Stats look promising for new year

Bills proposing a hike in the KUDU station manager's salary and the transfer of $18,000 in increased student fee income to the Entertainment Events Account were among five bills passed by the ASUI Senate in late summer action.

ASUI President Jane Freund's bill proposing $4.156 of the increased student fee income be transferred to the staff and regular help at KUDU and a $75 raise to $150 per two week pay period for Station Manager Greg Meyer finally passed by a 6-5 vote.

This bill was first presented by President Freund and was subsequently vetoed by ASUI Vice President Mike Trail during Freund's absence from town in May. Senator Scott Spelman then presented the same bill as Freund's. Trail followed with his own bill proposing Meyer's salary be raised only by $35 per pay period, but it failed in the final vote.

President Freund said she was very pleased her bill passed.

"It is so ridiculous to pay someone in a station manager's position who's on call 24 hours a day only $150 a month when the Arg editor is getting $340," she said.

The Argonaut editor receives $170 per two week pay period, while the KUDU manager formerly received $75 per pay period.

Another bill proposing $16,800 from the student fee income to go to the operating expenses portion of the Entertainment Events Account, which passed 7-5, was vetoed by Freund. ASUI's Entertainment Department ended up with $16,000 in the red for the last budget year which ended in June. 80.

Freund said she vetoed the bill because she wants to find out why the deficit occurred before putting more money into the budget.

"I think of this situation as a game show called 'Spend Our Money,'" said Freund, referring to the Entertainment deficit. "I can't freeze someone's salary. And they don't check how much is in the accounts before money is taken out.

Barry Bonifas, Entertainment Program Coordinator, had no comment on the matter but said he would speak about Entertainment at the next ASUI senate meeting.

Freund, who is working on an entertainment survey, said, "Mike and I feel it's the students' money that's going to entertainment and we have to see what the students want.

A Lecture Notes rebudgeting bill passed 12-0. The salary of Lecture Notes Administrator Craig Wetzel, will be returned to the previous level of $1,450 before the spring 1985 budgeting cuts. Office supplies money will be increased by $50 and the advertising budget by $275.

Lecture Notes ended up with $8,100 in the hole at the end of the last fiscal year. Freund hopes new measures will enable Lecture Notes to become self-sufficient. According to Freund, the Copy Center in the SUB basement will now handle all copying and distribution of notes, an operation which is not expensive than buying a copier.

Also there will be one less salary to pay.

"The woman who sat down there was a staff employee and all she did was hand out the notes," Freund commented. "Now she is at the copy center doing copying.

The price of the notes has also been raised from $9 to $11 and there is a chance notes will be sold on a per lecture basis of 75 cents a class.

It all depends on whether we get enough classes to be sold," Freund stated. "If we don't, we'll just let it go.

UI loses face, high school loses program

By Carolyn Beasley
Of the Argonaut
A University of Idaho computer program intended for Meridian High School in Boise has been halted after a 4:30 p.m. phone vote to the Idaho State Board of Education earlier this week.

The board had decided that UI had not gone to them for approval. They also were concerned that the UI may be setting a precedent by subsidizing public schools.

The decision leaves 112 high school students short a class for the fall semester. Meanwhile UI has 30 computers to place elsewhere.

It was apparently intended as an arm to an already existing program through UI but because the focus of a turf battle between Boise State University and UI. The problem was compounded by poor communications.

UI Financial Vice President Tom Bell conceded that there was a problem with communication but that the 30 computers planned for placement in the high school are an extension of an already existing program.

"The issue is the establishment of a micro computer laboratory to support the UI program," Bell said. "But the primary state wide responsibility for UI is to support programs in forestry, agriculture, mining, engineering and other programs designed to give UI the standing and policy role manual, he said.

But this overlaps a bit with BSU's role and mission of being somewhat of a community college at least for the neighboring areas around Boise.

According to BSU Academic Vice-president Richard Bullington, the way his institution had found out about the UI program at the high school in Boise was through the newspaper.

Bullington noted out that a lack of communication between the two universities was the cause of the misunderstanding. One reason the program was set up at the high school was because of a lack of available space with unlimited availability of the computers according to Bell.

"We started working with them (the high school) late this spring when we were looking for an alternative. The site had to serve 30-30 people for a class," he said. If the program is at Meridian, the computers be used by faculty members from 4 p.m.-10 p.m. and on weekends," said Bell.

"We are responsible for vocational teacher education and providing upgrading for faculty, something we have been doing for student teachers in Boise for over 20 years.

