AN OPEN LETTER TO THE OUTGOING EDITOR

With a distinct sense of the responsibility shifted upon his shoulders and with a not so secret feeling of his own inability to live up to the standards set by his predecessors, the student editor wishes to bid farewell to you, the outgoing editor of The Argonaut.

During the past year The Argonaut has set a high mark of excellence, the equal of which will be often striven for, but rarely if ever equaled. It is with a feeling not unlike that of a freshman on registration day that the new editor looks forward to next year and the editorial of this paper. Perhaps excited with the prospect of new worlds to conquer, he is at the same time awed by the attainments and abilities of those who have gone before him.

During the school year 1933-34, The Argonaut, both from the standpoint of student organization and general typographical work, took on a semblance of order and purpose which for some years has been decidedly lacking. Due to your painstaking efforts in the selection and promotion of staff members the editorial offices became a professional office in appearance and in product. News beats were more efficiently and completely covered. Feature stories were written convincingly and interestingly written. Comment on campus life and society was more pointed and appropriate. Art work by student for exchange on the daily "That's the..." space.

From a typographical standpoint The Argonaut this year was by far an improvement over those of some years past. Not fearing the soul of printer's ink on your hands, you took an active part in directing and participating in the actual placing of the type in the forms for each issue of the paper. The consistent excellence of the layout of the paper has been evident that your interest along this line has not diminished in the slightest since Number 1 of Volume XXXVIII came off the press and was distributed on the campus. You know no such expressions as "good enough" or "that'll do." Every piece of repro work, every headline written by the copy desk, and every slug of type which came under your scrutiny was either right or it was wrong. If it was wrong the offender heard about it and if it was right he was duly complimented.

With this issue we close Volume XXXVIII. With its closing we regrettably bid farewell and "bon voyage" to you, our editor. Your journey has been a wholly successful though not an easy one. It is certain that your successor will be met with problems and duties as arduous as yours and he hopes that he will be able to discharge them with half as much efficiency and dispatch. The entire staff wishes you good luck and all happiness.

Hawk-Eye On Desk

For the last hour this year's "Hawk-Eye" pattern has been in progress in Room 102.フラグパターン in progress in Room 102.

During the last four years Donnie McDonald, first year student in the School of Journalism, has been in charge of the Hawk-Eye feature. Donnie has worked hard, and has done an excellent job in keeping the students informed of the latest news.

We are glad to announce that Donnie will be a candidate for the position of Hawk-Eye editor next year.

SIGMA TAU HOLDS LAST MEETING THURS.

The last meeting of Sigma Tau this year was held in the Engineering Classroom at 2:00. The meeting was called to order by the President, Paul E. Johnston, and was attended by a number of the members.

The meeting was devoted to the discussion of the following topics: the constitution, the officers, and the future plans of the chapter.

The constitution was discussed, and it was decided to keep it as it is. The officers were elected as follows:

President: Paul E. Johnston
Vice-President: Robert A. English
Secretary: James F. Smith
Treasurer: Charles T. MacCormack

The members then adjourned.

HARRY

They say "HARRY" is just another name for "Our Man in Foreign Parts." This year, HARRY has been a great help in keeping us informed of the latest news.

HARRY has been busy with his camera, and has taken many pictures of the latest events. He has also been busy with his typewriter, and has written many articles for The Argonaut.

HARRY is a great asset to The Argonaut, and we are all grateful to him for his hard work.

HARRY, keep up the good work.
