Faculty bumps students on parking issue

By Roger Gobourne
Stall Writer

To the dismay of about 50 student senators, the Faculty Council Tuesday passed revised recommendations that would cut the student parking committee, which excludes students from on-campus parking lots.

This revised report from the ad-hoc committee, which was passed by a 16-5 vote, limits parking in designated lots in the core area of campus to administration, faculty, support staff, graduate assistants, דברים adapted persons and visitors Monday through Friday from 7:00 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

Committee member John P. Holup reported that the committee's recommendations did not "discriminate against students per se." The problem with parking on campus is that there are only as many parking spots as there are students.

He added that a choice must be made and "that choice should be made in favor of the people who deliver the goods to campus."

The council also passed an amendment to the student code that would make vandalism a violation of the code, and a proposal which will make associate and assistant deans be evaluated on the basis of their "overall quality of service." The parking issue was first brought up in council March 19 in a report from the Parking Committee, which was charged by the council to investigate "faculty members' concerns" about on-campus parking. The council committee proposed a parking permit fee increase and the development of new lots. Decision on the issue was postponed indefinitely by the council in favor of assigning three faculty members to an ad-hoc committee to develop alternate solutions.

The ad-hoc committee presented their report to the council and a full house of student senators April 2. Their recommendations went away from the egalitarian system that had been employed on campus since the implementation of the parking fees in 1977 - lumping faculty and staff with the students. After hearing opposition to the report from several campus representatives, the council postponed the issue for two weeks to allow the ASUI Senate to study the issue and present its own recommendations.

The ASUI proposal, which was presented to the council for their meeting Tuesday, would have raised parking permit fees over a two-year period to $60 for yellow permits and $30 for blue. These levels which were originally introduced by the Parking Committee. Their proposal also recommended that the Parking Committee and the ad-hoc parking committee meet in a public joint session to compromise on the parking situation.

Council member Joseph J. Ullman thought it "contradictory" that the ASUI Senate would rather raise parking fees than walk a few blocks. The proposal that was passed by the Faculty Council raises only the fees of the permits for the core lots. This new fee is $4.50. The fees for permits for other lots will remain the same.

Those lots designated as the limited core lots represent 465 of the 3248 parking spaces available on campus. These nine designated lots are at: 6th Street across from the Forestry building, the Agricultural Science building, Morrill Hall, the east end of the Kibbie Dome, the Health Center, the Physical Education building, the Administration building, the Home Economics building and between the Music building and Steel House.

The proposals also prohibit 24-hour parking in these designated lots and raise the fines for citations in these lots.

The council then added their own proposals and some from the original recommendations of the Parking Committee, including:

- placing a curb-sac (a blind alley) for use as a loading and pick-up zone in the area of Memorial Gym and University Avenue;
- discouraging any further placement of reserved parking spaces,
- prohibiting government and state vehicles from parking in permit lots on a continuing basis;
- continuing to upgrade and improve facilities.

ASUI Senate opposes student fee increase

By Laurel Darow
Stall Writer

The ASUI Senate is sending a strong message to the Idaho Board of Education this week: it opposes any increase in the institutional maintenance fee and it would support an athletic fee increase only if "absolutely necessary."

ASUI President Jane Freud will speak to members of the Board at a hearing Friday, when a $3000 increase and a $15 athletic fee increase will be considered.

The senate passed a resolution Wednesday stating that it opposes any increase in the IMF fee because "a message needs to be sent to the Idaho State Legislature that IMF increases are not justified to use any more public funds to solve Idaho higher education funding problems."

The resolution regarding the athletic fee increase states that the senate would support an increase of no more than $6 only if absolutely necessary to maintain current programs. The resolution states that the fee increase should be used only in combination with conservation of fiscal policies by the UI Athletic Department and rescission of the Board's plan to cut funding for teams by 10 percent.

The resolution concerning the increase in the institutional maintenance fee passed easily at the senate's meeting on Wednesday, but the senators discussed the athletic fee increase for more than an hour.

