Many Trials In Life Of Actor Revealed At English Club Luncheon

"You the play right, but the life is the comedy and the end of the show," said Mr. Tom Walls, British actor, who was guest speaker at the English Club Luncheon at the Hotel Last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Walls, who has had a broad experience in both the stage and screen, told of the many trials that actors face in their careers.

"You must be prepared to take your lumps, as we say in the trade," he said. "The life of an actor is one of continuous struggle and competition. You must be ready to face rejection and failure."
Major O'Connell Finds Idaho Different Than Anticipated

“The country around Moscow is entirely different from anything I expected to find,” stated Maj. O. C. O'Connell, who arrived here recently, on his way to Fort Lewis, the day before yesterday. The trip was by automobile, which he drove from St. Louis.

Maj. O'Connell, who is an engineer of the 127th Engineers, under whose flag he will come to Moscow, will arrive here to-morrow morning.

The trip was quite a business trip, as he was called to the city of St. Louis to receive a new car which he purchased at the sale of the automobile department.

The trip, which was a pleasure trip, was made in the interest of the government, as it was thought that the new car would be of great service to the city of St. Louis.

The trip was quite a success, as the car was received with great enthusiasm by the citizens of the city, who were glad to have such an improvement in transportation.

The trip was made on the 20th of the month, and lasted for two days. The car was received with great enthusiasm by the citizens of the city, who were glad to have such an improvement in transportation.
Noses are quite as useful parts of our anatomy as they are ornamental. Some are more decorative than others, but all have a definite and important function to perform. Cutting other people up is its chief function. When we start composing poetry upon our own persons it takes something else to do.

We are slicing great chunks off our own snouts by failing to back our athletic teams, refusing to participate in yells and rithms, and generally making it impossible for the Vandals to count on us for support, unless the student body checks up right now, looks ahead a little, and stops its selfish attitude at once, the future of the badgers at Idaho is doomed for many more years than we care to think about.

Now while the team is gone to California we want to have a talk with the students. The team has been dishonored with its attitude, and it has a right to be. You have boasted your own players, practically yelled for the other team, and done everything in your power to make Idaho that a spectator can possibly do. We have watched the poor boys of our own section Idaho has ever had at stake. While eleven men fought their hearts out to bring home a victory from the school across the line, it was the students who put up a wonderful battle.

What kind of a sales talk do you think those boys are going to have for Idaho when they meet prospectively attractive and students around the state this summer? They certainly won't come to ask us here when we can't give any ordinary support to the team we have now.

Southern Cal Trojans are drifting farther and farther down in the lists of conference standings. They aren't getting student support either. There is an example well worth following. We can't afford to let Idaho experience be our teacher. Experience is too cruel and her punishment, most of it, the year after too late. We can't afford to make a major depression.

Forget your personal prejudices! It's not only this year we must think of, but the next, and the next. Before too long we won't be only noses. Idaho's whole face is going to go! It's a lot to ask of most of you to think, but something revolutionary must be done and it may as well begin with each of us.

Let's stop swinging meat axes and start pulling together. Incidentally, let's all meet the teams when it comes home from Berkeley.

Good Point

Urging a world-wide study of international journalism to determine whether unrestricted dissemination of news is not one of the greatest achievements of peace, Carl W. Ackerman, dean of Columbia's School of Journalism, recently proposed that the Morningugas Heights institutions should become a clearing house for such a survey.

Dean Ackerman cites the suppression of 1,000 newspapers in Germany under the Nazi regime and the universal influence of dictatorships throughout the world as indications of the present trend toward increased concentration of the news media upon the rights of a free press. Well, these threats mean greater preparation for important news, and with the increasing need for close communication, the clear facts, clear decisions, with clear weight must be done to enable journalism to continue its proper course.

Newspapers in every land are the crucibles in which the diplomatic and economic policies of governments are subjected to the test of popular opinion and the fight is eagerly faced to win the policies of the legislature or the barefoot diplomat, or to win that battle, the democratic idea becomes invalid. Certainly the delicate health of a world peace must be preserved even against distortions. A foreword, unhindered reporting of vital news is essential.

BERKELEY, Calif. — The football district will be the scene of Vandal activity this weekend. The Idaho State Bengals’ game marks the last appearance of the Idaho State Bengals on the field before the end of the regular season. The game is at the expense of the Idaho State Bengals, who will be without their star quarterback, Bob Jackson. Jackson was injured in the last game and will not be available for this contest.

Ontario, Calif., is located in the southern part of the state, and is known for its warm weather and sunny climate.

to fact, history, and actual, tomorrow’s game against the Idaho State Bengals will be a key game for both teams. The Idaho State Bengals are coming off a tough loss to the Arizona State Wildcats last week, while the Idaho State Bengals are looking to build on their impressive start to the season. The Idaho State Bengals are currently ranked #7 in the nation, while the Idaho State Bengals are ranked #10.

INTERSTATE BALL

is the term used to describe a game between teams from different states. The Idaho State Bengals and the Idaho State Bengals are both from the state of California, and have a long history of playing against each other.

If this column should be forced to become but a chronicle essay dedicated to the local athletic activity, then we should submit the same but foretell of future football games. Consequently, if there has been a note bearing statement—We regret—the purpose of this column, as we interpret it, is to give an unbiased and truthful information in the column, we apologize for it. It was not consciously directed at the "dull" athletic section, but rather a commentary on the general state of the athletic activity. If it be your pleasure to read our column, we will welcome the opportunity to provide you with an unbiased and truthful account of the current athletic events.