Bell was careful to point out that territorial disputes were not commonplace between the universities. "For the amount of time we've spent in Boise it's surprising there hasn't been more problems. Our relationship with BSU and other universities has been good," he said.

"All we can ask the two institutions to do is to work this thing out," explained Academic Committee Chairman for the board Mike Mitchell.

Governor to address students

By Bryan Clark
Of the Argonaut
Using Labor Day as a backdrop, Governor John Evans will mingle with students and residents Monday afternoon in Ghormley Park across from the SUB. Evans' appearance, sponsored by the Laotah County Democrats, will include a picnic from 3:30 to 7:30, and an address by the Governor between 4:30 and 5:00. The optional picnic will cost $3.50 for the general public and $2 for students.

According to Steve Scanlan, the Governor's north Idaho representative, Evans plans to speak on issues important to northern Idaho, such as the Pichalt mill shutdown.

Scanlan said Evans will also address students regarding education and "preparing young people to enter the labor force. He added though, that when in north Idaho, the Governor likes to speak extemporaneously and may not stick to just these topics. Scanlan said all of the Governor's children have attended or are attending the UI, so "the issue of higher education in north Idaho is of importance to him."

"Students are particularly encouraged to come and hear what the Governor has to say," said Scanlan.

Frat rush may go dry

By Roger Jones
Of the Argonaut
Along with the recent change of Squeal Day in sorority rush, fraternity rush may be changing as well. This last season of fraternity rush may turn out to be the end of an era.

The recently passed Federal law that asks for a uniform drinking age of 21, in all 50 states, is finally beginning to rock the boat of The University of Idaho Greek Rush.

"If the drinking age goes to 21, this will definitely be the last year of wet rush," Mark Brigham, fraternity advisor, said. Wet rush takes place in the last two days of Fraternity rush. It is a time when alcohol can be served during rush parties. This year wet rush began on Friday, August 23, at 6 p.m. Up until this time no alcohol was served on fraternity premises.

The possible change from partial dry to totally dry could prove to be very significant in the rush process. One of the problems? Call

Student dies, ruled as suicide

Hildesheim's wife, Cynthia Hildesheim, is also a UI student.

Hildesheim was found lying in a bed with a gunshot wound to his head. Investigators ruled out foul play and concluded the cause of death was self-inflicted.

The Post Falls native had been "despondent recently over personal problems," according to the statement.

Michael Hildesheim, 25, was found by police in his apartment at 308 West C Street at 2 p.m. following reports of a gunshot. The computer scientist major died 45 minutes later at Gritman Memorial Hospital.

ASUI Senate: new members, new problems

By Megan Guide
Of the Argonaut

Marking the beginning of another school year, five out of the seven people elected in last spring’s campus elections were inaugurated into the ASUI Senate by President Jane Freund at the first meeting.

They are: Mike Cobble, Holli Crawford, David Done, Mike Felton, and Cherri Sabala. Two other senators that were elected last spring, Ellie Skubick and Gino White will be inaugurated next week when they return to campus.

Outgoing senators are: Chris Berg, Anna Habiger, Gary Lindberg, John Vandepool, and Holly Rickett.

The new and outgoing senators expressed their thoughts of beginning and ending their Senate experiences. Vandepool, an outgoing senator, said, “Being on the senate is not easy but it will be a rewarding experience. The senate is going in a very positive direction.”

President Jane Freund said, “I don’t consider these people the typical freshmen senators, they know the senate.”

Nominees for the Associated Students of Idaho, ASI, delegate and the pro-tempore were given at Wednesday’s meeting too. They are Larry Selig and Mike Felton for ASI delegate. Scott Speciman was elected but turned it down. Keli Patton was the only one nominated for the position of Pro-Tem. Other nominees will be accepted for the two posts at next week’s meeting.

KÜO-FM’s Station Manager, Greg Meyer, also gave a report of the station in general and the changes being implemented. Meyer said KÜO will be offering remotes, such as KÜO’s broadcast from the Kibbitte Dome during registration. “In my opinion it was a huge success,” he said. “We were able to do that show on this. See Senate, page 14.”

Is Symms the true leader of Idaho?

U.S. Senator Steve Symms was elected because he exemplifies the beliefs of a majority of Idaho voters. Perhaps just a southern Idaho majority, but a voting majority none the less. So despite being seen as an anomaly in the U.S. Senate by the nation’s press, his actions are usually seen in Idaho as proper.