Some senators said they were concerned that the UI might lose its NCAA standing if there is not enough funding to maintain current athletic programs. Several senators were also concerned that students do not want to pay more fees to support athletics. Many of the senators felt that we have enough student fee increases as it is. I don't think we need another one," said Sen. John Vanderpool. "It's just one fee increase after the next. Where does it end?"

Vanderpool said "the higher our fees get, the more lucrative an out-of-state school will look."

But Sen. Rich Kuck argued that the athletic department needs funds. Otherwise, it faces a $300,000 shortfall. They're having financial problems up there," Kuck said. "No one else is going to bail them out."

Kuck also said that there may be room for cuts in the athletic department. "I think they can cut some fat out," he said.

Sen. Keli Patton argued: "The university as a whole ... will be losing out if we lose the NCAA standing."

ASUI President Jane Freud said that students seem to have the feeling that athletics are secondary to academics, but there is a correlation between the two. When the athletic teams are having good seasons, alumni donate more money to all areas of the university, she said.

The senate finally decided on the combination of rescinding the 10 percent cut of maintenance fees and having progressive, retroactive fiscal policies and a fee increase of no more than $6 only as a last resort. That way, Trail said, the senate will be sending a clear message that "we don't want a fee increase, but if we have to - no more than $6."

In other business the senate is preparing plans to fight the parking proposal presented by the Faculty Council Tuesday. That proposal prohibits students from parking in core lots. "The fight continues."
Wine tasting festival comes to Palouse

The fourth annual Spring Wine Tasting Festival will come to the Palouse on Saturday April 20, as part of WSU’s Mom’s Day Weekend. The tasting is Pullman NOW’s major fund-raising benefit and will feature seven Yakima Valley wineries. It will be held from 2 p.m.-6 p.m. in Cleveland Hall on the WSU campus.

The proceeds from the wine tasting will be the major portion of NOW’s annual operating fund. ‘The benefit allows us to print and mail our newsletter, present community programs and maintain communication with local, state and national government officials, among other activities,” said Judy Meuth, Pullman NOW President.

For those participants under 21, non-alcoholic grape juice made from grapes which are usually made wines, will be poured. To compliment the wine Festival goers can enjoy cheese, bread, pate’, and fruit. NOW also provides the sales of wine by the bottle and child care.

“Idaho Wilderness-A View From All Sides” is the theme of a public forum to be held at the SUB Appalachian Room Monday night at 7 p.m.

Speakers will update prospects on allocation of Idaho’s national forest roadless areas and discuss prospects for congressional action 1985. Last year Congress failed to act. Senator James McClure and the Idaho congressional delegation advocated wilderness designation for 526,000 acres, while the State Fish and Game Department and Environmental groups held out for substantial-ly more.

The forum is sponsored by the Committee for Wilderness Awareness, a UI student group co-chaired by Kenneth Johnston and Roberts Rich, majors in Wildland Recreation Management.

The council, with the exception of the student representatives, saw the need for a system of parking based on priorities. The majority opinion was that UCI faculty and staff should get their parking spaces because they are the ones who "deliver the services."

Council member Kenneth M. Harris saw the recommendations as the fairest because they "discriminate on the basis of perceived need."

Ullman backed the majority opinion, seeing the main issue as "people getting their jobs done here."

ASUI President Jane L. Freund argued on behalf of the students against the council's opinion of prioritizing need.

"Discrimination is not the solution to our problem and we must break the mentality that one section is more important than the other. We need you and you need us," she said.

Hupay agreed that the committee's document was not perfect but that it is a start.

Another committee member, Jay J. Schelidof, agreed with Hupay.

"It is going to evolve, but if we sit here until everything is dotted and every 'I' is crossed, we're going to be very old before we leave," he said.

Reprimand dropped

ASUI Sen. Chris Berg will not face a reprimand charge, the ASUI Senate decided Wednesday night.

