Ralph Fielding Hutchinson
From our midst last Saturday evening passed Ralph Fielding Hutchinson to a final, well-earned rest. "Hutch," as he was known to Idaho students and his multitude of friends in every locality where he visited during his 37 years in Idaho, will be missed. We all share the sorrow of his family in its great loss.

"Professor of Physical Education" read his title in the university catalogue. "Trainer" was his position in relation to Vandal athletic teams, but how much more "Hutch" put into his work than the requirements of his position called from him. Ever ready to minister to the aches and pains of his "kas" members of these teams, he cared for all alike. Favoring no one over another, he won the respect and the trust of all his charges. They will miss him.

Few men outside professional circles have the opportunity to give others as much help as "Hutch." Not only has he capitalized on that opportunity in a more creditable fashion than usual, a wealth of experience gained from contacts with men gave "Hutch" an ability to go beyond the realm of infirmity. His spirit and understanding have been a council and advice sought after—"his boys" confided in him and he never betrayed their confidence.

No more will we see "Hutch" and his little black bag on the Vandal gridiron, basketball, baseball, track, or maybe court. Soon, no doubt, another will fill his official title, but none will ever gain the place held by him in the memories of all who knew him. Illustrations of the respect held for him at other places thump the university here to the fact that the athletic field at the Southlawn Branch, where he was head coach for seven years, is called Hutchinson field.

Ralph Fielding Hutchinson was an excellent athlete, an inspiring leader, a friend, and a gentleman.

Hawkeye On Duty
Well, well, Susan and Geraldine, the political pug, as per usual his thin form of political comment. Today, as usual, he will be a patient listener to a patient weaver and in a few words, for a few words go a long way. Go to the court today, both men. No one, however, will ever again wear the place held by him in the memories of all who knew him. Illustrations of the respect held for him at other places thump the university here to the fact that the athletic field at the Southlawn Branch, where he was head coach for seven years, is called Hutchinson field.

Regrettably, good grief, we can pay a compliment to an excellent athlete, an inspiring leader, a friend, and a gentleman.

Grins n' Gripe to the Editor
To the Editor of The Argonaut:
The other day a citizen in Idaho, now a resident of Oregon, wrote a letter to your newspaper in which he said that Idaho was an overpopulated state because of the fact that over two million people lived there. He also stated that if Idaho were not a state, it would be more desirable for the people to live elsewhere. The citizen went on to say that Oregon was a much better state for living because of the climate and the beautiful scenery. He concluded his letter by suggesting that Idaho should be divided into several smaller states.

Your sincerely,

When the Big Wriggers start to play this year, they will present their usual blend of comedy and creativity over an improved stage at the Coliseum. The new stage is one of the big factors in the production. Its width and height and the dramatic lighting are all new. The Wriggers are the only group of this type in the state who put on a complete production of this sort every year. The audience is assured of a good time.
A FRIDAY I run if it's a day like it. We feel like skiing if every time we see a snowy sight spring out at a spring infra-red. Perhaps now that it's April time for such feeling to pass. It's a spring feeling that fills the air and gives rise to some spring for the coming forward on the calendar.

A weekend trip to the mountains is always a welcome break from the daily routine. It's a time to relax and enjoy the beauty of nature.