However, Symms’ recent statements referring to Bishop Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner, hopefully do not reflect the people of Idaho.

The senator, while reiterating his opposition to sanctions against South Africa, said “Tutu is a creation of the Western media.” Adding “I don’t consider him the true black leader in South Africa.”

Although not holding an elected position in South Africa’s government — because blacks cannot participate — Bishop Tutu is held by the blacks of South Africa as a moral and political leader. The United States government should hold him in the same regard, as a spokesman those South Africans otherwise voiceless.

Tutu, and his wife Leah, who is director of the Domestic Workers and Employers Project in Pretoria, have been urging Western governments to impose trade sanctions against the South African government because of its apartheid policy.

South Africa’s, the separation of racial groups and the concentration of political, economic and social power in the hands of the white minority, has been law in South Africa since 1948.

Tutu, along with a majority of the blacks (that are in majority) hope that Western sanctions would put pressure on the whites to end the laws of segregation and discrimination.

Symms, politician in Idaho, said “Tutu is a creation of the Western media,” adding “I don’t consider him the true black leader in South Africa.”

It is to be fervently hoped that in this matter, Senator Symms has misread the values and beliefs of Idahoans. It is repugnant to believe otherwise. The senator should reconsider his words and their implication, and apologize to Bishop Tutu, and then to the people of the State of Idaho.

Letters Policy

The Idaho Argonaut will accept letters to the editor until noon on the day prior to publication. They should be limited in one page in length, typed, and double-spaced. For subjects requiring great position, arguments may be made with the editor. Letters must be signed in ink, and include the name, address, and phone number of the writer. Proof of identity will be needed at time of submission. Letters received by mail will not be run unless confirmation of authorship is made. Names of writers will not be withheld. Letters may be edited for mechanical and spelling errors. The Idaho Argonaut reserves the right to refuse to publish any letter.
Sub cafe becomes Joe's

By Mike Hoberman
Of the Argonaut

Returning University of Idaho students expecting to enjoy their first hamburger of the semester in the red bucket section of the SUB were in for a surprise this week.

The area has been retrofitted, featuring free-standing tables and chairs, a new snack bar, a new window near the entrance that bears the name of "Joe's" for UI mascot Joe Vandal.

The snack bar has been changed to a "hollow square design, which will allow patrons freedom of movement in selecting food instead of having to stand in one line," Assistant Director of Food Service Ann Goff said.

The free-standing tables can be moved together to accommodate larger groups, and a measure of privacy will be afforded by the low partitions that divide the room, she said.

Menu changes include new kinds of cookies, made-to-order deli sandwiches and an expanded salad bar. Hamburgers, cheeseburgers and other hot sandwiches will be ordered as before, said Goff.

"We really think the students will like it," Goff said. The area opened Monday, but the work is not quite completed. "Finishing touches will be done as we're able to do them, hopefully with no inconvenience to the students," Goff said.

Construction began shortly after July 1, and will cost about $250,000 upon completion, said Student Union General Manager Dean Vettrus. He said that little could be done before the start of the new fiscal year on July 1.

"That's the limitation you have, and you have to work around that," Vettrus said. The money for the project will come from the Student Union Reserve.

The red bucket area was about 10 years old, said Vettrus, and in need of repair. "The red seats were kind of hard to maneuver in, and they needed to be recarpeted, and the snack bar was archaic. We hope to increase usage and flexibility for the area and provide a nice, comfortable space for students," he said.

Vettrus said the SUB is also planning to re-paint the floor in the blue section adjacent to the retrofitted area. "We can't get the exact carpet, but we can get a similar color. We anticipate it will be three or four weeks until we get that done," he said.

"I didn't think they were going to make it," Vettrus said of the construction crew, which is made up entirely of university employees. "It has been a very cooperative effort. I think it's a very nice little design in there, and I'm very pleased," he said.

Many of these summer bills were voted on by mail or phone because some senators were out of town.

"The ideal situation would be for us to get together and talk about them," explained Freund, "but I feel we can take advantage of the time in the summer and pass some house cleaning bills. The things we got done this summer give us a running head start for the fall."
Gibb expresses concerns for upcoming year

Of the Argonaut
The loss of Idaho high school graduates to other states, the improvement of guidance and counseling for students who are here, and the maintenance of the core curriculum are the top concerns of the University of Idaho president for the upcoming year.

UI President Richard Gibb discussed these and other issues in an interview with the Idaho Argonaut last week. He also discussed the financial impact of intercollegiate athletics, the restructuring of higher education, and the financial problems of the ASUI golf course.