The senate failed a resolution that would have set the date for a hearing on the matter. Berg would have faced a charge of conduct unbecoming a senator.

The condition for the charge was that on March 29 Berg followed the Argonaut truck "with the intent to stop it and question the driver without having the authority to do so, and with the intent to disruptively interfere with an official ASUI and of I of I employee in the lawful conduct of his duties."

Berg was not at Wednesday's meeting, but he said in an Argonaut interview last week that he stands behind his actions. "I really don't think I was doing anything wrong. I was just trying to make sure student fees weren't being abused."

ASUI Vice President Mike Trail urged the senate to approve the hearing so both sides could be heard. "It's been requested by Steve Lyons. I think we owe it to him." Lyons is features editor of the Argonaut and was driving the truck when the incident with Berg occurred.

ASUI President Jane Freund said she was displeased with the senate's decision not to hold the hearing. "If I had the power, I'd fire Chris," she said. "The ASUI title doesn't give anyone the right to play Cagney and Lacey.

A poll recently commissioned by the American Society of Newspaper Editors showed that three-fourths of American adults question the credibility of newspaper and television news. That bothers me. First of all as a person who likes to know what’s going on in the world, and secondly as a person who has chosen the newspaper field as a career.

Now, it’s nothing new that the credibility of the press is being questioned, that’s been going on ever since aascal named Benjamin Harris published Publick Occurrences in 1690.

But you have a tendency to pay more attention to that kind of statistic when you’ve studied for four years to get into a profession that everyone says is skeptical of.

In that four years, I’ve had the pleasure of working at two college newspapers and counting at the Lewiston Morning Tribune. At each stage of my brief journalistic career, I’ve been impressed by the hard work and dedication of the people involved.

Most of those people struggle, and getting it right. Sometimes mistakes are made, but usually they’re simply human mistakes.

But because journalism is such a high-visibility field, the mistakes stand out, and a lot of people find out about them. That’s when cries of “the irresponsible press” begin ringing out.

But no one is more concerned about screwing up than the people who gather and write the news. I’m sure that we’re all feeling it that story you want it perfect.

You realize it never will be, but you try. You’re helped in that area by editors who spot holes in your work that you thought you had plugged up tight.

Sometimes things slip by, but nobody’s perfect.

But before you even reach the stage where editors are going over your work with a fine-tooth comb, there are some other professionals who have to get it right.

They’re called communications professors.

They’re the ones who give us our first taste of what we’re getting ourselves into. They struggle through our fledgling attempts at news writing, and we struggle through their attempts to drum into our heads the importance of things like the First Amendment.

I’m not saying I’ve been some good ones. People who were concerned with things such as freedom of the press, accuracy, clear writing and responsibility. One of the few things getting next month.

After 23 years of teaching aspiring journalists at the UI, Bert Cross is hanging up his hat.

Oh, I’m sure he’s going to stay active. In fact he just recently got married, but no more will he put anyone through the rigors of his Law of Mass Communications class.

Ask anyone who took that class from Bert and they’ll remember it. I know, he told me so. I also know because I labored through it.

That class stood out because it taught Bert will stand out because he cared about what he was talking about. If there’s a better defender of the First Amendment around, I haven’t met him. And to someone who’s going to be working under

There has been a lot of publicity, in the last few weeks concerning our friends from the north, the Aryan Nations. The have managed to appear in the spotlight on television news broadcasts, the front page of the Argonaut, the Idaho Statesman and other newspapers.

Out of all this publicity, I have recently noticed a healthy number of people openly criticize some of the fallacies involved in these superficial ideas that are on their last denouement.

Several weeks ago I was fortunate enough to travel up to Hayden Lake, Idaho where I spent some time doing an interview with Richard Butler, Robert Eddy and Johnny Miller, all of whom are closely associated with the Church of Jesus Christ Christian.

After interviewing these people for about five hours in the Owl Cafe in Hayden and on their compound, I felt I received a good idea of the type of personality it takes to promote such prejudiced views and overall shallow moral existence.

