Committee Submits Revision of ASUI Constitution

P.R. Will Also Be Voted Upon by Students May 2

Every Section Is Changed; Favorable Vote Will Take Publications and Managerships Out of Politics

On May 2 members of the ASUI will go to the polls to select officers of the student body. At the same time, however, they will vote on a new constitution which will be presented for their approval on the ballot. Much of the old document has been rewritten or is entirely new.

Each has been changed in form if not in substance, according to Bill Wetherall, chairman of the revision committee.

The major point for the consideration of the student body on the constitution May 2 is the question of putting the publications and managerships out of politics.

The changes in the constitution will be in force for the spring semester only.

Bill Wetherall, chairman of the revision committee, said that the board of directors has been appointed and that it is to have a view to taking over the major control of student publications, managerships and other offices and appointments at the university. The board will consist of two permanent members.

FEATURES OF THE NEW CONSTITUTION

1. An alternative P.R. plan.
2. A Publication Board to administer the journals.
3. A new method of selecting officers of the A.S.U.
4. The Board of Directors to initiate bills and to manage the business of the university.
5. New methods of election of the publications, managerships and other offices and appointments.

A new constitution will have a great deal of the former constitution retained and the changes will be in effect for the spring semester only.

For example, there is a provision for a vote for a better choice of candidates and three temporary members representing the community in question.

Previous is much to be desired in order to give better choice of candidates and to determine the will of the people. This has been embodied in the new constitution. There is a provision, however, for greater clarity. The vote of the people shall be an important factor in the determination of the will of the people.

No changes have been made in the constitution by the board of directors, according to Wetherall. Several members of the board of directors are in favor of calling a special session of the board of directors to consider the new constitution.

All members of the board of directors are in favor of the new constitution, according to Wetherall.

The new constitution will go into effect in the spring semester, according to Wetherall.

THE FASHION SHOP
Representative Executive Board

In this issue of The Argonaut is printed in full the proposed new constitution for the ASUI. It is the product of months of study and research on the part of the revision committee and we need hardly tell you that it is very important that every student read the new laws carefully before voting on them at the election May 2.

Incorporated on the ballot upon which the students will vote is in the point of order to select between proportional representation and popular vote as a method of selection of the members of the executive board.

We have contended throughout the discussion of this question that P. R. is desirable and necessary for the efficient conduct of student government at Idaho. Now that the new constitution is completed our point is borne out with even more forcefulness. An examination of the new constitution brings out the greater number of appointive offices which will be made in contrast to those now selected by general election. This is in line with the progressive methods of revision of government advocated by political economists and incorporated in the new laws.

However, let us point out that since a greater number of offices are to be directly or indirectly under the control of the executive board it is important that a truly representative body be selected. There is only one way to make that selection—by proportional representation.
