A Statement of Policy

It is necessary at the beginning of the year that the new editor of The Argonaut state his policies in editing the student organ, now so much because of any articulate request of him, but more by reason of established precedent and custom of those editors who have gone before him. However, disregarding precedent, it is expedient that the editor make known his policy if for no other reason than to protect himself and the student body from unreasonable requests and exploitation by outside or selfish interests.

The Argonaut’s policy is one of administrative matters and the administration of the university itself will always be of a constitutive nature. There can never be any good coming from a “bucking” spirit toward administrative matters and matters resigned are more often the cause for a particular administrative action which, if understood by the student body, explain that an action is likely to be taken that is more likely to be taken in the future. It will be the policy of The Argonaut to explain and interpret such actions for the students whenever question arises.

Student government at Idaho has always striven toward a democratic standard. Each student, freshman or senior, has a right to express his feelings and wishes in regard to the manner in which that government, or any other student matter, is decided in which his primary interests are centered, administered by the students in charge. He has a right to be heard, and the pages of The Argonaut, the student paper, are free to him. A column, "Let’s and Get’s to the Editor," is maintained for student opinion. It is not open to every student or student group, but only to those students who have something to say, but it is there for any reasonable and intelligent discussion of conditions or campus affairs. Every letter must be signed with the full name of the writer. This is an obvious caution upon which the editor must insist.

In regard to student politics, The Argonaut will maintain a strictly "hands off," policy unless conditions are such that an expression on the part of the editorial board is necessary. The editorial and the news columns will have neither party nor another at any time and will be employed only for the recording of the news and developments on the political horizon without bias.

The promotion of student ability and enterprises is one of the major functions of the paper as the official organ of the student body. Notices of meetings of student organizations and groups are recorded in the "Bulletin Board" which is open to the use of any and all. Accords of student and their activities receive primary consideration in The Argonaut’s news columns. The interests of the students will be defended and championed in its editorial columns whenever the editor feels that a condition warrants an expression. Accuracy and completeness are the prime considerations and every effort will be expended to insert these throughout the year in every department.

Parties Will Show Strength On Tuesday

A first hand and close look at the relative strengths of the two political parties in the campus political arena will be Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. when members of the Democratic and Republican clubs will be visiting students in the various dormitories. The visiting members will be shown around their dormitory, to the student union, and will be made to feel like a "boy from home.

Football Managers Work and Work and Work and Work...

"Bud you managers! Bring up the next three and keep on working. We'll need you in the Coliseum, and immediately, and do a good job of it. Keep in mind up until every single game as possible and don't let up on the work."

The average fan, viewing football from the sidelines, afoot or seated, will find the tension of the game, the game itself, a spectator sport. No such feeling of tension is felt by the managers, who are forced to make difficult decisions at every turn. The managers, who have to make decisions on whether to replace a player, whether to change a formation, whether to put in a substitute. These decisions can mean the difference between winning and losing. The managers work tirelessly, always looking for ways to improve their team and their chances of winning.