While sitting with these guys, I noticed sort of a frenzy to answer my questions. It was like a group of middle aged punks in leather jackets that were once again back in elementary school and had just found a new toy—me—to play with.

I caused some concern among those present when I argued against some of Butler’s fantastic schemes. Immediately it seemed as if they began to (try and intimidate me into accepting their to me meaningless ideas as Truth. These people wanted me to think as little as they do.

These people, members of the nazi group, haven’t thought out what Butler is preaching to them. I don’t think they’re smart enough to fully know what he says and the implications that are hidden in his words.

To hear people say that what happened in the German swastika didn’t happen only makes me think these people are not committed to dealing with reality. It takes effort to see things as they really are. Instead of thinking these people have substituted someone’s version of the bible.

As a reporter, I feel that I let myself down. Instead of breaking a controversial story, I found myself becoming mired down in a meaningless swirl. I wanted to bring exactly what was going to come out of this.

As soon as I ceased to challenge Butler, we

Editor,

Silver and Gold Week is celebration to give recognition to the University and a chance for all students to come together and participate in different activities. SABW would like to thank all those that attended the events throughout the week. Congratulations to Steele House for winning the Women's Division of the All Campus Olympics and Phi Gamma Delta for winning the Men's Division and the Best Decorated Living Group.

Although Silver and Gold Week was a great success this year, as publicity chairman, I was disappointed in the manner the Argonaut covered the events. Over 150 students from all the different types of living groups participated in the Campus Olympics, yet there was no coverage by the Argonaut. The local newspaper has front page coverage of the Tree Planting. Dedication in memory of Jim Bartus, the Arg had nothing.

The impromptu and irresponsible conduct I dealt with ranged from receiving return calls from the Editor after leaving office and phone messages to reporters losing hand delivered articles, articles being edited and altered after they were received and not returned, and having the Managing Editor play golf between my feet. While the Editor tried to explain why the wrap up article for Silver and Gold was going to be three issues late.

Since the Argonaut is in this for University happenings, I hope in the future more professionalism can be used by the Argonaut staff and others do not have to deal with the hassle I dealt with for publicity of a campus event.

Recently, I received a letter from Rep. Larry Craig, the contents of which I feel should be noted by all of his constituents. Mr. Craig wrote regarding his vote and voted record for funding of the MX-Muscle and components of the administrations S.D.I. Mr. Craig voted recently to spend 1.5 billion of our tax dollars to fund the production and deployment of 21 more MX missiles. The S.D.I. was said to be a balanced deterrent capability. 41. We need to spend not 1.5 billion on 21 MXs to back up our negotiations in Geneva, so they can't say the Congress "failed them." This sound type of leadership thinking has spurred round after round of deadly nuclear arms buildups. Is this the way you wish to be represented in Washington D.C. If not, you will have to extend the arms race into space. Mr. Craig stated his support for the development of a space based ballistic missile defense system. This system under the S.D.I. is slated to cost the taxpayer 3.72 billion dollars in fiscal year 1986. Mr. Craig failed to notice that development of such a system is not feasible given today's physics and technology. He failed to note that this system is in direct violation of the anti-ballistic missile treaty we now share with the Soviet Union.

Once again, I ask if you are being represented the way you want to be. Is the order to go to war in Washington D.C. "There's a choice we're making. We're saving our own lives." Please voice your opposition to this massive nuclear arms buildup. We can make a better day, just you and me.

Dune rules

Editor

Regarding the County Sheriff's Department: The problem area (commonly known as the Dunes) is located in Garfield County, five miles west of Lower Granite Dam on Casey Creek Road. It is known for its gently sloping and sandy beach area. Because of the large number of people who visit the dunes, several problems have developed.

1. Littering: Large amounts of bottles, cans and other trash accumulate on the beach, parking lots, roadways and surrounding areas. This creates a hazardous driving environment for people using the beach also harms the environment.