"We are losing too many good (Idaho) high school graduates to other states," he said. "Many of the midwestern and eastern states are predicting very sharp declining enrollments," and increasing their recruitment efforts.

"I don't think it's a tragedy every time one of our students decides to go to another state," Gibb said. "Yet, if we are losing a substantial number of them, and they are being offered scholarships and financial aid benefits, then that has to be looked at," Gibb said.

Counseling and guidance is another area students need available, he said. It relates to both obtaining and retaining students. Often a drop occurs because of non-academic reasons.

Gibb explained that at the beginning of the year morale is high, then it hits the lower levels at about the six-week mark. "We haven't been able to identify enough of those students to prevent the reasons," he said. "But we want them to know there are places to get help, and where."

Another way the UI helps students, at least for those for their careers, is through the implementation of the core curriculum.

"It's the best thing we've done since I've been here," Gibb said. "I feel strongly that every graduate at this institution should have a good, broad education." He said advisory groups continually want the university to place more emphasis on those academic areas which will allow the student to be better able to communicate.

There are some problems with the idea of a core curriculum. "We are fine tuning," Gibb said. Some majors have room for only one or three elective credits. So the major requirements versus core curriculum sometimes presents problems.

Over the years the average amount of time to complete a degree has gone up, he said, more and more programs are taking four-and-a-half or five years to complete. But Gibb said if the UI catalog says a program is at least five years, the person would probably look elsewhere for an institution that offers the same degree with a four-year enrollment. He said the program at the other school "would probably take as long to finish, but most would not be listed that way.

Another thing a student might examine is the availability of financial support by way of scholarships or gifts. And one reason the university can increase these funds is through athletics.

"I have been around enough, to know that if we have winning teams, then the amount of contributions to the university increases," he said. That was demonstrated when the men's basketball team was doing well under former coach Don Monson, and receiving national attention.

Although hesitant to predict any outcomes, he indicated optimism for sports during the upcoming year, including football, volleyball, and women's basketball.

In another direction, Gibb said he will support the concept of two governing boards for Idaho education — one for the primary and secondary levels, and the other for higher education. However, he doesn't think the division will come about.

That proposal is one of a series of changes suggested by the IAC (Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry) Task Force on Education. Another was a constitutional amendment that the legislature can increase state tuition. The latter idea is also being discussed by legislators and an Idaho House Education Committee established this summer by Idaho House Speaker Tom Sivers (R-Twin Falls).

Philosophically, I like the idea of students paying one-

Idaho galleries gain new director

Johanna B. Hays is the newly appointed director of the University of Idaho galleries. She is also a contributing editor to art publications in the San Francisco area and belongs to several art organizations there. Hays, who has written articles for "Art Week" and the "American Center Art Quarterly," replaces Kathy Eton, who resigned earlier this spring. Hays earned a bachelor's degree in art history from Columbia University in New York City and is on the advisory boards of Inter Arts and Pro Arts, two organizations active in promoting the arts in the San Francisco Bay area.

She fell in love with the Moscow area when vacationing here last year. "That's one of the reasons I accepted the challenge of running the University and Prichard galleries," she said. Her first exposure to Idaho was when she had her first one-woman show in Sun Valley in 1978.

One of the reasons she took the post was that she felt there were endless possibilities for the art scene in Moscow. She said she felt San Francisco was too rigid. "It was just too much of the old 'We've always done it this way' mentality. I think that at the U of I, I'll have much more freedom to be creative and try different ways of doing things."

Hays said she is particularly impressed with the remodeling work going on at the Prichard's new quarters in downtown Moscow.

"This is the main reason I wanted to come to the UI. I am very pleased with the community outreach the university has made to Moscow and the surrounding areas. You would be amazed at how few college and university art departments do that."

"On most campuses, and I'm talking about some of the biggest and best known, the university gallery is almost a fortress. It's difficult to find and the visitors have tended to treat community visitors as nuisances to be tolerated rather than as audiences to be cultivated. I think the opposite is true here at the UI and in Moscow. Just the simple fact a gallery is operated off-campus says more to the community than you might think."

"While it may surprise those who haven't had a chance to compare, the Prichard will be one of the biggest and best university galleries in the entire country when the remodeling work is done," Hays said. One of her immediate goals is to have an exhibit opening on Oct. 11. Photo Burnet/Deb Gilbertson

Musical Chairs to feed the hungry in Africa

By Bobi Jones
Of the Argonaut

Hoping to help feed the starving, Musical Chairs for Africa will be offering UI students a chance of a lifetime to be on the making and breaking of a world record.

