amendment. The proposed amendment. Use your vote to help "dope" our minor sports athletes.

Grins and Gripe

To the Editor:

A Statement On "Grind" and "Grin"

The following is a part of the debate which took place in the Argonaut in a letter between Miss T.K. and Miss T.R. (Grind and Grin) during the last year. However, inasmuch of that which is printed here, there is not an entire letter from one of the two contesting parties.

On the issue of the two arguments, I am for the Council in favor of the Grind. I have tried the Grin and it is far from satisfying. I can see the value of the Grind and I would like to have it adopted by the Council. I have tried the Grind and it is far from satisfying. I can see the value of the Grin and I would like to have it adopted by the Council.

Your sincerely,

Richard Stanton

Hawke Eye On Duty

Looking over the top of the desk I feel content with the world. So many of our younger people are being taught the art of living. Bob Bates, a student at the university, has just returned from a trip to the mountains. He tells me that the air is pure and the scenery is lovely. I am glad that he has had a chance to see the beauty of the world. I am sure that he will bring back many interesting experiences.

Miss Elmer Jacobs, another student at the university, has just returned from a trip to the mountains. She tells me that the air is pure and the scenery is lovely. I am glad that she has had a chance to see the beauty of the world. I am sure that she will bring back many interesting experiences.

I have just returned from a trip to the mountains. I tell my friends that the air is pure and the scenery is lovely. I am glad that I have had a chance to see the beauty of the world. I am sure that I will bring back many interesting experiences.

Jack Brink, back on the campus after a winter trip to the mountains, has just returned from a trip to the mountains. He tells me that the air is pure and the scenery is lovely. I am glad that he has had a chance to see the beauty of the world. I am sure that he will bring back many interesting experiences.

CABINET FINISHES RARE JUNIOR WEEK

Junior Week comes to a close, and with it the presentation of the past, a lovely preview of the future, and a brave contribution to the last days of Spring. For one week, there is magic in the atmosphere. The magic will last only until this year’s Junior Week is over, for we shall have to wait until tomorrow for the next. That magic, we are sure, is going to stay with us through the coming weeks, through the last days of Spring, through the first days of Summer, and on into the fall, when we are going to be ready to come back again to the Junior Week of the next year.

CHICAGO DANCE

Ruth Law, Mrs. Thomas E. Bond, and Mrs. William S. May, have been honored at the Junior Week dinner, held at the Hotel Roosevelt. Mrs. Law, who was presented with a diamond bracelet, given to her by the Junior Week committee, Mrs. Bond, who was presented with a diamond ring, given to her by the Junior Week committee, and Mrs. May, who was presented with a diamond brooch, given to her by the Junior Week committee, have been known to be the most popular of the Junior Week committee.

The way tobacco is cut has a lot to do with the way Chesterfield
burns and tastes

There are many different ways of cutting tobacco.

A long time ago, it used to be cut on what was known as a Pease Cutter, but this darkened the tobacco, and it was not uniform.

The cutters today are the most improved, modern, up-to-date equipment the tobacco industry has. They are simple,
and cut in long strips.

The tobacco in Chesterfield is cut right—you can judge for yourself how Chesterfield burns and tastes.

Everything that science knows is used to make Chesterfield
the cigarette that’s milder
the cigarette that tastes better.