2. Parking: Cars parked along the roadway create dangerous congestion and block access to farmland bordering the roadway.

3. Traffic-Speeding, negligent driving, and driving while intoxicated are only a few of the problems that are prevalent and creating hazardous driving conditions. The speed limit is 15 MPH on the dam. 20 MPH approach the dam. 35 MPH on Casey Creek Road.

In the past weeks a large number of law enforcement actions were taken against people caught committing traffic violations, littering, parking in prohibited areas, drinking under the legal age, and having open containers in motor vehicles. Monetary fines can range from $15 to $150. Penalties may also include mandatory court appearances or even time in jail.

In the future Garfield County Sheriff's Deputies, the Washington State Patrol, and Department of Fish and Game officers will be keeping an eye on the area and enforcing the laws where necessary.

Viola, Idaho, seems an unlikely spot for a transplanted European custom, but Maison Kam-merzell blends a gorgeous Idaho setting with warm hospitality for a delightful American combination.

Bed and breakfast establishments have long dotted the countryside in Europe, with families opening their spare rooms to travelers as an alternative to hotels. The custom cught on in the Eastern United States and is spreading West.

Now Steve and Marsha Kammerzell are offering Moscow area visitors the opportunity to share their home, a beautiful house with a high ceilings, large and abundant windows, and a great wood interior which sits perched at the top of a small valley about five miles east of Viola.

Europeans and American travelers enjoy the advantages that bed and breakfasts normally provide: lower prices, a homey atmosphere and personal contact with the owners—it's a chance to get to know the locals and sample the lifestyle of the area.

"People who stay in bed and breakfasts are people oriented," said Marsha.

Yet she added that guests are not thrust into a social situation and those who desire privacy will also feel comfortable, es-specially since the three guest rooms all have private entrance.

"We're friendly people," said Marsha, "but it's also just very quiet and comfortable."

Guests can choose from among the three rooms that the Kammerzells' grown children have vacated. The two rooms downstairs have a scenic views out over a wooden deck and down the valley. The deck contains a redwood hot tub that guests are welcome to use, along with a hammock big enough for two. Both spacious rooms contain queen beds covered with down comforters and are comfortably furnished.

One room has a large stove-fireplace.

Occupants of these two rooms must share a bathroom, a very large one complete with two sinks, a large shower stall, and because of Marsha's Finnish blood, a sauna. Cost per night for these rooms is $35 each.

The other room is located on the top floor of the Kammerzell's garage. Guests enter through a small greenhouse and climb a steep spiral staircase to the room, which has a king sized bed and large windows which provide a view of the forested hills. The wood panelled bathroom with shower is located downstairs by the greenhouse. Cost per night for this room is $45.

The prices, which are discounted for extended stays, include a breakfast which is not the typical European fare of a hard roll and coffee.

"I fix an Idaho style breakfast," said Marsha with a smile.

Dr. Martin Jurgensen, a visiting professor from Michigan who is spending his three weeks in Moscow at Maison Kam-merzell approves.

"I've given up lunches the breakfasts are so good," said Jurgensen.

The wheels of rock ‘n roll were turning in Pullman Wednesday night as veteran bands R.E.O. Speedwagon and Survivor literally shook the Beasley Coliseum and perhaps shook it too much. The volume of music was too loud - even to the point that my ears are still ringing some 15 hours after the concert finished.

Survivor, the band that came out of nowhere a few years ago when they recorded the theme song to Rocky II (“Eye Of The Tiger”), opened the evening with songs of inspiration and romance.

Survivor’s music has been making it big on the charts lately, and was greeted with favorable but restrained response from a near-capacity crowd in the coliseum. The most favorable response was a result of the lead concert which tended to distract from the music. However, the crowd maybe was saving itself for the big name: R.E.O. Personally, I think it was due to Survivor’s lack of stage presence.

The students of the UI and WSU have been spoiled in the past by such skilled stage entertainers as Huey Lewis and the News and Brian Adams. Survivor needs more time and experience on the road separate from R.E.O. They will soon go on tour with Tina Turner.