Remember that old child's game you used to play, possibly as far back as kindergarten, where you would dance around and someone would yell, "Now!" and everyone would race to their chairs leaving one or two people standing without a chair?

The game was called musical chairs, a lot of fun for young ones, but obviously a child's game. Or is it? Soon the Moscow-Pullman area will get a unique chance to participate in a child's game of a different variety.

The first difference is that instead of a dozen squirming kids, there will be an estimated 5,000 people at this event.

And instead of sweet, music box type music to play by, the music for this huge event will be supplied by several local live bands, including the Bikes.

This musical chairs game also offers prizes to win. The grand prize will be a week long cruise for two to the Caribbean.

With all this, you might ask what kind of musical chairs event is this?

Well, it is officially called "Musical Chairs for Africa". It is primarily a local effort to raise money for famine relief in Africa.

Hoping to gather as many as 5,000 chair hoopers together, the organizers are trying to break the standing musical chairs world record of 4,814. This last record was set on April 24, 1982.

This dual contest/fundraiser is scheduled to happen Sunday, September 15, at noon on the University of Idaho's Wicks Field. Keith Miller, director of the project, said that they have a grid pattern worked up to cover the approximately 5,000 participants on Wick's Field.

"We're going to eliminate about 300 people at a time until we get down to 300 people," Miller said. After 300 people are left, they will be eliminating groups of 20, and finally two until the winner is determined.

All proceeds for this event will go to USA for Africa. Miller said that USA for Africa was chosen for its complete distribution of the money, including 10 percent of which is to stay in the U.S. to help the hungry and helpless here.

Everyone is invited to partake in this giant game, which will break around four to five hours. To enter, you need a chair and are to donate at least $2 for a chair registration fee.

You may also register by purchasing a "Musical Chairs for Africa" t-shirt for $7. Of this $2 will be donated to USA for Africa.

Pooling from the approximately 34,000 students between Moscow and Pullman, it looks very promising that the old record will be broken here on campus.

A weekend trip to MTV's studio in New York City is up for grabs as well. This exciting prize will be awarded to a representative from the living group with the largest amount of participation.

Other various prizes, donated by local businesses and organizations, will be given to the winners throughout the day.

The main sponsors of Musical Chairs are: TKO Communications, University In/Best Western, KMOK FM and Pepsi Bottling Company of Lewiston. The head coordinators of "Musical Chairs for Africa" are Keith Miller and Terri Lynch.

Basoa leaves memories behind

By John Hoch
Of the Argonaut

The warm tones of Peter Basoa's voice, a mainstay of Moscow community radio, and a organizer and host at innumerable live musical events over the decades will not be heard for a while.

"Yes, friends, this is Peter, the radio rider...". Hours of music, from obscure jazz to Idaho mountain hoedowns, follow.

Peter announced his Moscow departure with a typically gentle, self-mocking bulletin of a "bold career move." He will attend graduate school in public broadcast management at Ohio University.

His farewell for his friends and himself was a good-bye party at the Moscow Community Center. A potluck table was set, old friends who are musicians performed, children danced and whirled, and vanguard group mingled and visited. The location was appropriate, because Peter is a person so much concerned with community.

Peter was a central figure in the birth of "Radio Free Moscow," in the early 70s, on the former KUID-FM. The station's unique programming to listeners from the Clearwater breaks to lookout towers in the St. Joe forest. They came from a wide range of cultures, from ex-patriated city-types and to rural ridgehoppers. The station's legacy of tasteful, well-constructed radio programming remains.

His music is as gentle, comfortable and firm as his approach to life, which came close to ending in a battle with cancer. The healing forces of friends and community helped him through.

Two years of "Afternoon Delight," quiet, on-campus music festivals, fit in between stages of his life.

As the annual Renaissance Fair became an increasingly complex event, but still loosely structured, it was Peter who would collect the corpus of musicians and talent and volunteers which provided the musical backdrop for a community event.

He sighed each time it would be someone else's turn the next year. But his love of music and no one else really willing or able to filter the creative anarchy of regional musicians, and the need for structure and flow, kept him on.

He was annotated king of the 1984 fair, heading the parade and smiling all the while.

His love for music began while he was growing up in the Bronx, where his transistor radio let him hear the multivarious radio cultures on a huge metropolitan area's provider: WWVA and its pure country to the music of the streets.