Nonetheless, Survivor’s current hits “High On You” “Can’t Hold Back” and “The Search Is Over”, all romantic songs from their latest LP Vital Signs, came alive in a way that can only happen when spring is in the air or you’re in love.

When Survivor left the stage without playing their first and biggest hit “Eye Of The Tiger”, we all knew they were only fooling. This song was played as an encore, and probably is one of the most inspirational songs in the last five years. Almost everyone came to their feet in one last attempt to set the stage for R.E.O. Speedwagon.

When R.E.O. came crashing to the stage in a shower of confetti, they opened up with “Don’t Let Him Go”, a single from their 10th and first number one LP: Hi Infidelity. Prior to that album, R.E.O Speedwagon was only regionally known, mostly in the Midwest. But following the release of Hi Infidelity, which went number one on the charts for nearly five straight months, they were national hot stuff.

Following “Don’t Let Him Go”, R.E.O. played another song from the Hi Infidelity LP: “Tough Guys” and then set into cuts off of their new LP “Through The Window” and “I Do Wanna Know” (too bad we couldn’t see the video). R.E.O. was a radical contrast between Survivor’s stage skills as lead vocalist Kevin Cronin

(who is known as the Gruncho Marx of Rock 'n Roll) entertained the audience with slapstick, dotes and lead guitar.

The concert was not one of the best seen lately on the Palouse. R.E.O. experienced problems with their equipment, and both bands appeared to be more concerned with the fact that they would not be touring together after Wednesday than entertaining the small towns of Moscow and Pullman. The final word is, while my ears still ring, you can't replace a quality rock show with volume.

Stokes shines in Oregon

By Tom Liberman

Staff Writer

The UI men's track team took five of 18 first places in an unseeded meet against the University of Oregon and Oregon State University over the weekend.

The meet was not scored and many unattached athletes took first place. Nevertheless, the Vandals did very well, especially in the sprint events.

The men were led by Chris Stokes who took firsts in the 100 and 200 dashes with times of 10.72s and 21.80s. Vandal Sam Kodsha took second place in both events.

Dave Smith of Idaho raced to a first in the 400 with a time of 47.75s. He teamed with Glenn Mitchell, Stokes, and Kodsha to win the 400 relay, blowing away the competition with a time of 40.87. The Vandal sprinters have dominated almost every meet this season; their only competition has come from Washington State University sprinters.

WSU is considered one of the best dual meet teams in the country, and, other than their sprinters, Smith, Stokes, Kodsha and Everett Vanlines have had things their own way.

Also doing very well in the meet were the Vandal big men who managed a first, third, and fourth in the shot put. Tim Taylor took first with a heave of 56.5ft.

Taylor showed well in the discuss throw with a third place finish, whipping the weight over 165ft.

The pole vaulter's troubles continued as Eric Van Zanten was only able to take fourth, vaulting 13' even. This height was well below his all-time best of over 16'

James Tennant ran to a third place finish in the 800. The highest Vandal finish in the 1500 was only a sixth by Sophomore Chris Williams.

The women Vandals did not fare as well; however, they did not take some of their better athletes to the meet.

The high jump was the Vandals' shining moment as the women finished in second, third and fourth. Tammy Liseth lead the effort for the Vandal women, taking second with a jump of 5'2".

Vandal men, Women win

The Vandals men's and women's tennis teams continued their winning ways this week with three victories: two for the women and one for the men.

The women topped Boise State University and Eastern Washington University by the score of 6-1 in both meets while the men took Whitman College 6-3.

The women were without the service of top player Anna DeLaCueva, who suffered a season ending knee injury three weeks ago.

Trish Smith played number one singles and won both of her matches easily. The team sports an 11-3 overall record and a 6-1 league record.

The men have an overall record of 10-4. Top singles player Eiren Del Degan has a 11-3 meet record. Another Vandal who has been doing well is Bob Hxavueck who plays fourth singles and has won 10 straight matches.