Peter's record collection of over 7,000 albums surrounds his life. It is literally wall-to-wall in his apartment, and his bed is set on boxes and cases of albums forming tunnels and grooves. For other music lovers, it is a treasure cave, because we are so many giats and geniuses to be found.

Peter will be back. But there is no doubt in our community and musical life while he is away.

New business club launched

By Karin Metzler
Of the Argonaut

Thinking of starting your own business? A new organization in the Moscow area may give you a head start.

"This club is for people who are interested in learning how to start their own business and how to market their product," said Rod Walgamott, spokesman for the Idaho Association of Entrepreneurs (proposed name).

The Association will hold its first meeting, Tuesday, September 3rd, at 7:30 p.m. in room 900 on the University of Idaho campus.

"Anyone can join," Walgamott, a senior business student and spokesman for the group said. "The club wants to provide a learning environment both from hands-on experience and from other resources like speakers and computer programs.

Walgamott hopes to see a wide variety of people join the club. "There are business aspects to lots of professions," he said. "All technical fields are there to create products. Those products need to find their way into a business setting."

As an example, Walgamott explained that some law students may want to open their own law practice after graduation. "They know how to be a lawyer, but not how to sell themselves to their customers or how to do bookkeeping. (They) have attorney skills but lack the skills to start a practice," he said.

Most of what we are taught is geared to getting a job at a large corporation, not at a small business. This club fills that gap," Walgamott said.

To give Association members on personal experiences, Walgamott would like to start and operate a business as a club.

Later, he would like to see a reading committee developed. The committee would be made up of business people in all fields from the Moscow area. These people would be available for consultation when somebody wanted to start their own business.

Also, Walgamott wants to see the organization host a workshop at the end of the year that would feature a panel of professionals that could teach workshop participants about starting their own business.

The club hopes that after three business students returned from an entrepreneurs conference in Dallas. They brough ideas from other college campuses and later found interest in the Moscow area.

Those interested can contact Walgamott at 882-3784 for more information.

Although different, twosome after same goal

By Greg Kilmer
Of the Argonaut
They are two different people from two very different parts of our country.
One is from Los Angeles, California, the other from Fruitland, Idaho.
Auker, the stopping style tight end receiver, the other is a box
But numbers 72 years years old.
Auker with 72 catches and Yarber with 54 finished No. 1 and No. 2 in the Big Sky receiving race and No. 8 and No. 14 in the nation. The only tandem to finish higher was "What's A Run" as Mississippi Valley's Jerry Rice and Joe Thomas.
But neither of the two are impressed by their numbers from a year ago.
"I just want to do well," Auker said. "They'll (UI opponents) be looking at my routes more."
"But I really don't feel that much pressure."
"There's a lot of other people on this team," Yarber said of his 54 grabs. "With guys like Scott and Brant Bengen, we'll have plenty to catch the ball."
Both were in agreement with their own personal goals for the upcoming 1985 season.
"I just want to take it one game at a time, the other's will come," Auker said. "And the first one is Oregon State."
"While they agreed on taking each game one at a time, they differed on their expectations of the season opener against Oregon State."
"I didn't play against them last year," Yarber said. "Which may be good, they've only seen me on film, they really don't know my moves or how quick I am."
Auker on the other hand had a big day against the Pac-10 Beavers from Corvallis. The tight end had nine catches for 117 yards and one touchdown.
"They'll probably be watching me more this year," Auker said. "But that will open it up for the others."
The Oregon State game was also one part of the Idaho tight ends most memorable moment in a Silver and Gold uniform.
"My touchdown catch against them was a real big thrill for me," Auker said. "Another was my touchdown catch against Southern Colorado. It was three years ago to get my first catch (the redshirted in 1982) and it was great it was a touchdown."
Yarber's highlight for his one year stint at Idaho came in front of the Sellier State Homecoming crowd.
After injuring his shoulder earlier in the season and missing two four games, Yarber was given the OK to dress down for the Homecoming affair.
It looked as if he was going to be a spectator after noticeably limping and Idaho enjoying a 24-7 cushion at the half.
But things didn't go quite as planned as the Wildcats put 30 quick points on the scoreboard to take a seven point lead in the fourth quarter.
With the clock running down and things not going his way Head coach Erickson looked to his bench for a little help.
"Enter No. 1."
Yarber did the much needed lift as he proceeded to grab four straight Scott Lineham passes to help drive the Vandals for the tying expander.
"When that crowd and everybody on the sideline started chanting Yarber, Yarber, Yarber, Well I just can't describe the feeling I had inside of me," Yarber said with a great big smile.
While Yarber went home to LA this past summer, Auker stayed in Moscow.
"I stayed here and lived with Scott (Lineham) and worked for Bobby Bennett at the Ranier Distributor," Auker said. "It was great working for the Bennett family and making some good friends in this community. there are some real close people living around here."

As Auker was enjoying the quiet life of Moscow, Yarber spent the summer months in Orange County.
"I didn't work much," Yarber said. "I went to summer school and ran a lot. I also put on a little weight. I finally did it, I am now 160 pounds."

Yarber was listed as 155 in last year's program, something a lot of people questioned. It wasn't the first time weight has been a topic for the speedster.
"I could never make the varsity team in high school," Yarber said. "I know I could do it but they would just say I was too small."
Auker on the other hand had an illustrious career at Fruitland High School, being a standout in southwestern Idaho.
At Fruitland, Auker received first team All-State honors as a junior and senior. He received second team All-State awards as a defensive back as a senior and as a junior at the receiver.
Converted to quarterback his senior year, Auker passed for over 600 yards and 9 TD's. He followed that with a first team All-State award in basketball averaging 13.0 ppg.

Rafferty new B-ball ass’t

By Tom Liberman
Of the Argonaut

During the summer months 27 year old Pat Rafferty was hired to be a new assistant coach to the Vandals’ basketball team. Rafferty has had a career of success and hopes he can bring that good fortune to the Vandals program.

Rafferty’s most recent experience came at Northern Arizona University where he was an assistant coach whose main responsibilities were as a recruiter. While the job is not a obvious step up in the coaching ranks he considers it a chance to learn a great deal.

He said, “Many people considered this a step sideways but I think of it as a great opportunity.” Rafferty said that his job at the UI would consist more of coaching and less of recruiting although he will continue to do some recruiting.

His first coaching job came at Eastern Montana University where he went from player to assistant coach to head coach in one year. This remarkable rise was punctuated by a ranking of 17 in the final Division II basketball polls.

He took over the head coaching job after the tragic death of his predecessor and said that it was a difficult situation coaching people to whom he had been a teammate the year before.

Rafferty gives credit mainly to his former coach and his teammates for the outstanding finish under trying times.

Rafferty said that he has learned from all of his coaches in the past and that he will learn under coach Trumbo as he continues to develop his own style. He said he has no apprehensions coming to a basketball team that was 1-13 in conference last year.

“We’re going to make some noise this year, last year’s adversity will help us to be a better team this year,” he said.

Rafferty said, “I am really happy to be here, I like it here and I’m not worried about the next job. My future is going to take care of itself.”

“Davitch (ex-UI coach) came down and talked to myself and a friend of mine who was a running back for us,” Auker exclaimed, “He said ‘That and a lot of my friends coming up here, After not playing varsity football, Yarber decided on Los Angeles Community College. The move paid off for him as he received honorable mention credentials as a freshman and finished off his stay at LACC with a All-Conference award and team MVP as a sophomore. Recruited by several schools, Yarber followed ex-LACC and Vandal Ron Wittenburg to the UI campus.

“Coach Ericksen is well known,” Yarber said, “And the Kibbie Dome is a great place to play ball.”

Player’s would like to take a shot at Pro Ball but are both apprehensive.

“First of all I want to get my degree (Tele-Communication),” Yarber said. “After that, I’ll just have to see.”

Auker agreed with his receiving mate, “You’ve got to be real good to get people out there after the same thing,” he said.

Auker will graduate with a Marketing degree.

Auker summed up the Vandals’ emotions for the upcoming season. “This team is emotionally leveling off right now,” he said. “But that’s kind of expected after two-a-days, we’ll be jacked for Oregon State, we’ll be ready.”

“We know what we can do, we have the people” Yarber said of his team’s chances. “Now we just have to do it.”

With these two very different people, the Vandals might just end up leaving the UI team in a very different spot. That of playing football in December for a national championship.

Football contest on again

Well, it's that time of year for all you perfect prognosticators to get out the O crystal ball and see how you can pick college football games.

Once again the Argonaut and Tri-State bring you the "Pick the Winners" contest with a weekly prize of a Tri-State gift certificate for $5.

One thing different from years past is that there will only be one box to put your entry. The box will be located at Tri-State on the Sporting Goods section's counter. There will not be a box at the Argonaut.

The entry blanks will be in each Tuesday addition accompated with the previous week's winner. Deadline for the entries will be noon Friday before the games.