The next stop for the men is a tough match against Pacific Lutheran at 2:30 pm today.

Dobratz signs two

Pet Dobratz is reloading. With the signing of Gwen Dighans of Richland, Mont. and Christy Van Pelt of Bellevue, Wash., the Idaho women's basketball coach Tuesday took a step toward perpetuating the success that took the Vandals to a 28-2 record this past season.

Dighans, a 6-foot-3 center from Ophirton High School, averaged 18 points and 13 rebounds a game last year.

Dobratz led her team to the Montana state championship three consecutive times. She was named the most valuable player of the division, district and state her junior and senior seasons.

Dobratz also holds her team's record for most rebounds (2,195) and was named Ophirton's MVP three straight times.

"Dobratz is going to play an important role as backup to both Mary's (Racce and Westerwelle)," Dobratz said. "She is probably our future center."

Van Pelt, a versatile 5-11 senior at Interlake High, was a three-year starter who averaged 15 points and eight rebounds per game during this past season. She was named first-team All-Ring County (Seattle) and first-team all-state in the Seattle Times newspaper. "Christy will challenge for Kris (Edmonds) starting spot," said Dobratz. "She is a versatile player. She could even move in to be an off guard."

Dobratz' team loses just one Edmonds from last year's team that finished with Idaho's best record ever. The Vandals won the Mountain West Conference championship before advancing to the first round of the NCAA Tournament where a loss to Southern California ended their season.

Idaho football coach Dennis Erickson's team faces the challenge of trying to step into what his team has accomplished as the first half of spring practice. However, he believes the team "must continue to improve" as it heads into the final two weeks of practice.

Perhaps the most encouraging aspect of the first half of spring practice has been the improvement of Idaho's defense. The defensive alignment has been changed this spring to a 5-2 formation for the basic 4-3 set Idaho used last year.

The defense dominated last Saturday's intra-squad scrimmage in the Kiddie Dome as it relied on a total of six quarterback sacks and two fumble recoveries. Defensive back Virgil Paulson and tackle Mike Bailey recovered both fumbles. The defense also came up with two interceptions.

"It was good to see the defense play so well," Erickson said. "The first team offensive unit only scored one time, which is the first time this year's defense has held them to a single score in a scrimmage." Since he's been here.

Defense stands out
Reserve quarterback Rick Sloan threw a pass of touchdown passes during the one and a half hour scrimmage. The first score came on a 10-yarder to wide receiver Ron Oliver. Later, Sloan passed to Kevin Bailey for a 13-yard touchdown.

Sloan connected on 11 of 18 passes for 147 yards. Scott Linehan was the leading passer in the scrimmage with 11 completions out of 22 attempts for 160 yards. Redshirt freshman Nelson Washington led all receivers with four catches for 78 yards.

The leading rusher was fullback Steve Jackson with 40 yards on nine carries. Idaho would have scored again Saturday at 10 am in the Kiddie Dome.

Moms 2nd Gumbys 4th
By Greg Klinger
The University of Idaho placed two volleyball teams among the top four of last weekend's Evergreen Region Tournament. The women played in Pullman, and the men in Moscow.

Recent Idaho players combined for one team, the Gumbys, while ex-volleyball players comprised the other, the Moscow Moms.

The Moms experience paid off as the Moms finished second while the Gumbys earned a berth in the fourth slot. Along the way, the two squads met with the slayers giving them their title as the 16-15, 13-15 and 8-15 defeat. It was a fun match but very competitive," Vandal head coach Pam Bradteich said. "They really went at it the two other.

After defeating the Gumbys, the Moms were beaten by the Seattle Splash in the tournament's championship.

The Splash is made up of University of Washington coaches and ex-players.

Along the way, the Moms defeated Boise, Eastern, Gonzaga and the Gumbys before falling to the Splash. The Gumbys beat Washington State, Eastern Washington and Gonzaga. They also fell to the Splash.