Each week's games will be selected by Argonaut Sport's Editor Greg Kilmer. Tie-breaker games will be Idaho and Washington State.

The asterisks alongside each game indicates Kilmer's winning choice.

"I'm not cocky or anything but I know my stuff," Kilmer said. "But anybody just try and beat me."

The Argonaut urges all students, faculty and staff to try their luck.

Cheerleaders receive award

This year, the Vandal cheerleading squad boasts 16 members including Rei Piast, Michelle Depew, Ruth Eccles, Karen Schrabei, Shawn Elle, Terry Stokes, Julie Hartwell, Darwyn Broome, Tim McKinley, Bob Cole, Robert Wiesl, Chris Ringer and Greg Nystrom.

Congrats to all!

Coombs on reserve

Tom Coombs, former standout end at the University of Idaho, has been placed on the injured reserve list by the Green Bay Packers.

Coombs, formerly of the New York Jets, started for the Vandals at tight end during the 1980 and 1981 seasons.

Coombs had been a deep snap specialist while with the Jets.

Coombs joins fellow Vandal and Seattle Seahawks Sam Merriman on the injured reserve list. Merriman has been suffering back spasms since early in the Seahawks training camp.

The University of Idaho

cheerleaders were honored last week when they were named the Most Improved Squad at the annual United Spirit Association cheerleading camp held

August 13-16.

The University of California at Santa Barbara was the site of this year's camp that featured over 100 squads from throughout the country.

QB's shine in scrimmage

The Idaho offense racked up 420 yards, including 323 yards passing and 97 yards rushing as the Vandals wrapped up the first week of practice Saturday with a scrimmage in the Ribble Dome.

Starting quarterback Scott Linehan completed 13 of 15 attempts for 140 yards while back-up Rick Sloan added another 81 yards on eight completions.

Leading receivers were Edy Specker who had six receptions for 73 yards and Eric

Yarber who hauled in four passes for 41 yards.

Right end Scott Asker had four grabs for 35 yards and a four yard touchdown catch from Linehan.

Tom Bundy had the only rushing TD, scoring on an eight yard run while Kevin Bailey led all rushers with 31 yards, followed by freshman John Altenhofen who had 22 yards.

Another freshman, DB John Pleas, paced a tough Idaho defense with two interceptions and also punished twice for 62 yards.

The heated place kick battle continued with

Dan Woodworth connecting on field goals of 20 and 47 yards while Brian Decius added a 41 yarder and two extra points.

because of the equipment we also said that KIOI is working on the possibility of broadcasting the Jazz Festival, the Bobb Symphony, ASUI Senate meetings and UI women's athletics.

Meyer stressed that he is working hard on getting the sta-ion organized, financially and operationally. According to Meyer, KIOI will seek outside financial support in the form of underwriting. "We're trying to make it partially a listened sponsored station."
Cherri Saba said at the meeting Chan Davis, former KIOI station manager, petitioned the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) for more wattage. Currently KIOI operates at 50 watts. KIOI was also heard. Wetzel said the reason that Lecture Notes self-sufficiency may not come true.
He said at least 20 classes are needed to be self-sufficient even this year. Even if Lecture Notes did get this many classes, Wetzel said, "It's more of a guarantee we will not break even than we will." According to Wetzel, the program is unable to get the needed number of classes to avoid a subsidy by the ASUI because professors fear students use the notes as an excuse to skip class. Wetzel requested that the senators ask their living groups if such is the case.
Senators will make their responses on the existing living groups. UI College, ASUI Bozid, and ASUI Sub-Committees they want to be on and be appointed by President Freud and Vice President Trailer this week. Senators will then vote on the appointments at next week's meeting.
President Freud said, "I'm sorry to see that the living groups felt they were not represented well so I'd like to see them get different senators."
Living groups professors also have requests for senator representatives who should call the ASUI office at 883-6331.
Also a bill changing the number of appointed senators to ASUI standing boards and committees was also passed. The Golf Course Board will now have two senators serving on it in stead of one.

"If anything, does a little bit to hurt the image of the Greek system," Brigham said.
"He added that a dry rush would cut down on the abuse of wet rush parties by non-rushes.
Also, the got together could be used as more of a rush tool than just a party. It would also allow the house alo's more creativity in their rush parties.
This year the numbers of rushes going through rush were down a little. Holding a approximately 285, which was down around from 300. Last year, same amount from the year before.

According to Brigham, 16% of the rushers became involved into