The Spokane volleyball club finished third for the tournament.

The tournament, sanctioned by the United States Volleyball Association, involved teams in the Division II level, the highest quality of volleyball.

Kelly Reckley received post tourney honors, All-Region, for the Gumbys while Don White, Jenny Frazier and US assistant coach Judy Husman were tabbed for the Moscow Moms.

The tournament concluded the spring season for the two squads.

"It was a very successful spring for us," Bradteich said. "I think the team really developed some team unity.

"We're looking forward to next year," Bradteich said. "This spring was important as everyone realizes we don't have the seniors to depend on anymore.

"Some seniors gone from this year's Mosquito West Conference runner-up were Frazier," Gilmore said.

blood, and was quite shocked. So far less than 10 percent of those enrolled had been pledged with time sign up. The problem arises because of the AIDS problem nationwide, and a misunderstanding by donors. To set minds at ease, you would never get AIDS by donating blood. The Red Cross uses "dirty needles," which is not bloody.

There comes a lot of feeling in sharing of cars, which is what happens when you donate blood. I know from experience. I donated blood at the campus on 28. people went down to the campus on 28. for me, and I only knew one of them. I worried how I could ever pay back those people who shared life with me. There isn't anything I could donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone, who would donate blood to someone. I thought it was being a little bit too late.

Next Tuesday Thursday I share my life with others. You can pick your time by sign up at the SUH desk, so there is no waiting. You'd be surprised how simple it is to donate of yourself, and perhaps save a life. Charlie Brown

Editor's Note: There used to be a rule that a donation could be made only once every three months. That has been changed to once every 52 days.

And to someone who's going to be working under that freedom-of-the-press banner, that's important.

Bert brought a wealth of personal experience into the classroom with him, and those of us who got to share in that were better off for it.

I don't know how many hundreds of students Bert advised through his url, but he helped me keep my head above the sea of bureaucratic paperwork as I struggled to graduate.

He also gave his share of moral support, and he was always good for a lively discussion over a few beers. What more can you ask of a good old soul?

And even though his familiar Greek fishing hat or New Zealand sheepskin hat won't be regular visitors on campus after this semester, Bert's influence on those of us who have gotten to know him will be remembered.

I am sure I speak for a lot of students and ex-students when I say that, with his retirement, the university loses a teacher and a class individual who cared about what his students took out of the REAL world.

Those of us who have a little piece of that just want to say thanks and good luck.

we headed for their compound. They gave me literature and promised that if I told the story their way they would allow me to come back for an upcoming gathering. As it turns out, this wasn't true either.

I only hope that people, in Idaho in particular, can see how pitiful this spectacle really is. These people are losers. That is what they showed me.

WSU director sets premiere

By Douglas Jones Staff Writer

Oscar Wilde's classic comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," which has kept audiences laughing since it was written in 1895, will be presented by WSU Theatre this weekend.

The Importance of Being Earnest will be directed by Brad Sewell's first major production at WSU as well as the traditional Mother's Weekend play. Sewell, who has won numerous awards as a scholar, playwright and professional performer, said he picked Wilde's play because "of its remarkable wit...and it is very appropriate for Mother's Weekend."

The play follows the life of John Worthing (played by Thomas Kuhn), who has met and fallen in love with Gwendolyn Fairfax (played by Julie Anne RenfJI) while masquerading as his non-existent younger brother, Earnest. Meanwhile, Algernon Moncrieff (played by Stephen Ray Heppell) has fallen in love with Worthing's ward, Cecily Cardew (played by Kelley McCarthy) while also masquerading as Earnest.

As the play continues, the various problems of identity are worked out while poking fun at marriage, innosense and bachelorhood.

The Importance of Being Earnest will be performed tonight, April 19, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, April 20 at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Bryan Auditorium on the WSU campus. Reserved tickets are $3.50 and reservations can be made by calling the WSU Theatre Box Office at (509) 335-7296, Friday-Saturday, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
